

Deal Cites Facts In Spirited Reply To Hamilton Charges

Answers Portsmouth Star Story Which "Turned on Fire" and Tells Some Interesting History

1936 STAND REVEALED

Recent Victory of Citizens Democratic League Seen as Cause of Irritation; To Support Hamilton

On Sunday morning, Congressman Hamilton, candidate for re-election to the U. S. Congress, "turned the fire on" Jos. T. Deal, as he is reported having threatened to do, in his privately owned Portsmouth Star. It may be a question of some interest as to why Mr. Hamilton should think it would advance the interest of his campaign to attack Mr. Deal, a private citizen, who holds no office of public trust nor is he seeking any. Thus far Mr. Deal has made no public utterance, pro or con, in the campaign. Indeed, in Mr. Hamilton's campaign in 1936, against Congressman Darden, Mr. Deal was neutral, taking no part either for or against any candidate, not even to cast a vote in the primary nor general election. It does not follow, however, that Mr. Deal should pursue the same course in this campaign. He, like some thirty thousand qualified voters of the second District, may exercise a choice as between the three candidates, surely Mr.
Hamilton would not deny to him
this constitutional right. If Mr.
Hamilton, the reputed owner of the Portsmouth Star, desires through that medium, to "turn the fire on" all who may not support him in this campaign, he will have some undertaking on his hands.

Of course, Mr. Deal is affiliated with the Citizens Democratic League, he helped to organize it but does not control it; he is not the titular head of it, he is not even a member of any committee of the League; he offered no resolution to be voted upon by the League on the occasion which seems to have aroused in the brain of Mr. Hamilton the venom and spleen so manifest in the vicious attack appearing in his paper, but he, Mr. Deal, is in accord with the action of the League.

League Changes Support

There is a further fact of some interest incident to this attack by Mr. Hamilton's paper. Of those who organized the League Mr.
Deal does not know of one other than himself, who did not support
Mr. Hamilton in 1936. Last week an overwhelming majority voted for a resolution endorsing Mr.
Darden. Why this change since 1936? There must be some reason therefor; men rarely change their allegiance without a cause, now and then a few do but not often. In such an event those

SUIT FOLLOWS JUNE ELECTION

Victory of Russell Hatchett Contested in Circuit Court
by J. E. Woodhouse, Jr.
Reasons Cited

CHARGES MADE

Eighty-Three Non-Residents Alleged to Have Voted on Election Day; Mail Ballots Questioned

Contesting the victory of Russell Hatchett, victorious in the June 14 election, J. E. Woodhouse, Jr., yesterday brought suit through his attorneys, M. E.
Woodhouse and James G. Martin, claiming that the seventy-nine vote margin of victory was brought about through violations of the election laws in a number of different ways.

Setting forth twenty-two persons voted by mail who were present at the Beach on the day of the election, the bill alleges that five names were counted twice and that three persons who sent in mail ballots for Mr. Woodhouse were not counted for him.

A long list of persons, eighty-three in number, who it is claimed are not residents at the Beach, are alleged to have voted for Mr.
Hatchett, and fourteen others it is claimed were allowed the privilege of casting a ballot although they had not previously paid their poll tax in accordance with the law.

Listing the causes of the complaint, the bill in part reads as follows:

That the judges left the place of voting and remained away for various lengths of time; that people voted for Hatchett who were not residents of the town, some had not registered and some had not paid their poll taxes; that at least sixty of the sixty-nine mail method; that voters were allowed to place their own ballots in the box; that in the certificate of the

CAVALIER PLANS FOR THE FOURTH

Holiday Celebration Includes
Many Social and Sports Activities; Club Dance a Feature

A patriotic program combined with a social and sports calendar will mark the three-day Fourth of July celebration at this tidewater resort.

The gala holiday spirit, now in top register, flings its capriciousness across the doings of the throngs of resorters assembled at this seaside vacationland from various parts of the United States and Canada.

Early morning surf swims followed by cabana breakfast parties and relaxing on sun-drenched sands are prime pastimes at the Cavalier Beach Club, exclusive social centre here. De Ronda and Barry, romantic dancers, who recently concluded a two months' engagement at the Royal York hotel, Toronto, will head the entertainment program for the next few weeks in the Show-Box foyer at this Club. De Ronda's wardrobe is noted for its many exquisite costumes. A new costume, which she will wear during the Fourth of July celebration, promises to cause a scintillating sensation. It is a solid mass of rhinestones, 34,000 of them, all handset, and weighs fifteen pounds. They will sail for England in September to fill an engagement in London. Mnt Julep assemblies will precede the tea and dinner dances Fourth of July at this Club, where for the second season Johnny Long and his radio orchestra furnish dance music. More than a thousand members will attend the supper dance on Saturday night when several novelties will be included in the entertainment program.

Bit of Beauty By The Beach

A committee of residents of the

NEW LIFE GUARD ON BEACH DUTY

Agreement Reached to Grant Privileges in Exchange for Services; Police Powers Granted

SALARY FIXED

Standards Outlined, Licenses Lowered and Street Names Unchanged

In a lively session the Virginia Beach Town Council voted unanimously Monday night, to employ the exclusive services of the Virginia Beach Life Guard Patrol to serve until September 10th, and in return for the service, granted the exclusive privilege of renting umbrellas, beach chairs and other paraphernalia, to members of that body.

The lengthy ordinance, setting forth the duties and obligations to be performed, specified that no license fees were to be charged to members of the organization, and called for the appointment by the Council of supervising captain of the patrol with a salary of $120 a month, whose duty it will be to see that all members carry out their responsibilities, and otherwise act in accord with the terms of the ordinance.

The newly formed patrol agreed to keep the beach clean of all trash, and to perform certain police duties while serving, in addition to furnishing adequate life guard service. It is specified that members must be on duty continuously from 9 A. M. until 6 P. M., with the exception of the lunch hour from 1 to 2 o'clock. Life guarding to be performed from one end of the beach to the other, extending the length of the concrete walk.

High Standards Demanded

Provision was made for a strict standard of efficiency as a condition precedent to membership in the corps, and full knowledge of the administration of first-aid was made a requirement. Non-members can become associated with the body provided the applicant holds a senior life guard certificate, and further provided he can demonstrate his ability in ocean life saving to the patrol captain or his designated assistant, who are to act as examiners for the patrol.

It was specified that all members must wear a significant uniform while on duty, and have on hand at his post the proper first-aid equipment for emergencies.
Each member is to be provided with a warning sign to read "Dangerous Surf", which is to be displayed when conditions warrant notice of warning.

LEAGUE MEMBERS DENY STATEMENT

Butler and Smithwick Brand Story in Portsmouth Paper
as "False"

That the campaign to select the Democratic nominee to represent the Second District in the United States Congress will be a heated affair was brought out by a situation arising last Sunday. In a news article of that date appearing in the Portsmouth Star, published by Congressman Norman Hamilton, it was stated that J. A. Butler and L. J. Smithwick, had sought appointment to the Norfolk Postmastership, at the hands of Mr. Hamilton and because of the fact that it was not forthcoming, these gentlemen had joined hands with "others in endorsing Mr. Darden."

Both of the men mentioned were quick to deny the truth of the article and handed a prepared statement to a representative of the News when asked to comment on the story appearing in Sunday's Star.

The two statements are printed hewith:

J. A. Butler's Denial

There appeared in Mr. Norman
Hamilton's paper, The Portsmouth
Star, on June 26, the following statement:

"L. J. Smithwick and J. A. Butler, who supported Mr. Hamilton two years ago for the Congressional nomination and who joined Deal, Banks and others in endorsing Mr. Darden Thursday night, each had sought Mr. Hamilton's commitment for his appointment to the Norfolk Postmastership to succeed Postmaster R. W. Shul-tice. Mr. Hamilton declined to give such commitment."

This statement concerning me is absolutely false. I never at any time sought such a commitment.
The only mention of the Norfolk Postmastership was made to me by Mr. Hamilton himself. In the days of his congressional campaign, before his formal announcement of candidacy, Mr. Hamilton said upon several occasions: "Jim, when I represent this district in Washington I'm going to make you Postmaster in Norfolk."

L. J. Smithwick's Statement

My only comment on the article appearing in Sunday's issue of Mr.
Hamilton's paper, the Portsmouth Star, in which my name was mentioned, is that I have not, at any time, discussed an issue or an appointment with Mr. Hamilton, in fact, I have not seen him but three times since his election, and each time that I have seen him it was just passing him on the streets of Norfolk, and twice he spoke to me, while the third time I met him, which was only a few days ago, he looked the other way and did not speak. I think he must be pretty hard pressed to permit false publication through his paper, and judging from the many calls I have had from

BALLOON SALE SET FOR JULY 4TH

Annual Sale will be Held for Benefit of Local Institution; Celebrating Golden Anniversary

On June 1st of this year, the Infant Sanitarium passed the 50th year of service to the babies and small children of the underprivileged of the Tidewater area, and on July 4, the institution will celebrate its founding by holding its annual balloon sale on the streets of the Beach. For a number of years this practice has been followed, and it replaces a custom of long standing, which will be recalled by old residents and former visitors, of holding an annual morning dance at the Old Casino on the forenoon of the Fourth of July.

Realizing the need for relief from the intense heat of summer, a little group of Episcopal church-women conceived the idea of founding the Sanitarium, 50 years ago and launched the undertaking in the spring of the year 1888. Since that time an endless number of small children of all denominations have been the recipients of the benefits of medical and nursing care so generously and expertly given at the institution. Many of the patients have been subject to grave illness while others have suffered from want of proper nourishment and fresh air. In many instances the mothers of the little tots have accompanied their babies as the guests of the Sanitarium.

Mrs. Myers, Chairman Of the twelve members of the original board, three survive, and Mrs. Barton Myers, Sr., is still the active chairman, which office she has held continuously since the founding of the institution.

The present board members are Mrs. Barton Myers, president; Mrs. H. Walter Whitfield, vice president; Miss Nonie Wilkinson, who has been on the board for nearly 50 years, treasurer; Mrs.
James M. Jordan, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Kirkland Ruffin, corresponding secretary; Mrs. William Lett Harris, recording secretary, and Mrs. C. Wiley Grandy.
Mrs. George E. Lewis, Miss Catharine Myers, Miss Lida Starke, Miss Julia de Witt, Mrs. J. Jerome Taylor, Mrs. William Stone, Mrs. J. Blissly Hudgins, Miss
Barton Myers, Jr., Mrs. Louis
Windholz, Mrs. Joseph D. Deal,
Mrs. G. Benson Perrebe, Jr., Mrs.
Claiborne Wilcox, Mrs. J. Y. S.
Mitchell, Mrs. John Preston Edmondson, of New York, until recently Miss Mary Dickson Cooke, of Norfolk, Mrs. John Stedman, Mrs. J. Sydney Smith, Jr., Mrs.
Lawrence Tucker, Mrs. Robert L.
Hunter, Mrs. Julian Timberlake, Mrs. Edward N. MacWilliams and Mrs. Mitchell.

Next Thursday Set For Batten Trial

The trial of Laban Batten, who is charged with the murder of a William Shewood, Princess Anne farmer, was postponed yesterday by Judge B. D. White, of the Princess Anne County Circuit Court, when it became known that an important witness would be unable to attend the trial due to illness. The court was in readiness to proceed with the trial when this fact was brought to the attention of the judge, who ordered a postponement until Thursday of next week, July 7th.

Batten was arrested on June 11 and charged with the murder of Shewood, who was killed on the night of June 10 on a lonely road near Creeds while walking home after an evening at the crossroads store. It has been established that the victim was robbed of $120 which he had on his person after the shooting.

The accused will be defended by W. R. Ashburn, attorney of Virginia Beach, and the prosecution will be directed by the commonwealths Attorney Paul Ackis also of Virginia Beach.

Featuring changes and addition of special entertainers to their atcording to the management of the pleasure centers great crowds are expected to attend and preparations for their enjoyment has been arranged on a more elaborate scale than formerly. The summer season will be launched with bright prospects for bigger and better crowds than even last year.

The Cavalier will hold the this annual Junior Horse Show Sun-of entertainment, and Saturday

special acts at the Beach Club, including De Ronda and Barry romantic dancers of international thousand, and a novelty program in addition to the superb musipromise pleasure in abundance all night.

Golf Tournament Planned

Sports events, including a tennis tournament and special handicap golf tournament, have been arranged for the weekend, these addition to surf bathing and horse back riding affording ample selec-

Following precedent, the Su-

for their series of weekend dances.

RECONCILIATION—PLUS

Elsewhere in these columns will be found statements from certain gentlemen in reply to an article published in the Portsmouth Star of the 28th instant.

These statements were offered to the Norfolk press, owned or controlled by Mr. Slover. It was not expected that they would be published for the reason that Mr. Slover's papers, or Mr. Slover himself, is a Hamilton supporter.

This may account for the remarkable feat of the reconciliation of Mr. Byrd and Mr. Hamilton, between whom so much political and personal bitterness had been manifested prior to Mr. Hamilton's election to Congress. In like manner, there came about an apparent change of heart among most of the Norfolk city officials who outwardly supported Mr. Darden in 1936.

The bitterest cup of dislike can often be swallowed if the right kind of pressure is brought to bear, and Mr. Slover, with his two Norfolk papers, the Petersburg Progress-Index, the Richmond Times Dispatch, and the allied Portsmouth Star, is a combination of publicity power before which few, if any, politicians can stand. Especially is this true with respect to Senator Byrd, who so long as he controlled the Governor of Virginia with the vast centralization of the power therein vested during Mr. Byrd's administration.

But, Mr. Byrd does not control the present Governor of Virginia. His vast power has been shorn and the 1940 Senatorial election is not far distant. Mr. Byrd needs the help of Mr. Slover's papers. No wonder then that he swallowed Mr. Hamilton. Mr. Slover's mouthpiece in Congress, however bitter the feud previously existing between Mr. Byrd and Mr. Hamilton. Bitter as it must have been to Mr. Byrd, doubtless it was a sweet morsel to Mr. Hamilton. As to the Norfolk city political outfit, so long dominated by Mr. Slover, they too saw a new light for Mr. Hamilton within the fold. 'Tis true that Mr. Slover's papers received a knockout blow on June 14, but politicians know that the memories of the people are short lived while the continual hammering of the press, like the perpetual drip of water, cuts deep in the hardest stone.

The August Primary will soon be here. May be the people will not forget that Mr. Hamilton was elected in 1936 as a Roosevelt 100 percent follower, but that in 1938 he voted against Mr. Roosevelt's Reorganization Bill and also against resolution to investigate the broadcasting system. Who told him? Probably no one, but Mr. Hamilton is alert to every change in the weather.

EXECUTIVE DICTATION

"In simple frankness and in simple honesty 'the President said, 'I need all the help I can get.' This statement was made in his last radio address to the people and in it the President claimed the right to intervene in behalf of all candidates favorable to his policies in the coming primary. It is interpreted as the first step to surround him in Washington, a Congress favorable to his wishes and amenable to his will.

With the memory of the outcome of certain measures which met with defeat at the hands of the 75th Congress, and its predecessor in mind, notably the Court Packing Bill, the Anti-Lynching Bill, the Government Reorganization Bill; and with the latter general opposition to the Wage-Hour law, as originally introduced, we view with alarm this open declaration of intent to campaign for members of Congress favorable to administration policies.

Whereas it cannot be said that such a course represents a departure from the accepted standards of conduct of the high office, it is the exception rather than the rule, for Presidents to openly declare for or against candidates for the legislative branch of the government within his own party. Fortunately, if memory serves us right, such interference with the free election of the representatives of the people, has frequently if not always met with rebuke, and the net result has been the election of a membership even less favorable than its predecessor to the will of the chief executive.

A striking example of what we have in mind is to be found in the action of President Woodrow Wilson when he denounced the "little group of wilful men" who opposed him in the League of Nations fight, and called upon the country to elect a Congress which would work in harmony with him.

Just why these appeals react unfavorably, or differently, from the way they are intended is a matter we cannot answer, unless it be that a sense of resentment is engendered in the voters by the attempt on the part of the executive branch of the government to dictate to the people who should represent them in the legislative branch.

Keeping in mind that the wise founders of the nation saw fit to set up the three independent branches of government, each as a check on the other and as a safe guard against the acquisition of too much power by the executive, we are compelled to the conclusion that the President who makes an appeal to the people to surrender their constitutional right to free elections, to further some plan or scheme of his own, acts unwisely and brings on defeat of the very purpose he wishes to promote. Such at least has been the experience in the past and in this instance it is to be hoped it will be the experience of the future.

GLORIOUS FOURTH

We have come a long way since July 4th, 1776. The nation has grown to giant proportions and in many respects has grown great. Monday we celebrate the anniversary of that date as our most memorable holiday, and have always done so. The remarkable victory wrested by our forefathers from the Mother county, which will be honored on the Fourth, and its attendant Declaration of Independence, entirely justify the homage paid to the occasion.

We venture to assert that not many of the merry makers who will celebrate the joyous Fourth this year, will hesitate in their mad rush to carry on, to give one moment of thought to the stirring events of that long gone day when the Declaration was proclaimed to the world. Few there are who have bothered to inform themselves of the facts, and we are afraid that in ever increasing numbers the younger generation is missing the inspiration to be gained from the story.

No one would advocate that we turn back to the old days and the old ways, but we believe that there is a lesson in patriotism to be learned from the wise and great men, who knowing the consequences to themselves of what they did that July day, boldly proclaimed our independence.

Is it not worth while for each of us to hesitate a moment and give thought to the significance of their action, and what it has meant to us down through the years? Should we allow the day to pass without taking to ourselves some little inspiration from the boldness and bravery of these men and their associates of the time? In this day when all manner of isms are being taught in our very schools, we can ill afford to allow the glorious Fourth to pass without, in some way, making a resolve to cling a little closer to the love of our country, and to our flag.

Time was when public speakers made the most of the occasion and talked at length of the love of country. Spellbinders spoke of the latent forces and powers of the United States. It was popular then to boast of the superiority of our country and we can all re-

X-Cerpts From The News

In a campaign speech the other day, U. S. Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, insisted on his right to political independence, saying with frankness, "I have regarded some of the President's recommendations as unsound and when I have been unable to agree with him, I have followed my own convictions." "Such has been my course as long as I remain in any position of responsibility under the Constitution."

This is spoken like a man and to our way of thinking is the only course a representative of the people can take in regard to legislative matters and at the same time be worthy of his high office. There is every indication that Senator Bennett Champ Clark is a worthy successor to his famous father, the late Senator Champ Clark.

President Roosevelt, at a recent press conference following the signing of the $3,750,000,000 lending-spending bill, said, that dirt will begin to fly within sixty days. . . . In our humble opinion, with the August primaries only one month off and the political campaign getting under way, there will be plenty of dirt flying around, long before the expiration of the sixty day period.

W. B. Shafer, Jr., speaking over the radio, listed the first plank in his platform, as a 100% for "Our Great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt." We submit that it would be more economical if he are elect candidates on this aspect to send a blank order to the President to count the vote of the second district for every measure offered in Congress which meets with the approval of the executive, and save the expense of Congressmen's salary, the cost of elections, travel allowances and all the other attendant costs. In fact, a Congress elected on this basis would not even deserve the "rubber stamp appellation." . . . It would be better to have no Congress at all and it would be much less expensive.

Our idea of an empty victory is set out in the story of the decision of Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus to return to winter quarters. The strikers refused to accept a 25% wage cut made necessary by poor business, thus far this season. John Ringling North, head of the circus, could no longer pay the prevailing wages. The strikers through their spokesman Ralph Whitehead, refused to accept the cut. Results—No circus—No wages—Union victory.

Now comes War Minister Atsugi, of Japan to declare that his nation must be prepared to fight "at least ten years." It is to be hoped that the War Minister is wrong in this direful prophecy. But if not, let's all be thankful for the provision for the greater U. S. Navy. It would be difficult to stay out of a war of such duration and intensity, for it is obvious that Minister Atsugi doesn't expect to be fighting China alone for ten years.

Under the terms of the revised advancement system of the Navy, 571 officers have been promoted to a higher grade. Coming at a time when naval expansion is the order of the day and the need of the hour, this is good news to the country as a whole, as well as the personnel who benefited by the advancement. Greater efficiency will be promoted by this action. The personnel will be inspired with hope of advancement, and as a result every man will be on his toes at all times. Besides it takes more officers and more men to operate more and better ships. Congratulations to those selected for promotion.

There is something new under the Sun after all.—A love strike . . . and we learn that the technique is to sit oneself down on the intended victim and declare the intention to remain until the chosen one agrees to matrimony. . . . This little drama is being played in Irvington, N. Y., with a wealthy manufacturer as the intended victim and a red headed grass widow as the love-striker. She moved in on him and the manufacturer and his children moved out. At this writing both parties are holding their own, and it appears, are determined to fight it out along those lines. "This racket is unique as far as we are able to learn and deserves to be credited with being "something new."

We learn that the greatest reduction in traffic fatalities of the year—a 27 per cent drop in May—was reported this week by the National Safety Council. . . . Here at least is something about which we can all be proud and for which we can all be thankful. It represents the combined efforts of amultitude of agencies and, it is to be hoped, it represents an awakening on the part of the motoring public to the attendant dangers of the road, and to the need for cooperation of every driver if the toll is to be cut down and kept down. Whatever it represents it is a gratifying result.

Great Britain's war minister yesterday outlined plans to increase the personnel of the anti-aircraft division of the army to 100,000 men. When we consider that number represents more men than we had in our standing army not so many years ago, and is the greater part of what we have today, we begin to appreciate the problem before the "Big" Little Island in the face of the threat of the dictators Hitler and Mussolini. The war minister told at the same time that nation was turning out anti-aircraft guns at a rate equal to the World War schedules. One has but to analyze these actions of Great Britain in this matter to conclude that they expect war and that they are rushing to be prepared for it. It has been said that the poor harvest in Europe this year is the reason why war was not brought about before this, and if true we have the pleasant prospect of waiting for a better harvest next year so that the Gods of war may be turned loose. There is no doubt that Europe can far better afford to do without another good harvest, than risk the ravages of a major war.

Yesterday J. E. Woodhouse, the incumbent clerk of the Town of Virginia Beach filed suit contesting the election of Russell Hatchett who defeated him in the June 14 election. If as a result of the airing of the charge, and counter charges, we can be assured of fair elections in the future, every good citizen will have reason to be thankful for this action. We, of course, have no first hand knowledge of any wrong doing on the part of any official, but so many tall tales of what was done at the polls on election day are being passed around by word of mouth, that an opportunity to establish the truth, or lack of truth, should be welcomed by every one good citizen.

call such statements as "A million men will spring to arms" to defend our flag. That was in the good old days, but it served its purpose and influenced the youth of the country and in turn influenced the nations policies. Most of that is history now and times have changed.

The generation of Americans who lived through the World War recall that kind of a Fourth of July and they now that the "Million men overnight" myth was exploded. It was and is impractical to train large numbers of men in a short time, but the willingness of the spirit was there and that of itself was of value to the nation. We fancy that that day has gone and fear that nothing of equal value has been given the people in its place. There is no other term that so well describes the spirit, as Patriotism. It is just that spirit which can be renewed through reflection on the Declaration made that first Fourth in 1776.

MILTON JAMES

In the tragic death of Milton James, the County sustained the loss of a good and upright citizen and his many friends and family received a shocking bereavement. Mr. James was a life long resident of Princess Anne County and during his mature life, he was a successful farmer. For twelve years he served the county as a member of the Board of Supervisors from the Seaboard District, and was always a loyal member of the Democratic party. Those who knew him highly valued his companionship. In death they will cherish his memory.

As Others See It

TREE NAMED FOR LEE

In the past a number of the giant sequoia trees of California have been named for distinguished persons, but in recent years the policy of the Interior Department has been to deny further additions to the list.

Upon request of the Daughters of the Confederacy an exception has been made, however, and one of the finest specimens in the Sequoia National Park has been named for General Robert E. Lee. Besides being a tree of almost perfect symmetry, it is one of the few among these ancient sequoias that has not been scarred by fire.

Among other notables for whom California's big trees have been named are Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley and General Sherman. Some of the trees are more than 300 feet tall, and several are more than 30 feet in diameter. Although not the tallest, the General Sherman tree is the most massive of all, being 36½ feet in diameter and 279 feet high.

In Sequoia National Park, which consists of 161,597 acres, there are more than 1,600,000 trees, of which about 12,000 are more than 10 feet in diameter. The very largest are estimated to be not less than 3,000 years old.

It is a strange fact that the sequoia tree, named for Sequoyah, the illiterate half-breed American Indian genius who invented the Cherokee alphabet of 85 characters, is found only in the mountains of California. So far as is known, no trees comparable in size with the largest sequoias exist anywhere else in the world.

HERITAGE

So many times have I surprised your eyes
Fixed on me with a strange perplexity,
As if you saw some inner part of me,
That I had hidden in secure disguise.
Too many times I note your vague surprise,
Your glance that says: "Can this be really she?"
And I am horrified that you should see

A stranger—me—that haunts and terrifies.

And once again I know that I have writ Unwillingly, an end. I wonder too,
Why that strange other me can never sit

Content, as I have sat, with one like you.

No taint like this comes from my gentle hands;

Perhaps some dark ancestor understands.

Safety-First Idea Advanced for the Fourth of July; Fireworks Hazard Pointed Out

"The Fourth of July formerly as marked by its sad aftermath of injuries and death due to the careless use of toy cannon, high-powered fire crackers, so-called toy pistols, and fireworks. Public sentiment, aroused approximately two decades ago, was responsible for banning dangerous celebrating material in many cities and towns. Consequently, while the sale of such explosives is prohibited by local ordinances, rural sections are not affected by this type of legislation. The mushroom stand just outside city limits and at strategic points on main highways still offers this hazardous merchandise to celebrants, young and old. Consequently, to a consistently diminishing number, though still large in the aggregate, exposure to this danger continues to be 'very real,' states Dr. I. C. Riggin, State Health Commissioner.

"With a nation on wheels on the Fourth and the recreational opportunities that are thus available, the excuse for patriotic excitement by way of the dangerous use of gun powder no longer exists. It must not be forgotten that so far as high explosive crackers, toy cannon, pistols, and shooting blanks are concerned, blindness, severe bodily injuries, and maiming can and frequently do result from their careless use. In addition to the powder hazards, the Fourth July excursionist should be alive to the causative that can occur on the roads due to the negligent operation of his own or the other fellow's automobile.

"Therefore, in making plans for the Fourth, the safety-first idea should be included. Harmless cap pistols and properly supervised evening fireworks should satisfy children and grown-ups too, so far as this phase of the celebration is concerned.

"While there is no desire to dampen the ardor of Fourth of July celebrants, it is in line to emphasize the need of driving carefully in view of the peak load that highways carry on this particular holiday.

"In short, the Fourth is the nation's day. Celebration is the keynote. But the point is to celebrate in such a way that the dangers heretofore associated with this observance are eliminated so far as possible. Thoughtfulness and care will accomplish this highly to be desired result."

Missionary Rally At Baptist Church

On Monday evening July 11, at 8 o'clock the London Bridge Baptist Church will hold a Missionary rally to which all members of churches of Princess Anne County are invited to attend. The speaker of the occasion will be W. W. Enete, Missionary to South America and who is affectionately known to the people of that Mission as "Uncle Billy." When he went to Brazil in 1934 Mr. Enete took with him, as part of his equipment, the ability to entertain through ventriloquism and used this attainment to good advantage in gaining the popularity which is accorded him. The membership of the Royal Ambassadors is especially urged to be largely represented. There will be no charge.

BAYNE THEATRE PREVUES

"Treasure Island," the most widely read story of pirate adventure ever written, that has been transferred to the screen from the Robert Louis Stevenson book by M-G-M, will be shown here today and tomorrow, July 1 and 2. Wallace Beery, one of the most seasoned veterans in pictures, is playing Long John Silver, one-legged pirate with blood in his eye and friendship in his heart. Jackie Cooper plays the role of Jim Hawkins, boy adventurer and Lionel Barrymore portrays the immortal Billy Bones, henchman of Captain Flint, most bloodthirsty pirate of them all.

The sauciest escapade in the history of love, as gay as a Mardi Gras, with three delightful stars and merry with Gordon and Revel tunes, brings Don Ameche, Simon Simon and Robert Young to the Bayne Theatre on Sunday and Monday, July 3 and 4 in the 20th Century-Fox's comedy hit, "Josette." Ben Lehr and Joan Davis head the featured cast. "Josette" is the forthright story of two young stalwarts who try to prevent their father from falling for a showgirl, only to fall for her themselves. The appearance of two Josettes however, serves to make the story the maddest escapade in the history of love.

"Penitentiary," the latest filmization of Marvin Flavin's "The Criminal Code," will be shown on the local screen Tuesday, July 5. It is the story of a young man imprisoned for accidental homicide who later is placed in the dungeon for refusing to reveal the identity of a squealer's murderer. The cast is headed by Walter Connolly, Jean Parker, John Howard and Robert Barrat.

USED CAR SALES PLAN IN FORCE

R & G Used Cars Sold with 100% Satisfaction or 100% Refund

The extension of the written guarantee to used automobiles is a logical recognition of the important part the used car plays in new car merchandising, according to J. H. Bell of the Virginia Beach Motors, Inc., local Ford and Lincoln Zephyr dealer of Virginia Beach.

"When Ford initiated the 'Renewed and Guaranteed' protection for buyers of used cars from Ford dealers," Mr. Bell stated, "it was done to raise the basis of used car merchandising to a level comparable with that on which new automobiles are sold."

"The used car is the very heart of the new car dealer's business, because if he does not merchandise used cars successfully he certainly can't stay in the new car business."

"In order to help merchandise used cars successfully, the R & G warranty plan of used car selling was initiated. Any used automobile offered for sale bearing the R & G tag carries with it a true statement of the condition of the car. The major assemblies, including motor and axles, are specifically covered as to condition. It also carries with it a written guarantee of money back in case of dissatisfaction.

"In some respects the R & G warranty goes beyond that given with a new automobile, although naturally it does not extend over as long a period of time."

"It has been our experience that use of the R & G plan, which has been adopted by us, has been of great assistance to the buying public and to the dealer. It makes the used car an article of standard guaranteed merchandise, whose value is definitely known. The R & G plan is backed up by extensive advertising and the premises of Virginia Beach Motors, Inc., is easily identified by special R & G signs, such as the one reproduced below."

New Ford Dealers Plan Improvements

The new owners of Virginia Beach Motors, Inc., Ford Dealers at the Beach, are planning extensive improvements to the plant and equipment at the show rooms on 17th Street. In announcing the formal opening of the business the management pointed out that the new corporation had taken over the business several weeks ago, and that much had already been done in the way of changes and alterations.

J. H. Bell, Secretary and Treasurer of the corporation stated yesterday that his firm had purchased the business and goodwill of the former owners, and that plan were under way to redecorate the building throughout, and to install the very latest equipment, with a view to giving the best available service to the people of the Princess Anne County. It is planned to install new automatic gas pumps as soon as they arrive. It was said and in addition, the stock room has been completely rearranged and enlarged. The repair department has been put in the capable hands of C. C. McAllister, for 13 years with the Ford Motor Company Service School as instructor. A new service which will be available to the Beach for the first time is a fully equipped paint and body department which has been added.

A. L. Gresham, Kenneth Crusier, and Lucian E. Davis will compose the sales force of the new organization, and each of them have been busy during the past week informing their many friends of their new connection.

As an indication of the importance of the Ford assembly plant in the affairs of Tidewater, Mr. Bell pointed out that the latest figures available for the Norfolk Branch of the Ford Motor Company, showed that the total payroll to employees since its founding in 1925, through May 31st, had amounted to $23,027,900.20, and that 509,955 units had been assembled during the same period. Employment for that period had amounted to an average of 1,221 employees monthly since the start of operations. Taxes paid for that time amounted to $440,260.35, and the total freight on shipments of automobiles in the year 1937 amounted to $841,336.68.

the extent of police authority to be granted the new patrol, it being the idea of the Council, to leave the matter to the discretion of the guard on duty to maintain order on the beach, and the matter of playing baseball with a hard ball was likewise left to the individual guard to control as best he could without specific directions. The members were instructed to "control" the situation as best they could in the interest of safety when crowds were on the beach. The right was reserved in the ordinance to terminate the agreement at any time provided there was a failure to comply with the terms as set out.

New Members Provided For

At the present time the patrol is limited to members of that body with F. D. Braithwaite, Captain, George Barnes Lieutenant, and Don Selwell, Secretary. The committee is composed of John H. Henry, H. B. Braithwaite and Julian Powell.

Among other matters of general interest before the Council Monday night was a request on the part of Garrett Smith, supported by an extensively signed petition to the Council, not to change the present names of the streets in the Cavalier Shores district. This matter had come before the Council at an earlier meeting on the recommendation of the Zoning Board of Appeals, in which it was urged that the street names be changed and street numbers be substituted, conforming to the general plan in force elsewhere in the town. It was pointed out in the recommendation that such a change would eliminate confusion. However, the Council quickly decided to leave the matter of the street names as it now stands.

Laundry License Lowered

At the request of three Norfolk Laundries operating on the beach, action was taken to modify the license ordinance so far as it was applicable to out of town laundries. The Council changed the provision so that the fee charged for operating trucks in that business will be $25 for each truck instead of $75 as formerly. This change is not made in the case of local laundries. The same provision was made applicable to all linen supply companies as well as laundries. It seemed to be the consensus of the Council that the former charge was excessive, in view of the fact that the annual license of $125 for each firm doing business on the beach.

An appropriation of $100 was made to the Virginia Beach Public Library for the year 1938. A like sum has been appropriated in former years by the Council.

ZONING PASSED BY SUPERVISORS

the terms of the ordinance in the territory.

The Commissioner of Revenue was designated as the enforcement officer of the measure for the County, and violations of the provisions of the ordinance are punishable by the imposition of a fine of $25.00 to $1,000, or by confinement in jail not to exceed twelve months.

July 6th, was tentatively set as the day when the Circuit Court of Princess Anne County will hear a petition to appoint a Board of Zoning Appeals, which body will have authority under the terms of the ordinance to pass on all requests for building permits not definitely provided for in the zoning ordinance; such as hotels, clubs and other commercial enterprises.

Ackies Appointed

The Supervisors likewise appointed Paul W. Ackies as delinquent tax collector for the county and allowed as compensation for the services ten per cent for all collections made on tax bills for the years between 1916 and 1935. At the same time Joseph Osborn of Virginia Beach was appointed electrical inspector for the county with fees to be paid by the electrical contractors for his services.

A bid of $2,400 of E. P. Ives and Son for the collection of garbage in the territory north of the Town limits, extending to 158th Street, Cape Henry, not including the Government Reservation at Fort Story, was accepted by the Board of Supervisors and a contract awarded calling for daily collections during the summer months and collections three times weekly thereafter.

The Board was in receipt of a letter from the State Highway Department setting forth certain parts of roads which have been added to the secondary road system. A total of 2.48 miles of roadway was added as follows: Middle Precinct road, Route 629, distance, 77 of a mile; Route 615, east, 30 of a mile; 14th Street at Cape Henry, 10 of a mile; 3rd Street, 8th Street, 6th Street, 7th Street and 8th Street at East Ocean View from Prety Love Avenue to Route 60, and 8 of a mile from the Turner Buskey property line to the Virginia Beach Boulevard.

The family name of the English royal house was changed from Wethin to Windsor July 17, 1917.

HEALTH NOTES

IMAGINARY ILLNESSES

"One would consider that the average human being has sufficient real worries without borrowing imaginary ones. Yet there appears to be a fair proportion of persons who are not satisfied with the ordinary trials and tribulations that life presents but must reach out for the non-existent ones. Among them are those who 'enjoy' poor health," states Dr. I. C. Riggins, State Health Commissioner.

"For no good reason whatsoever such persons insist on super-heated indoor air in winter time, they pick and peck at fancy foods and to some extent give the plain, reliable and needed provender the go-by. They overload themselves with clothing in temperate and sometimes in warm weather. And to top it all, they are on friendly terms with all sorts of pills and other concoctions on the misguided theory that does of this and that are far superior to fresh air, good food, exercise and healthy living in general.

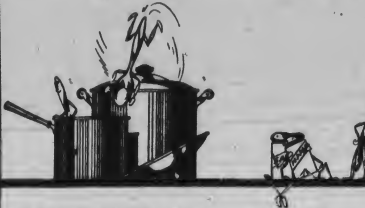

"Since one travels this old earth but once, it is too bad that any one is so foolish as to make a psychological invalid out of himself in this way. Obviously such unjustified fancies deny them of the real delight of a vigorous, zestful and vital existence to which they are justly entitled.

"Misguided persons of this kind do not realize that the enjoyment of poor health is a woeful substitute for that abundant and zestful vitality which can be attained usually through the application of some commonsense and a bit of discipline.

"Rest and restraint, of course, are indicated in the presence of actual disease, and when advised by the physician in his treatment of illness. Moreover, convalescence emphatically calls for some physical restraint and care. But that is a far cry from the imaginary illnesses of which more persons in varying degrees are victims than is generally suspected."

Carry on with the newspapers.

ROBINS NOT ONLY ONES WHO KNOW CHERRIES (AND OTHER FRUIT) ARE RIFE!

The blithe blossoms on the fruit trees all over the country remembered their hewing nods and are now fulfilling their fragrant promises with fruit—the like of which you never saw before (since last year)—

Not only the robins but the markets and recipe-makers have noticed that cherries will soon be ripe. Peaches praised by Eugene Field will follow them and the fruit of the little trees and bushes—from goose- to black- to rasp-will follow in succession. The orange and grapefruit trees had their turn at Floridian bloom long since and the fruit of their endeavor is now stored in cans, ready to mingle flavor with the seasonal summer varieties. The all year fruits continue to lend their basic virtues to the fleeting joys. In short, madame, if you like fruit and berries, these weeks are your "meat"—or "the berries!"

Enjoy them now in fruit cup and salad. Combine them with the canned all the year 'round; put them into jars for next winter. And let these fruited foods bloom on your table!

June-December Conserve
4 cups sour cherries
1/4 cup water
1 bottle fruit pectin
7 cups sugar
1 cup sliced Brazil nuts Pit cherries, place in large kettle and add water. Stir until mixture boils. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add sugar and mix sugar, salt, cocoa, hot freshly-made coffee and lemon juice and mixture boils rapidly. Add Brazil nuts and boil hard three minutes stirring constantly. Remove from fire. Stir in fruit pectin. Let cool 3 minutes. Skim, stir well, put in hot jelly glasses and cover with paraffin.

Strawberry Preserve
5 lbs. ripe strawberries
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 cup water
1 1/2 cups white karo

Cook sugar and karo and water until sugar is dissolved. Do not add more water. Add hulled and washed berries and bring slowly to boiling point. Remove from fire, cool and remove fruit from syrup. Cook syrup until quite thick. Add fruit and heat thoroughly, being careful not to let boil. Place in sterilized jars and seal at once.

Raspberry-Citrus Shortcake
Drain juice from one No. 2 can of Florida orange and grapefruit sections; combine 1 1/2 cups ripe raspberries, slightly crushed, with the citrus segments. Sweeten with powdered sugar, and serve on hot, crisp individual biscuit shortcakes.

Coffee Fruit Mold
1/4 cup cold water
1 package gelatine
1 cup strong hot coffee
1-3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cocoa
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup pasteurized dates, sliced
1/4 cup nuts, chopped
1/4 cup cream, whipped
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle gelatine on top. Add sugar, salt, cocoa, hot freshly-made coffee and lemon juice and stir until dissolved. Cool; when it begins to stiffen add dates and nuts. Fold in whipped cream and vanilla. Chill. When firm, unmold and serve with additional whipped cream and garnish with stiffed dates.

Banana Strawberry Ice Cream
1 cup mashed fully ripe bananas (2 to 3)
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup milk
1/2 cup sugar
2 egg whites
1 cup whipping cream
2 eggs yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup mashed strawberries

Mix together bananas and lemon juice. Add salt, milk and 1/4 cup of sugar and stir until well mixed. Beat egg whites until stiff; beat cream until thickened but not stiff. Beat egg yolks until thick. Combine bananas, egg whites, egg yolks, cream and vanilla. Mix remaining 1/4 cup sugar with strawberries and let stand. Turn banana mixture into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator. Freeze, with indicator at coldest setting, stirring every 30 minutes, adding strawberries during final stirring. About 1 quart—8 servings.

Biscuit Short Cake
2 1/2 cups pastry flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons sugar
1-3 cup masala
3/4 cup milk
Butter

Mix and sift dry ingredients and stir in masala quickly, with forks or knife. Stir in liquid quickly. Remove to well-floured board and knead a half-minute until dough is smooth. Divide dough in halves to fit pie pan and pat each half same shape and size to fit pan. Place one layer in pan, butter slightly, and place other layer on top of first. Bake fifteen to twenty minutes in hot oven (450° F.). Split and cover with raspberry-citrus combination. Place other crust on top and cover with additional fruit.

Cape Henry Church Opens To The Public

"The Catholic Church, situated on 143rd Street, Cape Henry, is now opened to the public and mass will be said there every Sunday of the summer, alternately by the Rev. F. P. Brennan and Rev. Francis Blakely. The hour of service is 9 o'clock.

This church is a legacy of the late Miss Ella Wood, and has been unused for some years due to the transition of many catholic people from Cape Henry.

Last Sunday, however, when the first mass was celebrated, the attendance was very good and is expected to improve as its existence is made known to all.

It is dedicated to the most recent of saints: St. Theresa, "the Little Flower", born on January 2nd, 1845 and departed this life 1897.

Dodder Menace To Lespedeza Fields

Pasturing during the summer months is the best means of controlling dodder, or love vine, if it has become established in lespedeza fields of the Southeastern states, says County Agent H. W. Oglin. Dodder is a serious menace, especially where farmers are growing lespedeza for seed, or for hay.

Mr. Oglin points out, however, that the surest way to fight this weed is to plant lespedeza seed that is known to be free of dodder. This means that growers should not harvest seed from fields that are heavily infested with dodder.

Although starting from seed, dodder soon attaches its tentacle-like vine to other plants and thereafter lives the life of a true parasite. A single plant may produce as many as 3,000 seeds which, of course, if harvested with lespedeza makes the seed of the legume dangerous to use. The pale yellow or orange-colored vine appears in the summer and sometimes attaches itself to wild plants, says Mr. Oglin. However, the vine seems to have a particular liking for legumes.

Under the State seed law, dodder is a noxious weed. Farmers purchasing lespedeza seed should note the noxious-weed content on the label. Because of its size and shape, dodder is difficult to screen out of lespedeza seed.

Summer Pointers On Egg Production

Summer eggs usually sell on a rising market following the low point in spring, says Marshall E. Coe of the Virginia agricultural extension division, who suggests that flock owners check on their feeding program to insure as many eggs as possible during the summer. The usual rise in egg prices is expected to take place this summer.

Mr. Coe calls attention to a four-point program for summer feeding offered by H. W. Titus, poultry specialist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. County agents and the extension service will help to plan economical summer rations based on the feeds available. The recommendations from Titus are general suggestions on methods:

One: If the hens have been laying well on the diet they have been getting this spring (the average hen in the Virginia farm flock demonstration laid 18.85 eggs in May, with the 10 high hens laying between 21 and 26), do not risk changing the diet now. Continue feeding the same diet and do not turn them loose to pick up their living without the supplementary feed that will keep them laying well. If they have not been laying well, improve the ration.

Two: If they are laying well, continue the same plan of feeding and management; if not, improve the system. If the hens have been getting feed at certain hours, continue feeding at these same hours.

Three: If the hens are on an all-mash diet, give them a little more than they will clean up. Then clean up the hoppers and feed the surplus to non-layers before it sets stale or spoils. The layers should have first chance at a full feed.

Four: Keep up the total protein in the diet. Laying hens need a diet with 16 to 17 percent protein in summer.

John B. Dey Elected Director of T. A. A.

At the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Tidewater Automobile Association, held Thursday night, June 23rd, at the Elliott Hotel, in Suffolk, John B. Dey, prominent truck farmer of Princess Anne County, was re-elected a director of the Tidewater Automobile Association, to represent the Princess Anne area.

Mr. Dey, as well as all of the Officers and Directors, serves without any compensation whatsoever, the T. A. A. being a civic, non-profit organization.

G. Leslie Hall was re-elected president for the seventh consecutive term.

Improvement In Welfare Report

In the report to the Board of Supervisors of Princess Anne County, Mrs. F. V. Bailey, Superintendent of the Department of Public Welfare, showed that the total case load handled by the department was nearly 20% less for the month of May, than for the preceding month. With 257 cases coming under the care of the department in May, as against 305 in April of this year. The report showed a gratifying falling off of those who were in the need of assistance. No explanation of the shrinkage was made in the report but it is assumed that seasonal employment, found in the strawberry harvest and potato digging, and other farm labor, provided the employment resulting in the decrease in demands for assistance.

Mrs. Bailey's report showed that of the total number applying for aid, the unemployed group, composed of widows with young children, sick cases, both chronic and temporary numbered 108, or 40% of the case load, which required an expenditure of $481. There were 92 families in the employable group who received assistance during the month, and two white and one negro were given emergency assistance. Of the number 51 white persons and 38 negroes received services in the nature of home visits and advice.

Persons over 65 years of age, classified as the "old age group", composed 16% of the welfare cases in the county and received assistance of $6.00 each, on the average. There were 45 such cases. The Welfare report showed that there were 9 blind persons receiving assistance and eleven "dependent children", who made up the remainder of the 257 cases in the county.

Butt, has been largely attended by young people of the community, according to those in charge of the work. The progress and interest shown in the undertaking has been very gratifying to the leaders and the teachers alike. The Rev. W. J. Meade, pastor, has conducted worship period daily and has given instructive talks for the junior and intermediate classes on religious subjects.

This evening at 8 o'clock the sessions of the school will close with an interesting program consisting of demonstrations of the work done by the scholars of the various departments. The general public is extended an invitation to attend.

New Phone Directory Now Being Delivered

The new issue of the Virginia Beach telephone directory is being delivered this week to subscribers in this area, according to an announcement just made by N. H. Duval, manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia here.

The cover on the new directory features a symbolic figure, "The Spirit of Communication," which since 1916 has croned the tower of the headquarters building of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in New York City.

Subscribers are requested by Mr. Duval to be careful to remove personal papers from their directories before discarding them. Because of many changes in directories, it is urged that all old directories either be turned in or destroyed when the new book is delivered.

RUPTURE SHIELD EXPERT HERE

H. M. SHEVNAN, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Monticello Hotel, Norfolk Friday and Saturday, only July 8 and 9, from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Mr. Shevnan says: The Zoetie Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, affecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly but increase the circulation, strengthen the weakened parts, thereby closes the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume no matter the size or location. A nationally known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments.

Mr. Shevnan will be glad to demonstrate without charge. Add. 6441 N. Richmond St., Chicago. For 15 years assistant to F. H. Seeley, famous rupture expert of Chicago.

Girl Scout Cookie Sale Begins Today

Ladies and Girls of Community will canvass town in effort to raise funds for Recreation Center

With the hope of raising funds for the Girl's Scout recreation center at Oceana, the members of that organization, mothers of Scouts, the Captain and other officers of troops of the County will combine efforts in a two-day cookie sale beginning today. Each tasty cookie bears the emblem of scouting and both the chocolate and vanilla flavors will please the purchaser, who in turn will aid in the advancement of a worthy movement among the girls of the County.

The cookie sale has the hearty endorsement of Mayor Roy Smith. It was learned today, and Mrs. George Boush, chairman of the committee on arrangements and members of the committee have arranged with various hotels on the Beach to serve the cookies to guests at meal time on Fridays and Saturday of this week. Headquarters for the two days sale will be maintained in Roland Court on 17th Street.

First Troop at Oceana
The Girl Scouts of Princess Anne County have been organized for a number of years, and one of the first troops was formed in Oceana as early as 1916. At that time Mrs. Boush was captain of the troop. That was when headquarters of the national organization was in Washington, D. C. prior to its removal to New York City where it is today.

The committee of members, the captains and lieutenants of the troops and others in charge of arrangements are as follows: Mrs. Walter Mitchell, Mrs. Milton Miller, Mrs. John Cole, Mrs. Henry Woodhouse, Mrs. M. H. Todd, Mrs. Roy Jackson, Mrs. H. G. Moore, Mrs. A. L. Grimes, Mrs. G. R. Brown, Dr. Cora Z. Corpening, Mrs. Robert Braithwaite, Mrs. Lee Pender, Mrs. J. Kennedy, Mrs. Miss Catherine Fokett, Mrs. N. A. Nicholson, Mrs. Tully Williams, Miss Faye Icard, Mrs. Ralph Midgett, Mrs. W. Culpepper, Mrs. R. G. de Frees, Miss Alice de Frees, Miss Elizabeth de Witt, Mrs. Emmet Kyle, and Mrs. William Holmes Davis Jr.

POULTRY CONTEST WINNER

Competing against 4-H members from all over the United States, Albert Christopher, 18 years old, Feeding Hills, Mass., won a national scholarship contest conducted by a leading poultry magazine, which now will help him with the expenses of attending college.

Albert started in the 4-H poultry club with 60 chickens. Today he owns a laying house 30x50 feet in size, in 1937 raised 6,000 chicks, retailed 4,500 broilers and 10,000 dozen eggs.

DEAL REPLIES TO HAMILTON STORY

who have been left on a limb are apt to feel, rightfully or wrongfully, that their confidence has been misplaced. Mr. Deal makes no charge in this direction. No promises were made to him nor does he, of his own knowledge, know of any that were made to any one else. Mr. Hamilton's paper and that must be Mr. Hamilton, suggested certain reasons for these changes of heart, first, that he "refused in 1937 to come out and take part in behalf of the Citizens League candidates for the constitutional offices of Norfolk." Mr. Hamilton knows or ought to know that the Citizens Democratic League was not existent in 1936, therefore, he can truthfully say that he made no such promise to the league. There are some, however, who seemed to think that there were implied, if not direct promises to those who supported him, that in turn he would, if elected, be of assistance to them in local elections. Unless there were some ground for this assumption, why did Mr. Hamilton voluntarily mention the matter and then defend his silence. In 1937 Mr. Deal does not pretend to know any thing about this matter, but he does recall that in 1936 he was importuned to support Mr. Hamilton and the argument was used that if elected, Mr. Hamilton would be of great help in the coming local elections.

"Every Thing Lovely"
Some of those advancing the idea must have had reason for the expectation. Mr. Deal was not one of those to believe in such a fiction. He thought he foresaw just what happened, viz.: That after being elected he and Senator Byrd, between whom previously a bitter political warfare had existed, met, fell upon each others necks and wept because of their sins, one against the other. After this "every thing was lovely and the goose hung high." The sequel to this event being that harmony sprang up to a greater or less degree with the Norfolk city powers and Mr. Hamilton, the former of which was so disastrously defeated on June 14th, must have largely through the intransigence of the Citizens Democratic League. This is history and needs no elaboration, suffice it to say, it is Mr. Shaffer would have been elected natural that Mr. Hamilton or Mr. Shaffer would have been elected to have had the endorsement of the League however much some may attempt to ridicule it and its personnel, it is a force which it is apparent, must be reckoned with.

Mr. Hamilton's paper seems to have had a rather garbled and contradictory account of the League proceedings on Thursday evening, (quote) "Leadership headed by Joseph T. Deal" etc. "brought about a FIXED meeting endorsement by the Citizens League."

of Colgate Darden." "The meeting almost broke up in confusion" says Mr. Hamilton's paper. "J. T. Deal satirized once to walk out because his will, it was said, could not be supreme and when it looked as if his desire to have Darden endorsed by those present would not carry."

Deal Explains Position
If J. T. Deal were the leader and had fixed the meeting in the interest of Darden, (as stated by Mr. Hamilton's paper) why should he walk out through fear of the defeat of his purpose? He knew that a majority of those present were Darden supporters and so did every one else, he did not have to fix any thing, he knew his rights and had no intention of walking out. The publicity Committee of the League, by agreement, reports as to its proceedings, therefore, we shall not deal with that matter. Mr. Deal is dealing with his paper relative to him. One other comment, Mr. Hamilton's paper claimed, Mr. Deal was reported to have said, that in the event of Darden's defeat, he would oppose Mr. Hamilton at the succeeding election.

Mr. Deal will not deny making such a statement though he does not recall making it definitely. Much water will pass under the bridge within the next two years. But what if Mr. Deal did make such a statement? Would it have been a breach of faith to any one? Would he not be within his rights so to do? Mr. Hamilton has no monopoly of the job. Mr. Deal is not an issue in this campaign except insofar as Mr. Hamilton so desires, he is not going to run from any position that he may take. The only legitimate issues, as Mr. Deal views the situation, are those in the platforms of the candidates. Mr. Deal expects to support Mr. Darden's candidacy even though it may offend Mr. Hamilton, because he thinks that Mr. Darden is better equipped to represent the interest of the Second District in which he has a profound interest.

houses at the Beach have reservations on hand which assure the usual capacity crowd over the Fourth, and with a three-day holiday in view, it is fully expected that every nook and cranny will be occupied before the end of the parade of arrivals which has already set in. Inquiry at many of the prominent hotels disclosed the fact that they have long lists of reservations on hand, and all expect to be filled for the Fourth. If the prospects mature as expected this holiday should prove to be the "biggest ever" because of the increased facilities which have been afforded through building and enlargement of accommodations. Banks Debunks Portsmouth Star In Initial Radio Address; Hamilton's Claims Exploded

Explains and Justifies Support of Hon. Colgate W. Darden, Jr., for Congress

Appearing before you as I do now an ardent advocate and supporter of the candidacy of Hon. Colgate W. Darden, Jr. for Congress will doubtless be a very great surprise to the people of this District and calls for explanation. Mr. Darden had no more vigorous opponent in his last campaign than myself. I then threw every ounce of power I possessed to Norman R. Hamilton who publicly acknowledged on several occasions during and after the campaign that my services constituted a major factor in his campaign and his resultant victory.

There are some among you may argue that my position in this campaign is inconsistent, that the charge of political betrayal, repudiation, and about-change that I am now making against Norman R. Hamilton, are equally applicable to myself.

Deserted a Deserter

Now, my friends, I here wish to definitely dispose of all such charges of apostasy or disloyalty. I have never wavered or changed in my attitude towards Mr. Roosevelt and the policies of his administration. The reproach and repudiation of change must be laid wholly and exclusively against Norman Hamilton. My change consisted only in deserting a deserter. I have not changed. It is our Representative who did the Quick Change act and left me and all his faithful supporters with no alternative but to change over to Mr. Darden, the only man in all this District who can and will defeat him.

Colgate W. Darden, Jr. is now conducting a "come back" campaign and there are overwhelming reasons why you voters of the 2nd District should see to it that it is a success. This come back has been made because of the merits of the candidate, his sterling character, his undeviating loyalty to principles and to persons.

Two years ago I fought this man bitterly. No doubt some of the things I then said will be brought up against me now in a desperate attempt to stave off the defeat of Norman Hamilton. I accept the risk cheerfully. I have anticipated this and I think that the intelligence of the electorate will apply the appraisal and discount equation. For after all, it is not B. A. Banks who is opposing Norman R. Hamilton for a seat in Congress. I am in this campaign for specific and definite reasons. 1st. To elect Colgate Darden; 2nd. To expose the political betrayals and broken promises of

SPORTS FEATURE WEEK'S PROGRAM

Sailing, Riding, Golf and Boxing Take the Spot Light for Coming Week

BOAT RACES SUNDAY

Chamber of Commerce Trophy to be Awarded Winner; Tennis Tournament on Cavalier Courts

Golf, riding, sailing and boxing competitions will feature the sports program offered to vacationists at Virginia Beach during the coming week.

The second annual series of Sunday afternoon Jumping Jamborees by thoroughbred horses, with both adult and junior riders up, will be inaugurated on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, with about 30 entries in the Cavalier show ring. A silver trophy will be awarded the winner each Sunday. The object of the jamborees is not only to determine jumping supremacy but also to develop competent judges, who can be called upon from time to time to judge local horse shows and other equestrian events that are constantly being staged in this hope-conscious country.

New features will be added to the jamboree program this season, among them the Obedience and Kindness Tests, when the rider will be alone in the ring with the horse to demonstrate what can be done in the way of control by kindness.

Golf Tournament Sunday

A blind golf tournament also is scheduled for Sunday at the Cavalier Country Club. More than one hundred members of the cottage colony and hotel guests have been registered for the competition.

Next Wednesday night, in the sports arena at the foot of Twenty-Third Street, another series of boxing bouts will be presented to the followers of fistiana. In the main 10-round bout, Irish Eddie Dunne, of New York City, will meet Ray Ingram, of Washington. Both lightweights have given ample evidence of their prowess in the ring, and the bout should be one of the best staged to date.

The 8-round semi-final match will bring together Red Lewis, of Richmond, and Hobo Williams, of Washington. One other 6-round bout and two 4-round matches will complete next Wednesday's card.

Moat Boat Races

On Sunday afternoon, July 17, the first annual sailboat regatta, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, will be staged on the waters of Linkhorn Bay. More than fifty sailboats of the moat class will compete in this initial competition, with a handsome trophy, donated by the Chamber of Commerce, the prize award for the afternoon's sailing. A committee composed of R. B. Taylor, Roland G. Eaton, and W. H. Terry, Jr., is in charge of arrangements. All moat boats in this vicinity are eligible to compete without entry charge. Address R. B. Taylor, Box 5, for entry blanks.

The three-lap course will begin and end in front of the Cavalier Country Club, where arrangements have been made to take care of a large gallery. Girls as well as boys will compete in this event, with the contestants representing many eastern cities. Among those who will compete Institute Program Planned At V. P. I.

Anniversary of Founding of Institute of Rural Affairs to be Held at Blacksburg, July 26-28

The tenth anniversary of the Institute of Rural Affairs and the fifteenth anniversary of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station will be part of this year's Institute program, to be held at V. P. I. July 26-28. Dr. John R. Hutcheson, director of the Virginia Agricultural Extension Division, has announced. The theme this year will be "Planning For Rural Living."

Evening sessions of the Institute feature an address by Governor James H. Price, and the presentation of Certificates of Merit to two outstanding Virginia farmers by Dr. Julian A. Burruss, president of V. P. I. The Wednesday evening session brings an address entitled, "The Place of the Farm Home in Planning for Rural Living," by Mrs. Raymond Sayre, Ackworth, Iowa. Thursday evening, Mr. Fred C. Elford will speak on "The World's Poultry Congress."

In place of the customary two-section schedule for morning sessions, this year's program carries three sections of concurrent discussions. Some of the general topics to be considered are, research work in planning for rural living, land use planning, family living, the relationship of farm life to civilization, and rural, social and educational problems.

Eight afternoon sessions, under the auspices of the State Farmers' Institute and the State Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs, will offer a number of discussions by extension, college and state department specialists. Homemakers will consider fabrics of fashion, handicrafts, and the Farm Security Program. Those interested in wildlife will find discussions on National Parks and wildlife restoration. The vegetable section will discuss recent developments in production marketing of truck crops. Fertilizers and experimental work in crops will be considered in the agronomy section. And current problems in animal, poultry, dairy products, and fruit production are subjects for the other sections.

SMITH OUTLINES WORKERS STATUS

Employers Told Men Must Accept Seasonal Employment if offered: Exceptions Noted

With the approach of the summer season in which there are opportunities for seasonal employment for WPA workers, William A. Smith, State WPA Administrator, today called attention to a misunderstanding on the part of some seasonal employers as to the status of WPA workers to whom they may offer, or have offered employment.

First, as to the fact that the Emergency Act makes it practically mandatory that WPA workers accept private employment under reasonable working conditions, Mr. Smith stated that a certified person employed upon a work project shall be expected to accept private employment when offered, whether of a permanent or temporary nature, provided that (1) the work is suitable to his training and experience, (2) the employment provides reasonable working conditions, and (3) the work provides a full time job at a standard prevailing rate of pay.

Smith Explains Status

"I am making public the status of WPA employees who may accept or be offered private employment at this time owing to the fact it has come to my attention that in some localities when we have closed down projects to meet the demand of private employers that WPA workers, after reporting for work, have often been told to wait several days before going to work, or have been given work only for a portion of a day. Under such conditions it should be patent to the employer and the public that the WPA worker suffers unnecessarily and does not receive compensation for the same length of service as he receives or should receive under the Works Progress Administration.

"Wherever and whenever seasonal employment has been prevalent, the Works Progress Administration in Virginia has made every effort to cooperate with private employers and will continue

Zoning Board Will Hear Applications

Two applications will be heard by the Virginia Beach Board of Zoning Appeals on Monday night at a meeting to be held in the Roland Court Building at 8 p. m.

One is an application presented by Rudolph, Cooke & Van Leeuwen, Architects, for a permit to erect a gasoline filling station of the northeast corner of 17th Street and Baltic Avenue. The other application is made by Mrs. Virginia M. Hornthal, who plans to build a two family residence on the southeast corner of 36th Street and Pacific Avenue.

World Needs Basis For Understanding

Educator Declares It Wonder That People Manage at All; Must Cooperate or Perish

Unless men find some way of understanding each other, their boasted civilization is doomed, and war with all its modern refinements will settle that question decisively. So concludes Hubert Herring, executive director of the Committee on Cultural Relations with Latin America, in the current Rotarian Magazine.

"Here we are, two billion strong, increasing at the rate of 30 million each year," he observes, "and living on Iowa farms, in Tokyo tenements, on Russian steppes, on Argentine plains, in African jungles, in Park Avenue apartments. We don't get along very well together."

While there is nothing new about misunderstandings between men, there are no longer the cozy family affairs that once were, says the author. Today, he finds, they are rooted deep in the dogma of superiority, varying languages, differing customs, historic grievances, and economic conflicts. Improved transportation and communication, he adds, have buddied peoples together, thereby accentuating the possibilities of confusion and controversy.

At Each Other

"The wonder is not that the peoples of the earth get along so badly together, but, rather, that they manage at all," Author Herring declares. "History, biology, and evolution have heaped us together on this relatively inconspicuous planet. We speak 2,792 different languages. We live in some 70 separate nations, each with its pride, its history, its flag. We are cut off by lines of custom, habit, and religion. We are divided by historic enmities, the issues of which are obscured by time. And we are snapping at each other."

"It would require a brain trust with Albert Einstein, Sigmund Freud, Charles A. Beard, William James, and H. G. Wells to hunt out all the reasons why we of this cantankerous human race do not get along more amicably," believes this educator. Yet, he concludes, men are confronted today with a choice between two possibilities—to understand or misunderstand, to cooperate or perish.

Bank of Commerce Installs New Vault

Assures Beach and County Patrons of Every Modern Banking Facility

It was announced last week that safe deposit boxes have been installed at the Virginia Beach branch of the National Bank of Commerce for the convenience and protection of the patrons of that institution. The most modern facilities for the safe keeping of valuable possessions in the new vault are now available to the people of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County for the first time. This service has long been needed, and the announcement met with an enthusiastic reception from the people of the community.

Fair Weather and Three-day Weekend Bring Multitude to This Resort

SWIMMING ROOM ONLY

No Accidents Mar Pleasures; Visitors In Traffic Jams; Shops Did Thriving Business

The S. R. O. (Swimming Room Only) sign flew over Virginia Beach last weekend as a consequence of the unprecedented throngs of vacationists that flocked here to celebrate the Independence Day weekend and to participate in the elaborate sports and entertainment program designed for the three-day holiday. Conservative estimates placed the number of visitors on the Beach on Sunday and Monday at between 75,000 and 100,000, easily the largest crowd ever to take advantage of local facilities.

Early last week the ocean-front hotels and cottages began filling with incoming guests and by Friday night there were few available rooms and these filled quickly on Saturday morning. Threats of rain—which did not materialize—drove some few visitors away, and the rooms so vacated were promptly taken by other new arrivals. Tourist camps, apartments, private homes were filled to overflowing on Sunday night, and many visitors who did not make reservations slept in their cars, on the beach or formed impromptu parties that kept awake throughout the night.

Crowded Beach

When the clouds cleared away on Saturday and the sun broke through to shine unintermittently for the balance of the weekend, all and sundry took to the beach, which presented a picture of activity such as seldom has been seen. Because of the wind, waves were heavier than usual, but the alertness of the newly-organized Beach Patrol made the surf safe for the bathers, and no accident occurred.

Long lines of traffic streamed into the town over all available roads, continuing long into the night. City policemen on the force that could be spared from other routines were assigned to traffic duty and, because of the thoroughness with which they handled their assignments, there was a minimum of delay and an absence of accidents. Many visitors commented favorably upon the work of the police department and the beach patrol.

Special entertainment features brought here from Broadway were presented at the Cavalier, Terrace and Surf beach clubs and at the Dunes Club, all of which were filled to capacity. Special dances at Seaside Park and the New Ocean Casino provided entertainment for thousands more. Hotel kitchens and local grocers reported heavy demands for the foods most popular at beach parties, while still other enthusiastic vacationists sought to catch the fish that were scheduled for midnight suppers.

Horse Show Featured

Swimming parties and dances at the water's edge were on many schedules, and several thousand devotees of the horse took time to witness the All-Junior Cavalier Horse Show on Sunday afternoon, the most successful contest ever sponsored for children in the local ring. This

THE ZIMMERMAN BOOST OF REPRESENTATIVE HAMILTON

Man From Missouri Shows 'Em! If any doubt existed of the self-sufficiency and all-sufficiency of the Hon. Norman Hamilton in the gentle art of self-glorification after reading the immense mass of matter he wrote and published about himself in his Portsmouth Star of June 26th, that doubt can no longer exist in the light of his subsequent performances in this line.

The latest Hamilton boost fell like a cloud-burst on astonished Tidewater Virginia, leading many to recall the Shakespearean quotation—

"Can such things be and overcome us like a sum-m'ring cloud, without our special wonder."

It consisted first of some seventy thousand copies of a speech by the Hon. Orville Zimmerman of Missouri from the Congressional Record of June 8th, delivered in Congress and its five thousand words printed in the Record, for no other purpose than to extol the Hon. Norman Hamilton and aid him in his attempt to retain his seat in Congress.

This pamphlet had nothing whatever to do with either National or District affairs. It concerned nobody and nothing except the Hon. Norman Hamilton. No one could be more personal. It was Hamilton's private business unapologetically simple, and yet our go-getter Representative had the unblushing temerity to force this mass of inane matter into the Government record and mail it under government frank to the voters of his District. At regular postal rates this official boost of the Hon. Norman Hamilton would have cost him quite $2,500.00! If the cost of this publication were traced through all its ramifications—expensive Congressional train, printing, mailing, etc. It would easily sum up to six figures. Norman Hamilton did not hesitate to impose this great expense upon the tax-payers of the nation for the sole purpose of his own exploitation. This incident, revealed to an intelligent electorate, should be sufficient alone to defeat him. A Congressman has privileges but there is a code of ethics which forbids abuses of this character. Everyone of the 435 members of Congress have the same privileges as the Hon. Norman R. Hamilton of the 2nd District of Virginia; but if everyone of them were to perpetrate so gross an abuse of privilege as Norman R. Hamilton has done in this instance, the entire session of Congress would be given over exclusively to insane pranks of members and the 'cost would run into hundreds of millions of dollars. Knows this, Hon. N. R. Hamilton knows this, or whether he does not know it, he is equally culpable. It reveals him as totally unfit to promote the interest and legitimate business of his nation and his constituency. If the latter realize this they will not return him to Congress to engage in more such tom-foolery.

In the Portsmouth Star of July 3rd, the Congressional Record section pertaining to the Hon. N. R. Hamilton is reprinted in full. In fact the issue is again full of N. R. Hamilton. The only section where he should appear but does not is the comic section. He should appear in the comic strips because of his conspiracy and association with the Hon. Zimmerman of Missouri. The comic text should read—Send Hamilton back to Congress because Zimmerman shows 'em why—he's from Missouri! There is strong suspicion in many quarters that Hamilton wrote the Zimmerman show—em jubilee, Hallelujah boost of Norman Hamilton. It contains much of the halting ambiguous phraseology of the Portsmouth Star editorials written by Norman Hamilton. How characteristic is this passage from the Missouri boost: "His warm and charming personality has been felt through this (Congress) body. Unhindered he arrived but quickly did he make his impression."

It is hardly conceivable that the intelligence of this district could believe that the dignity of this great nation is promoted, or the interests of a constituency advanced, by taking up the time of Congress and filling the pages of its Record with such ridiculous exhibitions of ego-mania.

Never before to such an amazing extent has this happened in the Congress of the U. S., and all Virginians who have pride in the ethical and scholarly traditions of this old and respected State should guard against its recurrence by sending Norman R. Hamilton back to his newspaper office in Portsmouth.

PEACE AND VICTORY
On the 75th anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, the President of the United States in dedicating a monument on the battle field, a bekon light, symbol of "peace eternal", said, "We are near to winning another conflict as fundamental as Lincoln's. With this glorious idea of endless peace the entire world is in accord. Both that part which clings by a slender thread to peace and the nations which are ravaged by war, will find a common ground on which all can meet in this hope of eternal peace, but the accomplishment of the lofty desire is quite another matter. Our people at least stand in mind in the hope of its attainment."

With the second phase of this statement, "we are near to winning" over the political and economic problems of the day, many leaders will be skeptical until such time as there is further evidence of a turn in the affairs of country. True it is there are signs of a let up in the cruel hardships and devastating consequences of the depression, faint signs as yet it is true, but here again every one will be found hoping, and praying that the end has come. However, with the picture fresh in mind of the artificial means invoked by the National Government to bring about this turn of affairs, there will be many who will prefer to wait further evidence that the victory has been won and in the light of the false starts toward improvement which we have witnessed in the past, vast numbers will remain unconvinced until the President's prophecy is proven by lasting results. The hope of such an end is nationwide and people of every walk of life will welcome its attainment. If it turns out to be true, the memory of the President's words of prophecy will echo down the years, side by side with those of Lincoln in his immortal address delivered on the same battle field 75 years ago.

This much is certain, the eternal peace motive will never be attained so long as the uncertainty in political affairs combine with uncertainty in economic affairs to cause uneasiness and strife among nations and within nations. The President must first make good on his economic victory before the purpose for which the monument stands can be attained. Until then "eternal peace" remains a fantastic hope.

TREE OF LIFE

Deep as woman, broad as man And far as roots no thought can span Of the Tree of Life whose leaves we are.

High as heaven, wide as hell And far ahead as our kindest plan, The present is bought no fear can quell Of the Eden Tree whose fruit is man.

But deep as God and broad as good And near as the faith of a little child, The future draws the azure hood On the Calvary Tree of the Reconciled.

SONNET

I wonder, darling, if there does not wear Something from love, with love's so daily use, If in the sweetness of his vigorous juice Time's bitter-finger dips not here and there?

What thing of earthly growth it self can bear Above its nature, overrule abuse, And, like the marvel of the widow's curse, Freshen its taint, and all its loss repair?

I can but wonder at the faithful heart That makes thy face so joyous in my sight, And fills each moment with a new delight.

I can but wonder at the shades that start Across thy features as we stand to-night, With lips thus clinging, in the act to part.

COMPANIONED

Death stood upon the threshold yesterday And bent so near that I could see his eyes Shining upon me in the happy way Of one who brings a pleasurable surprise.

Just so my father used to come to me When I was hurt, and take me on his knees And hold me close to him, and let me see His watch, his silver pencil, and his keys.

I shall not be afraid again, nor sad; Death was so like my father when he smiled That I shall question, young again and glad—"What have you in your pockets for a child?"

MY WEDDING GOWN

A white gown—that was never worn,— But in its dainty folds, So neatly packed away through years, Your memory it holds.

For long ago we talked of June; Beside me you would stand; A shower bouquet; soft melodies; And you would hold my hand.

It seemed our dreams were coming true: A finished wedding dress,— Embellished by the sheerest veil Of filmy loveliness.

But fate decreed our plans must change, Death shattered all our schemes,— The world thinks I forgot; but it knows nought about my dreams.

Though I became another's wife, Alone—I touch the lace That trims my unworn wedding gown,— And visualize your face! —LYLA MYERS

X-Cerpts From The News

Blustering Benito Mussolini declared in a speech to the Italian People that Italy would not have bought wheat from "the so called Democracies", even if the bread necessary for life were lacking . . . So that is what he tells the people, but it doesn't ring true. Perhaps he means that he would rather take what he needs from some weak defenseless country than buy from Democracies.

We see where the Princess Anne Post 113 of the American Legion has been given an old naval landing gun to put in front of their new headquarters on 18th Street. Had the Naval Ordnance Department seen fit to furnish something of World War significance we think it would have been much more appropriate and more of a compliment to Post 113.

The recent rise in prices of whiskey put in effect on July 1, by the ABC stores to offset a 25 cent per gallon increase in the Federal Tax on that product, does that much and then some. A 3 cent increase per pint would have covered the additional tax, but the Board has seen fit to add 10 cents in most instances and 5 cents in others. This makes an item of from 40 cents to 80 cents which has been added to compensate for a tax of 25 cents. That this is short sighted policy goes without saying. They have played into the hands of those who charge that the state is in the liquor business for profit, and have laid the foundation for the return of the bootlegger as a competitor for those profits. Far better had they absorbed the tax and curtailed their huge revenue to that extent, than to have left themselves open to criticism.

France now plans to do away with Devils Island the penal colony which has long been the place of punishment of the hardened criminals from that country. It will be recalled as the scene of confinement of Captain Dreyfus who was sentenced to life imprisonment in that lonely spot, for an act of treason for which he was later completely exonerated, and still later promoted in the armed forces of his country. Many have been the stories of hardship and cruelty visited on those unfortunate enough to be confined there, and in this day of enlightenment, we feel that the determination to abandon the place argues well for a better understanding of the problems of punishment under the law. In our opinion the methods used at Devils Island have been tried and found wanting.

In the death of Susanne Lenglen the sports world has lost one of its most picturesque figures. Back in the early twenties when she dominated the women's tennis matches, there were few who could extend her at her chosen game. She is credited with having raised the standard of play among women to new heights, and those who know the game will agree that we have not seen her equal since, unless perhaps Helen Will Moody attained to that perfection when she was at her best. There have been no others who could be mentioned as comparable.

It is a beautiful thing to contemplate, this spirit of brotherhood as enacted by the veterans of the Blue and Grey, former enemies, on the battlefield at Gettysburg. The two thousand survivors of the War Between the States who have gathered there to cement their friendship, and dedicate a monument as a symbol of eternal peace, have in large measure compensated for the bitterness and enmities of the past, and furnished an example to their sons, grandsons and great grandsons which they could well follow in their daily lives. Forgiveness—one of the finest of human virtues—has been set out before the people in a striking display. The old veterans, have by their actions, set their country men a noble example.

Last year (1937) the Fourth of July celebration took a toll of 563 lives, whereas this year the 162nd anniversary of our independence was marked by 513 fatalities in the three day holiday. Of this number 263 was the result of motor accidents alone and 139 represented drownings. As huge as are the figures they are an improvement over the previous year, and to that extent we can be thankful. A matter about which people of Virginia Beach can be particularly proud is the fact that, with larger crowds than ever before, we were fortunate enough to escape without a single fatal incident to mar the celebration. The people and the authorities are to be congratulated.

The five and ten Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, has come to the parting of the ways with her second husband Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow. He is said to be asking $5,000,000, as the price of his willingness to accede to her wishes, thus displaying a fine sense of the way nickles and dimes mount up to huge sums, and showing the latest example of how these titled beaux take the money of this country for the proverbial ride when they enter into matrimony.

Our idea of a news story which ranks high in the "Believe It Or Not" type of item appearing in the press this week, is one emanating from the Institute of Public Affairs being conducted at the University. On Tuesday we saw where the Democratic and Republican spokesmen were deep in the throws of an argument as to which party best emulated the policies of Thomas Jefferson. Shades of Alexander Hamilton! Who would have expected to live so long as to hear a Republican leader extol the virtues of Thomas Jefferson, and claim that his party surpassed the Democrats in setting forth those virtues as a party standard.

Aubrey Williams, deputy relief administrator, is quoted as saying to a group of relief recipients called the Workers Alliance. "Keep your friends in power—Judge those friends by the crowd they run with when they come to you and ask for your support."—This speech was made with full knowledge of existing regulations which forbid taking part in politics, and in spite of denials by the Administration that politics were being played with relief funds. In the face of the approaching congressional primaries, it was a deliberate attempt to sway the votes of those on relief to the Administration; Williams denial to the contrary, and the pity is that the Senate campaign funds committee could not find a way to do more than "quietly reprimand the Administrator for his breach of conduct."

Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, economist, in a speech to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, declared the United States is well on the way to the control of business by "persons whose principal occupation is not in industry, finance or trade, but the winning of elections."—well, there may be other ways of saying the same thing, but we doubt if the idea could be better expressed, and the pity of it all is found in its truth.

NEWS ITEM.—U.S.S.R. FACTORIES ORDERED TO ADOPT AMERICAN INDUSTRIAL METHODS

TYPICAL

Thoroughly typical and in keeping with his blustering truculence towards the elected representatives of the American people was the reaction of John L. Lewis to the refusal of the House rules committee to report the Walsh-Healey bill to the floor of the House for a vote before adjournment. The CIO chieftain wrathfully denounced the decision as "cowardly" and complained that the committee "is notoriously friendly to corporations and unfriendly to labor." He significantly added that labor wanted to know "just how good friends" are the Representatives who will ask for labor's support in the November elections. The implied threat is as unmistakable as the effort of Mr. Lewis is presuming to dictate to the leaders of Congress about the course of legislation. "Upon what meat doth this, our Caesar, feed?" It seems a not inappropriate question.

Watch Your Driving
Now that Virginia's new highway speed regulations placing a maximum of fifty-five miles an hour upon passenger cars, and slower speeds upon passenger buses, trucks and school buses, it is up to every person driving an automobile to see that the law is obeyed. Whether we think the new regulations are good or bad is beside the question, it is now the law of the land and should not be violated.

Personally we think the regulations are satisfactory, for fifty-five miles an hour is fast enough for anyone. The law establishes absolute limits for speed as contrasted with the former law which said that driver was presumed to be guilty of reckless driving if he exceeded certain speed limits, a new offense for speeding, as distinguished from reckless driving, has been created, with the given limits as maximum speeds.

No change for limits for speed in residential, business, and school zones have been made, which are from twenty-five, fifteen and five mile per hour under the old law, and motorists meeting or overtaking a school bus loading or discharging passengers are required by law to pass at speed not greater than five miles per hour.

Another feature of the new regulations which we heartily approve, requires the dimming of headlights when meeting of traffic. Bright lights have been one of the principal causes of accidents at night. Requiring operators of trucks to warn traffic when it is necessary to stop on the highway, by flags in the daytime and flares at night is another excellent regulation of the new law.

It will be interesting to note the number of arrests made in the county under the new regulations and ascertain as far as possible the decrease in the number of accidents.

ABOUT CHICKENS AND SHIRTS

A modern fable has been written by an unknown author. It runs like this:

"Once upon a time, there was a farmer who sold two chickens. With the proceeds he bought two shirts.

"So the farmer had two shirts and a city man had two chickens. "Then came along the New Deal, and told the farmer he should get more money for his chickens by making them scarcer . . . he must not raise so many, and then he would get more income. The New Deal also told the workman in the city that he must work fewer hours and get more money for making fewer shirts. That, of course, caused shirts to cost more.

"Then the farmer brought one chicken to market. He got as much money for it as he had previously gotten for two chickens. He felt fine. He went to buy some shirts, but he found that shirts had also doubled in price. So he got one shirt.

"Now the farmer has one shirt and the city man has one chicken, whereas without the New Deal, the farmer could have had two shirts and the city man could have had two chickens.

"This, boys and girls, is called 'the more abundant life.'"

And that, boys and girls, is why it is so difficult for those without the "inner circle" to see where we are heading or to understand the objectives of our present administration. When the human being is confused or unable to understand it is easy to trust blindly to the leadership of someone else, especially if there is danger before him the promise of a "more abundant life." But, fortunately, the human being always comes back to solid earth and if, in his aberrations, he does some damage to fundamental structures he patiently sets about the job of rebuilding. Storms and floods and fires have destroyed much of man's handiwork, but he always rebuilds and generally more substantially. So when theorists run wild with his government, the American is never much alarmed. He knows that he will rebuild and that the farmer will get back his two shirts and the city man his two chickens.

"IN THE MINT JULEP BELT"

It seems that certain Virginians who, we fear, are in danger of sitting in the seats of the scornful, have been writing pieces to the Richmond papers insinuating that Marylanders are "Just Yankees." In Georgia the term now would be taken with what Mr. Pickwick called "great good humor," but in the borderlands of the old Confederacy it brings on more talk. "Unneighborly says the Baltimore Sun, commenting on the gibes from Virginia, and proceeds to give five cogent reasons why Marylanders should be counted among Southerners to the manner born. Thus: "Are we not below the Mason and Dixon line? Did we not send thousands to fight for the Confederacy? Did not James Ryder Randall write the battle song of the boys in gray? Was not Raphael Semmes a native of Maryland?" These are the first four of the Sun's arguments in rebuttal, and to us they are quite convincing. But most potent of all is the fifth: "Is not Maryland in the Mint Julep Belt, within whose confines all inhabitants feel the warm pulse of the South?" If this does not convert the skeptical Virginians, then all they have lost something of their mellownest tradition.

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Supervisors of Princess Anne County will hold a public hearing for and against the adoption of a zoning ordinance submitted by the County Planning Commission on August 4th, 1938 at 10:30 A. M. o'clock at the office of the Clerk of said Board of Princess Anne, Virginia. The proposed ordinance to be adopted is as follows:

AN ORDINANCE TO REGULATE AND RESTRICT IN THE INTEREST OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH, SAFETY, MORALS, COMFORT, PROSPERITY, AND GENERAL WELFARE, THE LOCATION OF BUILDINGS AND OTHER STRUCTURES AND PREMISES WITHIN THAT AREA OF PRINCESS ANNE COUNTY, VIRGINIA, LYING NORTH OF THE TOWN OF VIRGINIA BEACH, AND TO IMPOSE REGULATIONS DESIGNATING THE KINDS OR CLASSES OF BUILDINGS AND

STRUCTURES WHICH MAY BE ERRECTED AND USED IN SAID SPACE, THE NUMBER OF PERSONS, FAMILIES, OR GROUP UNITS TO RESIDE IN, OR USE THEM, THE PUBLIC, QUASI-PUBLIC, OR THE USE THEREOF, OR PRIVATE NATURE OF THE USE THEREOF, AND TO PROVIDE A METHOD OF ADMINISTRATION, AND TO PRESCRIBE PENALTIES FOR THE VIOLATION OF THE WITHIN PROVISIONS.

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Virginia has authorized the Board of Supervisors of Princess Anne County, Virginia, within the limits of said County, to establish zones, and to classify, regulate and restrict the use of property within such zones, and the Planning Commission appointed for that purpose has made a report to the Board of Supervisors, recommending the establishment of a zone in that area lying north of Virginia Beach, Virginia, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point where the south line of Avenue E intersects with the shore line of the Atlantic Ocean; thence north along said shore line to the intersection of said shore line with the north line of 126th Street, said line being the south boundary line of Port Story; thence west along said boundary line of Port Story to the intersection of said line with the east line of Seashore State Park; thence south along the east boundary line of Seashore State Park to the south boundary line of 101st Street; thence west along the extension of said line of 101st Street to Rainey's Gut; thence along the east shore line of Rainey's Gut to Crystal Lake; thence along the east shore line of Crystal Lake to the north line of the Town of Virginia Beach; thence east along the boundary line of the Town of Virginia Beach to the intersection of same with the south boundary line of Avenue E; thence east along the south boundary line of Avenue E and its extensions to the point of beginning; and

WHEREAS, Said Planning Commission has recommended that the zone hereinabove set out and described be restricted to what is commonly known as Residence "A";

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That within said zone no building structures, nor premises shall be used, except as hereinafter specified, or arranged, or designed to be used in any part except for one or more of the following purposes:

(a) A residence designed for the occupancy of a single family, with garage or apartments, permitted only in connection with an established single family;

(aa) Hotels, apartments, or clubs when such permit is issued by the Board of Zoning Appeals;

(b) The taking of boarders or the leasing of rooms by a resident family;

(c) The office of a resident professional business;

(d) Churches, or other places of worship;

(e) Schools or parks;

(f) A private garage is a private garage on the same lot with or in the building to which it is accessory and in which garage no business nor industry is contained except the leasing of space for not more than one motor vehicle, which must not be commercial, to persons not residing on the same lot, or leasing not over half of the space for non-commercial vehicles in any garage which contains space for more than two vehicles. No garage shall provide space on such lot for more than four motor vehicles;

(g) Real estate signs advertising the sale or rental of only the premises on which they are maintained.

(h) Accessory uses, customarily incident to the above permitted uses and located only on the same lot with them including small professional signs. Except as permitted above, accessory uses shall not include any use customarily required in connection with business or industry, nor any driveway nor walking access thereto, nor any displays visible from the street of goods such as are made and sold, nor any billboard, nor advertising signboard, nor sign, excepting signs for the sale of real estate.

This Ordinance shall be enforced by The Commissioner of the Revenue, his agents, employees, and the violation thereof shall be punishable by a fine of not less than Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00), nor more than Fifty Dollars ($50.00) or by confinement in jail for a period not exceeding thirty (30) days either or both. Each day of continuous violation shall be considered a separate offense. All applications for building permits shall be accompanied by plans in duplicate, showing the actual shape and dimensions of the lot to be built upon and the exact size and location on the lot of the buildings, accessory buildings, the existing or intended use of each building, the number of families or housekeeping units the building is designed to accommodate, and such other information in regard to the lot and neighboring lots as may be necessary to determine and ascertain for the enforcement of this Ordinance. One copy of such plans shall be returned to the owner when such plans have been approved.

The Circuit Court of Princess Anne County shall be requested to immediately establish a Board of Zoning Appeals as authorized by the Legislature of the State of Virginia; such Board shall keep to the statute requirements as to personnel and term of office of the various members. Notices of the meetings of the Board of Zoning Appeals shall be published and the Board shall keep minutes of its proceedings, and adopt from time to time with the approval of the Board of Supervisors rules and regulations for its procedure.

The Board of Zoning Appeals shall be authorized to issue also permits where required for the conduct of hotels, apartments, or clubs within said district.

Should any section or provision of this Resolution be decided by the Court to be unconstitutional or invalid, such decision shall not affect its validity as a whole or any part thereof, other than the part so decided to be unconstitutional or invalid.

insights than this time. Probably because it was written by a secretary, whose whole existence was devoted to keeping together the details of his master's physical life and who in consequence, attributes supreme importance to such paraphernalia to the exclusion of all else.

By laboriously assembling this data and placing it in some sort of order, you can arrive at a rather unpleasant portrait of D'Annunzio's life. He was immoderately vain, and from that springs the rest of him—his passion for satisfying everyone and everybody so that the whole world would admire him; his love of solitude, attempting over the rest of the world, flaunting his self-sufficiency; his affection for his dogs and horses whose bread-and-butter devotion was balm to his soul.

He tried to live a life of luxury and elegance—the latter word he uses constantly. The successive homes he occupied he decorated in fantastic fashion—which he hoped was exotic. He piled all sorts of junk into a room until it was barely possible to move—and then to make it even more difficult he scattered hundreds of red cushions all over the floor. These were the rooms in which he carried on his love-affairs. The stage was always set in advance—there was no doubt in the poet's mind as to what he was after. Perfume sprayed about the room, incense burning, the inevitable cushions, tea, liqueurs, perfumed cigarettes and low lights. Antonin confesses that he cannot explain his master's way with the ladies—being the perfect secretary, he never eavesdropped. But he does include in his book the confessions of an anonymous lady. She attributes to the poet's voice a sort of hypnotic power which was responsible for her leaving D'Annunzio's villa rather late one evening with a splitting headache and a bunch of red roose.

All this is the sort of triviality that Signor Tomaso Antonin has piled together. Of his master's literary activities, of his opinions and his ideals, Tom has virtually nothing to say. Occasionally he allows D'Annunzio to speak for himself:

"I have poured into them (my verse) the whole of my ardent soul; there is an exuberance of sentiment which expresses itself in impudent hymns, in suave elegies, in fulgent images, in purple or languishing sounds . . ."

His passion for the extravagant and the esoteric brackets him with Oscar Wilde—Aubrey Beardsley—Yellow Book school. He wants to be lush and elegant and frightfully clever. A rather uncomfortable little person.

Yet even though his early life is tiresome, the adventures which he embarked upon in his fifties to a certain extent redeem him. From the outbreak of the World War he clamored for Italy to intervene on the side of the Allied powers. He was rabidly against the danger and mystery of warfare, a fact which later made him persona grata to Mussolini. His speech at Quarto in May 1915 prepared the Italian people for their country's declaration of war upon Austria. From 1915 to 1918 he saw action in all branches of the service, for his persuasive voice and obvious enthusiasm made him the indispensable man wherever the going was hottest.

When the war was done and Italy, so he felt, had been unjustly deprived of Fiume, he took the bit in his teeth. With a hundred men, D'Annunzio marched against a city well-fortified and occupied by French, English and Italian troops. They withdrew and left him to rule the city for fifteen months. It was no fault of his that the Nitti government signed a treaty recognizing Fiume as a free state, and that Italian troops forced his withdrawal from the city. He had focused Italy's attention on the unredeemed city and it was only a matter of four years until Fiume was handed back to Italy.

Those war years are to me the only attractive ones of D'Annunzio's life, for he put aside the faddism and his selfishness and almost approached the stature of a human being.

WORLD'S WORST WEATHER WHEN NEWEST FORD TEST TUNNEL WORKS

Cold, Dust, Wind, Sleet and Rain Produced at Will in Trials of Motor Cars

40-BELOW IN CHAMBER

Glass Panels Permit Full View of Performance of Car Under Test; 100 Conditions Recorded

The world's worst weather, in all conceivable combinations, is created to order in the huge new weather tunnel just put into operation at the Ford Motor Company Engineering Laboratory in Detroit. This device, first of its kind to be built expressly for scientific research into motor design and operation, is used together with 3 new Ford Test Trucks, to provide precise data on automobile performance under all conditions of weather, including extreme heat, cold, high and low atmospheric pressure, humidity, wind, dust, sleet, and rain.

Thus, an engineer at the control of this new, scientific instrument may blow a 70-mile sleet storm directly at an automobile running at a speed equivalent to 60, 70, or 80 miles an hour. At will, the temperature may be dropped to 20 below zero or raised to 150 degrees above, simulating a flood gale of sleet, or a torrential rain storm.

Simplifies Problem

The purpose of all this, of course, is to find out just how newly designed cars and trucks will perform under any kind of weather to be found anywhere at any time, without the necessity for sending test cars to various parts of the world, to wait for the particular kind of bad weather wanted. It greatly simplifies the problem of perfecting motor cars of new design to meet all conditions, before they are put on the road.

The tunnel is a structure, 124 feet long, 35 feet wide and 12 feet high, with an air passage of 10 by 10 feet. The rear wheels of the vehicle under test are placed on the tread-mill which is adjustable to accommodate chassis of varying wheel-base lengths, including Lincoln and Lincoln-Zephyr cars, as well as Ford cars and trucks, or even the low-wheelbase bus chassis. The tread-mill, which is operated by the wheels of the car in motion, is connected to a dynamometer, the load of which may be regulated to produce a hard pull or an easy glide. The power output of the engine is in this way recorded on the dynamometer scale. Glass panels in the wall permit the operator full visibility of the car under test.

40-Below in Chamber

In addition to the heating and refrigerating systems providing temperatures ranging from 150 degrees above zero Fahrenheit to 20 degrees below within the tunnel, there is a special controlled "cold" chamber in which 40-below temperature may be created for searching cold weather tests of engine, oil, battery and starter and other equipment. A 40-horsepower motor drives a 10-foot three-bladed propeller to create wind velocities up to 85 miles an hour, and dust or sand sent into the tunnel through a jet in the floor ahead of the car is converted into a storm to match anything the Southwest or the Sahara has to offer. The water pipes around the inside can produce anything from a light fog to a cloudburst. Simultaneous readings on 100 various conditions, such as exhaust temperature and pressure, barometric pressure, engine speed, fuel consumption, air-fuel ratio of the carburetor mixture, combustion efficiency, water temperature at various points in the cooling system, intake vacuum and oxygen content of the air, are provided on the control panel outside the tunnel.

Efficiency Tested

In addition to research into automobile performance in all weather conditions, the tunnel is equipped for close study of the aerodynamic efficiency of various designs of bodies and body accessories.

Instruments show the exact amount of "drag" exerted by headlamps and fenders, for example, and the extent it is reduced through improved design.

The findings in the new weather laboratory are correlated with those made on the test tracks, one of which is of smooth concrete with turns steeply banked for speed tests. Another is of gravel, and the third is made up of various "rough road" surfaces.

Together they permit an extremely wide range of actual road tests, all of which means better automobiles.

Machine Chips Fall Where They Pay At Ford's

An ingenious oil salvage device makes machine chips fall where they pay, at the rate of several thousand dollars a year, in the Ford Motor Company plant here.

Machinists call the steel turnings made in producing automobile parts "chips." When the chips fall out of the machines into special chip conveyors they are coated with oil which cools the cutting tools. Salvaging the chips themselves is a simple process which merely involves crushing them and sending them back for remelting. Salvaging the oil is a more difficult task.

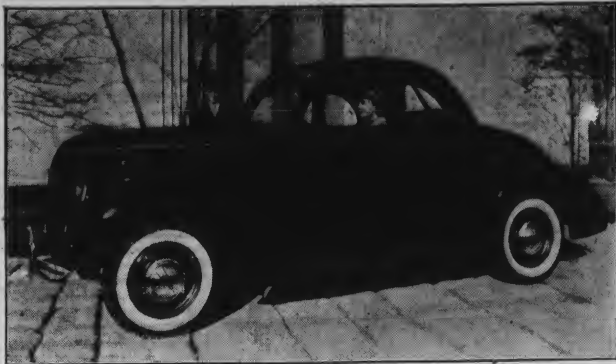

A special Ford device solves the problem. The chip conveyor moves through a washer and the chips are washed in hot water as they move along. The oil floats off them and into a reservoir. Here it rises to the top of the water, and as the reservoir fills the oil overflows into a smaller reservoir. The process is repeated here to make certain the oil and water are thoroughly separated, and the oil is sent to a still smaller tank.

The salvaged oil is returned to the system which circulates it to the machines, but not before it is heated to a germ-killing temperature. Company doctors take no chances with the possibility of contamination in oil or other fluids used in machining Ford V-8 parts.

Approximately 17 gallons of oil are salvaged from every ton of turnings. Gather eggs at least three times daily in the summer; market them at least twice weekly.

The velocity of water flowing over the land surface is the primary factor controlling the erosive power of that water.

Ford Shows 1938 de Luxe Coupe

THE 1938 Ford V-8 de Luxe coupe is pictured above. The new de Luxe Ford V-8 is of entirely new appearance, with new radiator grille design, long hood, low sweeping body lines, deep, massive fenders.

The seat provides ample width for three to ride comfortably. Interior is attractively upholstered. Instrument panel is of new design. Compartment light is over rear window. Below the window is a large package shelf. A large built-in luggage space also houses the spare tire, and is reached through rear deck lid. The car is powered with the 85-horsepower V-8 engine, as are all of the Ford de Luxe body types.

First Prisoner

By J. H. Roberts

In early March, 1918 two American soldiers were seated in a dugout in a quiet sector some distance northwest of Toul. One of the soldiers was a lieutenant of artillery on liaison duty with the infantry regiment then occupying the front, and the other was a major of infantry commanding the battalion on duty in that immediate sector. It was dark outside and all was quiet.

Earlier in the evening the two officers had made a visit of inspection to the company posts of command, stopping here and there to see that the firing strop was properly manned and that all was well with the men of the battalion. The major talked quietly to the grim youngsters in the outposts, whose duty it was to keep watch over no-man's-land. Only occasionally was the blackness of the night lighted by a flare fired aloft for the purpose of seeing what was going on in that twisted waste of barbed wire entanglement and water filled shell holes.

The major was a good soldier, and his men trusted and respected him. There was little doubt that both officer and men understood one another. Long before his day the major's father had won renown, in fact, he was justly famous, and part of his early fame came to him on a day when he led a gallant charge up a certain hill many years before. That was the beginning of a public career that was to lead to fame and high position and make of his name a watchword in every American household. The two officers sat in the quiet dugout and talked of events that were in the making. Both GHQ and division headquarters were somewhat put out by the fact that up to that time not a single enemy had been brought into the American lines as a prisoner of war. However, at that very hour things were happening which all hoped would result in the capture of the first prisoner to be taken by the A. E. F. The major particularly held out hopes for the success of his plan which was being carried out somewhere out there in the inky darkness by three young men.

The various regiments of the division had previously staged elaborate raids on the enemy lines for the same purpose, but to no avail. On these occasions the artillery had cooperated with perfectly executed box barrages and raiding parties composed of picked men had gone over the top, penetrated the enemy front line and nearby dugouts, and returned to our side empty handed. This had happened more than once, but somehow the enemy had been forewarned of the raid and simply withdrew all troops to the secondary trench system until danger was over. This stratagem was wholly effective because there were no "prisoners" to capture under the circumstances. There was no fault with the planning or the execution of these raids but they had all failed up to that time.

On that March night in 1918 another and different kind of raiding party was out to get the first prisoner. Picked men had been selected to carry out a silent raid. Chosen for their fitness for the work to be done, they were particularly a husky trio, especially trained and schooled for any emergency that might arise. Their equipment consisted of side arms and trench knives and their instructions were to bring in their prisoner alive, and to do this without firing if possible. Each man had crawled out into no-man's-land with the intention of going as far as was necessary to find some enemy soldier who could be brought in as a prisoner of war. Of course success depended on surprise, and the need for surprise made it necessary that nothing be done to draw the attention of those who occupied the advanced enemy listening posts. It was slow and painful going. The mud, barbed wire and shell holes made it take what seemed to be endless hours to accomplish the task. Doubtless, had those men been given the machine gun fire that would have left them small chance of returning to our lines; indeed, if it had not resulted in the immediate death of every member of the raiding party. The best they could have hoped for under the circumstances, was to surrender to the enemy, and they were out there to capture prisoners, and not to become prisoners. Therefore, the slow, careful approach to their work.

Back in the battalion post of command, the two officers waited and hoped. At times conversation lagged and it seemed ages had passed since the little party had glimbed over the top and disappeared in the darkness of the night. Surely it was time for their return.

The nerves of the two who waited were tense with expectancy, they being somewhat new at soldiering at that early date. However, no firing had been heard since the men had gone out and to the two who waited, that was a lot to be thankful for. The fact that ample time had elapsed and that all was quiet, combined to give hope for success. But there was always a chance that something might go wrong, and suppose daylight should still find them out there!

Finally, the stillness of the night was broken by the sound of heavy footsteps on the duck-board in the trench outside. Loud talking could be heard, and suddenly the gas blanket on the major's dugout was drawn to one side and four men came into the dimly lighted room from out of the darkness. They were covered with mud and their uniforms were torn to shreds, but the faces of three of the men shone with pride. The first to enter was a husky lieutenant, the second was an equally husky non-com and the third was a strapping private all in American uniform.

The fourth, was a little man in the grey-green uniform and iron helmet of the German soldier. On the breast of his military blouse, he wore the iron cross as evidence of some former deed of bravery, but the American lieutenant made a personal souvenir of it in the first minute there in the major's dugout. The little man was obviously frightened and he was hurt, in fact he was bleeding from an ugly knife wound that ranged down across his forehead, nose and chin, but as soon as he became aware of the fact that he was in the presence of an officer, he snapped himself up to his full height, drew his heels together and smartly saluted in his best German manner, holding the position of attention as long as he remained in the dugout. The lieutenant in charge of that memorable raid was the first to speak. "Well, Major, we got one," he said. Then the major spoke for the first time, he said one word; it was the same his famous father would have spoken had he been there—he said "BULLY!"

A few minutes later as the raiding party left to take their prisoner to the rear, they were earnestly admonished by their commanding officer to be on the alert so that there would be no chance for this first prisoner to escape, but to the young artillery officer who observed this history-making episode, the warning was wholly unnecessary. That particular German soldier was very well satisfied that his prospects were brighter now that he was a prisoner of war. His days of fighting were over and there was no

Gold Medals For 4-H Club Winners

The 4-H girl with many irons in the fire has her chance to gain esteem for her talents and for Club work in the National 4-H Girls Record Contest now being conducted for the sixteenth year.

Oldest of national competitions for Club girls; the contest has been approved by the State Club Leader and provides gold medals for girls having the outstanding county record, trips to the 17th National Club Congress for state victors, and $1,200.00 in college scholarships for sectional winners.

This nationwide quest for girls with the best all-around records is being conducted by Extension Agents who will select state victors from county winners subsequent to November 1. Records are sought which show creditable achievements in all of the home arts and also in such activities as demonstrations, exhibits, and judging.

The five scholarships are $400, $300, $200 and two of $150 each which are provided with all other awards by Montgomery Ward and are to be announced during the Chicago Club Congress by a committee of State and Federal Extension Leaders. Forty or more state victors annually make the Chicago trip and over one half of the nation's counties name gold medal winners.

In addition, he probably would have made it a matter of personal pride had he known he was the first of what was to be a very long, long line of prisoners, before many months had passed.

Cribbing Utilized

For Garden Walls

Recent innovation in landscaping is a cribwork garden-retaining wall.

Cribbing, which is generally used to hold railroad embankment in place, is usually composed of creosoted logs. In the garden-retaining wall the material was precast concrete logs. Logs were placed 5 inches apart and had 4-foot headers spaced from 4 feet to 6 feet on centers between the rows of logs.

HEALTH NOTES

FORGETFULNESS

"Some weeks ago the newspapers featured a story of a cultured man who came to the attention of the police authorities of a large city because he was suffering from amnesia—a peculiar form of forgetfulness that sometimes makes it impossible for the victim to recall his name, his place of residence, his occupation, as well as other facts that would lead to his identity. There are records indicating that some persons have wandered far afield for years under assumed names, engaged in occupations foreign to their former life, and then suddenly regained their memories," states Dr. I. C. Riggan, State Health Commissioner.

"As was the case with the gentleman referred to (which represents the more common manifestations of this mental quirk), the fog was lifted within a few months. While the causes of amnesia are not definitely established, it seems to be associated with conditions that develop a nervous breakdown and is one of the unusual manifestations of that condition.

There is another type of forgetfulness, however, which is not dignified by any medical term despite the fact that it is an extremely common adult complaint, the results of which can be, and sometimes are, serious. For the lack of a better term, it might be called health-forgetfulness.

"Many persons whose memories are excellent in every other way carelessly forget that nature demands a reasonable amount of attention to bodily welfare. They forget that nature quietly is keeping score. They forget that if habits detrimental to health are continued, the cumulative effect sooner or later will result in reduced vitality, impaired health, or worse. They forget that nature rather than temporary notions, wishes, or personal ideas, always is in command, and is likely to punish those who refuse to recognize her supremacy.

"Specifically, health-forgetfulness, takes the following forms:

1. Forgetting to exercise in the outdoors.

2. Forgetting to eat enough food, rather than too much or too little food.

3. Forgetting that the seven and a half or eight hours' sleep nightly is a basic requirement.

4. Forgetting that a worry complex is a devastating and sometimes a killing condition.

5. Forgetting that the periodic physical examination, through prompt diagnosis, is the modern scientific weapon to ward off some of the major killing diseases.

6. And finally, forgetting that abundant health and vitality should be the goal of everyone, and that lacking it, life's richest asset is lost.

"In short, amnesia is an affliction. On the other hand, health forgetfulness, with its attendant harmful consequences, is an avoidable acquisition."

Timber Owners Told Of Pine Beetle Menace

A widespread infestation of the Southern pine bark beetle, which extends from the eastern shore of Maryland through Tidewater Virginia into the eastern counties of North Carolina, has been responsible within recent months for the destruction of great quantities of merchantable loblolly pine timber in Virginia. State Forester F. C. Pederson of the Virginia Conservation Commission, reported here today.

"The tiny brownish or blackish beetle, about one-eighth of an inch long, usually appears during dry years about the time redbud blooms and all during the summer attacks and kills pines of all ages and species which occur within its range," Mr. Pederson stated. "The beetles infest the middle and upper portions of the trunks first, later extending their attack toward the ground. They destroy the soft inner bark through which the tree gets its nourishment by making characteristic winding S-shaped galleries in which it lays its eggs."

Dry Spells Cause
"The result of recent investigations of the Bureau of Entomology indicates that abnormally dry spells bring about favorable conditions for outbreaks of the Southern pine beetle, both by weakening the tree and by creating a more favorable situation in the inner bark for the rapid development of the broods of the beetle. Pine Beetle is Destroying Many Trees in Tidewater down to a four-inch diameter should receive attention as they are subject to infestation."

In view of the seriousness of the present infestation, Mr. Pederson urged that all land owners carefully examine the pine timber on their properties for evidence of the beetle attack, and where found, prompt action should be taken to kill the brood in the infested trees.

Culling Time Is Examination Time

Virginia Extension Poultry Husbandman Points Out Opportunity to Find Parasite

Summer culling of non-layers in the farm poultry flock has a number of advantages, points out H. L. Moore, Virginia extension poultry husbandman, not the least of which is that culling gives the flock owner an excellent opportunity to examine the birds for body lice.

When lice are found, the birds—especially those to be kept—should be treated with sodium fluoride or nicotine sulphate. The sodium fluoride is put directly on the birds while the nicotine sulphate is put on the perch just before the birds go to roost. Since the nicotine treatment does not kill the eggs of lice, it is well to repeat it in a week or 10 days.

"Examine the laying house carefully for mites," Mr. Moore also warned. "Pry or lift up a 1000s, look in cracks or crevices of the nests, dropping boards, etc. If mites are found, spray the whole house with carbolineum, or with equal parts of used crank case oil and kerosene."

Culling the flock in July, he said, reduces feed costs, gives the hens much-needed room in the houses, and improves the breeding quality of the flock since it gets rid of poor layers which otherwise might become future breeders.—By Virginia Agricultural Extension Division.

State Pig Crop Shows Increase

Two per cent Shown over Last Year in Spring Report Report; Up-Swing General over United States

The Virginia spring pig crop was estimated at 474,000 or an increase of 2 percent over the 1937 crop of 466,000, according to the annual report of the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service in cooperation with the rural mail carriers.

The number of sows farrowing was estimated at 73,000, or 1 percent greater than a year ago, and the average number of pigs saved per litter was 6.5 compared with 6.47 a year ago.

Including the 1937 fall crop of 457,000 pigs, the total for the 1937-38 marketing season, therefore, is 931,000, which is about 1 percent less than the total for the preceding season.

The number of sows expected to farrow this fall is 75,000 compared with 70,000 a year ago, or an increase of 7 percent.

Throughout the United States a rather sharp up-swing in hog production, as compared with last year, is shown by this survey. The spring pig crop is estimated to be 13 percent larger than in 1937 and the number of sows to farrow in the fall of 1938 is expected to be 9 percent larger than in the fall of 1937.

More Pigs Saved

The number of pigs saved in the spring season of 1938 (December 1 to June 1, 1938) is estimated at 43,384,000 head, which is 4,960,000 head or 13 percent larger than the number saved in the spring season last year.

This is the largest spring pig crop in the last 5 years, but it is still much smaller than in any of the 10 years preceding 1934 and is 17 percent smaller than the average of 1932-33. The largest increase over 1937 was in the West North Central States, amounting to 17 percent. There were increases of 11 percent in the East North Central, 7 percent in the South Atlantic, 15 percent in the South Central, and 2 percent in the Western. A decrease of 2 percent is shown for the North Atlantic States.

The increase in the number of sows farrowed in the spring season was not quite so large as the increase in the number of pigs saved, being 11 percent for the United States and 12 percent for the North Central (Corn Belt) region. These increases are somewhat larger than those indicated in the December 1937 pig crop report. At that time breeding intentions indicated in the December 1937 pig crop report that the 1937 pig crop indicated a 5 percent increase for the United States and a 7 percent increase for the Corn Belt. The largest increase over the intentions report of last December occurred in the States of the West North Central region where hog numbers have been most sharply reduced as a result of the droughts of recent years.

Western States Loss

The number of sows to farrow in the fall season of 1938 (June 1 to December 1) is indicated as 4,102,000, which is 349,000, or 9 percent more than the number farrowed in the fall season of 1937. The indicated numbers are larger for all areas except the Western States with the percentage increases as follows: North Atlantic 3, East North Central 10, West North Central 12, South Atlantic 8, South Central 11. The decrease in the Western States is 4 percent. These changes from last year are based upon breeding intentions reported about June 1 and upon the assumption that the relationship between breeding intentions and subsequent farrowings will be similar to the relationships in other years of fairly abundant feed supplies and no serious droughts to cause material deviations from intentions.

The estimated number of sows farrowed in the spring season of this year of 8,815,000, plus the indicated number to farrow in the fall season, gives a total for the year of 10,917,000. This number is 10 percent larger than the total in 1937 and the largest total since 1933. Assuming an average number of pigs per litter for the fall season of this year equal to the average of the fall season of 1937, the combined spring and fall pig crops of the year would be about 69,000,000 head, which is about 7,000,000 head, or about 12 percent larger than the combined crops of last year.

The number of hogs over 6 months of age on farms June 1 of this year according to the survey was but little different from a year earlier. An increase of about 2 percent in the Corn Belt States, equivalent to about 200,000 head, was about offset by decreases in other regions. With an increase of 349,000 in the indicated number of sows to farrow in the fall season, the number of other hogs over 6 months was about 2 percent smaller than a year earlier.

Dormers In Attic Aid Ventilation

The attic is obviously the easiest and most economical place in which to add bedrooms or playrooms. With such an addition one changes a five-room house to a six- or seven-room house without adding a wing or becoming involved in serious structural changes.

Adequate ventilation and light for these rooms can be provided by adding dormers and good-sized windows in the gable. The size and design of the house will more or less determine the type of dormer to be used. They may be set back on the roof or be set flush with the face of the house wall, as is often the case with brick- or stone-faced dormers. It is imperative, however, that they be carefully proportioned and designed in harmony with the style of the house for over-sized or ugly dormers may easily ruin its appearance.

If possible, add dormers both front and rear so that there will be through cross-ventilation.

BAYNE THEATRE PREVUES

A love team new to screengoers is introduced in "Three Comrades," opening here today for a two-day showing, in the persons of Robert Taylor and Margaret Sullivan who typify the disillusioned post-war generation of the World War who fight to rehabilitate themselves in a new world. Franchot Tone and Robert Young share stellar honors with Taylor and Miss Sullivan.

"Gold Diggers in Paris," the sixth of the famous musical comedy series, will be shown at the Bayne Theatre Sunday and Monday, July 10 and 11. Rudy Vallee, crooning maestro of the airwaves, heads the cast and golden-voiced Rosemary Lane is featured opposite him, with Gloria Dickson doing a feminine menace. The Schnickelfritz Band, a specialty outfit that is taking the country by storm with their goofy antics, take care of the rhythm with Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins, Melville Cooper and Mabel Todd in charge of comedy.

Jane Withers is said to be at her best in the proud racing silks on the track in the grand human story of "Checkers," the picture which is scheduled for Tuesday, July 12. Stuart Erwin and Una Merkel are featured in romantic roles in the film. Also scheduled to be shown on Tuesday is Clarence E. Mulford's "Heart of Arizona," featuring William Boyd. A story of life in New Orleans and on the Louisiana plantations of the 1850's, "The Toy Wife" presents Miss Rainer in the title role of "Froufrou" Brigard, with Douglas as George Sartoris, attorney and political figure whom she marries, and Young as Andre Vallaire, gambler, swordsman and also suitor for her hand.

Thrilling Bouts In Beach Arena

Dunne vs Ingram in Bristling 10 Rounder Scheduled for Wednesday Night; Semi-final Slugging Match Promised

Promoter Dr. A. A. Marsteller of the local Virginia Beach Arena has secured through his matchmaker Eddie Ross a high class lightweight top for the club's third ring show on next Wednesday evening. On the above mentioned night Irish Eddie Dunne the sensational youngster from the Emerald Isle will swing into action pitted against Ray Ingram the crack Washington, D. C. ringster in a ten rounder that should baffle with color and class.

Dunne is the rage of Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia rings where he has had thrilling victories over such as Pete Galiano, Cowboy Scott, Joey Greb, Johnny Dean and Joey Straiges. This youngster is highly rated by boxing experts throughout the land and is tabbed a sure comer for titular honors. His opponent Ray Ingram is also one of the finest in his elite and has been fighting two years. Ray has decision wins over Cristofal Jaramillo, Johnny De Foe, the sensational Nick Camarata and draws with Al Reid and former Champion Pety Sarron.

Rough Ringers

The 8-round semi-final is of a high class order and should be a slugging mill from bell to bell. Featured in this spot will be found Red Lewis a tough cookie from Richmond and just about the roughest ringster he has ever been in with in the person of Hobe Williams of Washington, D. C. The Hobe gave Champion Freddy Steele the fight of his life on the Variety Club card in the Capitol City last summer and is rated a sure shot to pin the Brick Tops ears back for him in a very convincing manner. Red is saying little but is in strict training for what he believes will be the fight of his ring life. The balance of the card will consist of a 6-round mill featuring well known Virginia boys and a brace of four rounds.

BATTEN ENTERS NOT GUILTY PLEA

Twice Delayed Trial Gets under Way at Princess Court House; Jury Selected

INSANITY IMPLIED

Statement of Expert Witness Admitted by Agreement of Counsel; Two Day Trial Probable

The trial of Laban Batten, which had been twice postponed, got under way yesterday at Princess Anne Courthouse before a jury which will decide his fate. He is charged with the murder of William Sherwood, a county farmer on a lonely stretch of road near Creeds, on the night of June 16. The accused man entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment.

Selection of the jury was accomplished without much delay and the opening statements of counsel followed, in which each attorney outlined to the jury the points he hoped to establish.

All available space in the courtroom was taken when court was called to order, admission being by ticket only. Quite a large group of county residents gathered outside the courthouse to wait developments.

In his opening statement Commonwealth Attorney Paul W. Ackiss said he expected to prove a case of premeditated murder against the accused man and to show that he was fully aware of what he was doing at the time of the killing.

Willard Ashburn, attorney for the defense, indicated in the opening statement that he would show that Batten had suffered mentally all for years.

Counsel agreed that this state-

Surfboard Taken From Guard Member

A surfboard, the property of Babe Brathwaite, member of the Beach Patrol, was stolen on Tuesday night, according to a report made yesterday to the Virginia Beach News. Any person having knowledge of the theft is asked to communicate directly with Brathwaite at Courtney Terrace.

According to reports, the board was lashed to the railing in front of the New Ocean Casino, there for use in the event any swimmer was in difficulty after the usual bathing hours. It is 12 feet, 8 inches in length, with a mahogany top and cypress bottom.

Because the surfboards on the beach play such a prominent role in surf rescues, Brathwaite is particularly anxious to receive word from anyone having knowledge of those responsible for its disappearance.

Radio Broadcast Aquaints Nation With Va. Beach

Many Visitors Report Bi-Weekly Broadcast Influenced Them To Visit Resort For First Time

Many hotel and cottage operators are speaking enthusiastically about the good results and valuable publicity that the bi-weekly nation wide broadcast emanating from the Terrace Beach Club over the NBC Network has brought to this resort. Although a favorite medium for attracting guest to other leading Eastern resorts for a number of years, this is the first season that radio has been used cooperatively at Virginia Beach to bring more visitors to our shores.

NBC reports that on one occasion the broadcast was carried over one hundred twenty-seven stations on their network and that average of eighty stations carry the feature every broadcast.

Sponsors of the broadcast point out that they were able to secure this nation-wide advertising program for very little cost and that plans are already underway to feature the broadcast during the entire season next year. One hotel owner remarked to a representative of this newspaper that two recent guest from Indiana heard of Virginia Beach for the first time during one of the half hour programs over their local station, and immediately decided to spend their vacation here.

Prize Fish Caught Off Cape Charles

World's Record Bonito Taken By Washington Man;
Weight 102 Pounds, Length
70 Inches

James E. Stansbury of 3616 O Street, N. W. Washington, D. C., this week hung up a new world's record for a bonito caught off Cape Charles, Virginia, from the boat of Captain Harold Burton. Official measurement of the fish, according to the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, was 70 inches, 34 inches in girth and weighed 102 pounds. The fish was caught with a 12 thread Ashway line with moss bunker bait. Captain Burton also had in the party on the "Kildee" the Messers Fred Stansbury, C. E. Stansbury and George Hoshall, all of Washington. The fish was brought to shore shortly after being caught and was officially weighed and measured under the direction of the Cape Charles Guide Association, an affiliate of the State Chamber. Affidavits were taken at this time from members of the party and crew.

The State Chamber, from record books issued by federal sources, learned that the old record bonito or cabio catch was made off Buckroe, Virginia, in June 1921. The fish weighed 84 pounds.

This is the fifth world record to be held by Cape Charles for deep-sea fishing catches. The other four records pertain to catching off channel bass.

The first annual Mothboat Regatta, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce on the waters of Linkhorn Bay, will feature the sports calendar over the coming weekend. Fifty or more of the small sailing craft have been entered with the committee in charge, and a closely contested race is anticipated.

The race will be sailed over a three-lap course on Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, and the course will begin and end in front of the Cavalier Country Club. Adequate provisions for spectators have been arranged on the clubhouse lawn, and a large gallery is expected to be present.

Garland Miller, boating authority of Norfolk, will judge the event, assisted by R. B. Taylor, W. H. Terry, Jr., and Roland G. Eaton, members of the Chamber of Commerce committee. The trophy, a handsome silver cup presented by the Chamber of Commerce, is now on display in the windows of Fuel, Feed and Building Supplies Corp., on Seventeenth Street.

Virginia Crop Report Shows Less Acreage And Poor Growth

Cooperating Reporting Service Shows Decrease in Number of Principal Crops

CONDITION FAIR

Commercial Sweetpotatoes Show Increase of 5 Percent; Milk and Egg Production Good

Virginia farmers have planted a slightly smaller acreage of crops than last year, according to the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. The total acreage in the principal crops this year is estimated at 3,753,990 acres, which is a decrease of 14 percent of the acreage planted last year. The greatest reductions in acreage have been in cotton with a decrease of 35 percent; cowpeas decrease of 14 percent; potatoes decrease of 13 percent; and tobacco decrease of 7 percent. Crops showing an increase are as follows: Soybeans, 20 percent; oats, 10 percent; peanuts, 4 percent, all tame hay, 4 percent and barley, 2 percent.

Weather conditions during the early spring were favorable for plowing and preparing the land, but conditions during May and early June were first too dry and later too wet and cool for proper germination and growth of some crops. Frequent rains in the eastern and southern counties interfered with the cultivation of all crops, and on July 1 many fields of corn, cotton and peanuts were becoming grassy.

Slightly Less Corn

The corn acreage is estimated at 1,450,000 acres, or a decrease of

NEW LIFE GUARD TO GIVE DANCE

New Ocean Casino to be Scene

est of Purchase of Needed Equipment

EXCELLENT PROGRAM

Season's Record of Organization Perfect to Date; Public Urged to Attend Dance

A large and enthusiastic crowd from local hotels and cottages is expected to attend the first annual Frolic on Monday night at the New Ocean Casino, sponsored by the life guards who compose the newly-created Beach Patrol. All proceeds from the dance will be turned over to the patrol for the purchase of necessary life-saving and first aid equipment.

Patrol Captain Henry Kirn, Jr., and the 23 guards registered in the patrol yesterday posted notices of the dance in all of the ocean-front hotels and cottages and on the stands on the beach. Tickets are available from the life guards, and a generous patronage on the part of those who rely on the patrol members to keep the surf safe is anticipated.

The dance will get underway at 9 o'clock on Monday night in the open air ballroom, with music furnished by Dick Ballou and his orchestra. Outstanding stage entertainment will be contributed by the Cavalier Beach Club, the Surf Beach Club, the Terrace Club and the Dunes, and Sammy Walsh, popular master of ceremonies at the Dunes, will be in charge of the floor presentations. In case of rain, the dance will be held in the Village Ball, adjacent to the ballroom of the New Ocean Casino.

A Splendid Record

Although larger crowds of swimmers have been found on the beach than in previous years, the season's record of no drownings or serious water accidents still stands, largely because of the alertness of the experienced life guards who compose the Beach Patrol. More than 50 persons, a survey made yesterday revealed, have been assisted from the water by the guards during the opening weeks of the summer season, a few of whom have been in need of

Zoning Application Granted By Board

Two applications for building permits were heard by the Virginia Beach Board of Zoning Appeals. Monday night, when Rudolph, Cooke and Van Leeuwen, architects, applied for a permit to erect a gasoline station on the north east corner of 17th Street and Baltic Avenue; and Mrs. Virginia M. Hornthal, sought a permit to build a two-family residence in a restricted residential section at the corner of 35th Street and Pacific Avenue.

Action was taken on the request for the filling station permit, and the applicant was granted the privilege tentatively, provided that the building to be erected be of masonry construction, cost a minimum of $4,000, and other work meet the standard of such buildings established by recognized gasoline distributors, both as to buildings and grounds.

In the case involving the two family residence, no action was taken, but the applicant was directed to submit plans of the proposed structure to the Board for study, at a future meeting, for the purpose of final action.

Consumers Very Cheerful About The Whole Thing

Lower Prices Resulting From Recent Ice War Meets Popular Approval

Business and domestic folks in and around the Beach who use little or much of that great cooling benefactor to better living and health, called ice, are chuckling with much glee about the break handed them in the form of lower prices during the little ice war that has had this area in its clutches during the past few weeks. Next to the well known game of chance, ice has been about the hottest thing in town here recently. Producers and distributors of the good old cold cakes have really had a very merry time during the fracas. Prices are at an all time low for this section and consumers are showing their approval of the bout by using more and bigger hunks of America's favorite cooling substance. We learn that competition has been so strong that one firm is sending uniformed attendants into stores ahead of the ice man to wash and clean the refrigerators, and then remain to mop up the few drops of water that accidentally fell on the floor while the ice was coming in. A colored general handy man remarked to this writer that the ice dispute has made him, "Some Kinda Happy."

New School For Creeds District

PWA Grant Accepted by Board of Supervisors for New School; Tax Rate Increased to Meet County Share

Meeting with the Board of Supervisors of Princess Anne County last week a large group of residents of Creeds District, expressed approval of the action of the Board in accepting unanimously a PWA grant of $31,950, for the construction of a new school building in that district. It was made clear that the construction would necessitate an increase in tax rate for that district to cover the county share of the expenditure, amounting to a little more than half of the total estimated cost of $69,000.

The site for the new school building has not yet been definitely fixed, but it is thought that it will be located on, or near, the present school grounds. Rudolph Cooke and Van Leeuwen have drawn tentative plans for the new building. It is planned to take care of the school needs of the entire district in the one building when completed. It is not thought that the new school can be ready for occupancy this year.

Counter Suit In Election Contest

Hatchett Charges Irregularities in Answer Filed to Original Suit; 93 Persons Listed

Filing a counter suit last week in the Circuit Court of Princess Anne County, W. Russell Hatchett, successful candidate for the office of Town Treasurer of Virginia Beach, denied the allegations made in the original suit brought by J. E. Woodhouse, Jr., defeated candidate and present incumbent in that office. In his answer Mr. Hatchett set out a denial of the allegations and likewise filed the names of a long list of persons, who he alleges were non-residents of Virginia Beach, and were believed to have voted for Woodhouse in the June election which is being contested.

A number of persons are alleged to have voted by mail who are said to have been present at the Beach on election day, according to the papers in the case. It is said that those named voted for Woodhouse.

The plea set out that the respondent be declared legally elected, but added that if the court should find otherwise, that all votes found to have been illegally cast, be eliminated and that the respondent believes this will result in his election.

In the suit resulting from the election contest Mr. Hatchett is represented by Braden Vandeventer, Floyd E. Kelam and Paul W. Ackiss, Mr. Woodhouse is represented by James G. Martin and Earl Woodhouse. The cause will likely be set for trial at the beginning of the August term of court.

Laskin Road Work Nearly Complete

Present Plans Call for Opening Roadway Early Next Week; Settling of Fills
Have Caused Delay

Barring the return of rainy weather to further interrupt the work on the fills, the Laskin Road will be completed and thrown open to the public early next week, according to word received here yesterday. The two bridges would have been completed and in use except for the continued rains of June, which contributed to the settlement of the fill at the approaches to both bridges.

A member of one of the contracting firms said that thousands of additional yards of earth had been necessary to complete the work due to unlooked for settling and spreading.

The bridge and culvert work have been completed, and the only thing remaining to be done is a short distance of road surfacing on the Great Neck Creek Bridge approach, near Birdneck Point. The Little Neck Creek operation, nearest Virginia Beach, having been finished some time ago. The old bridge at this point has been replaced by a large culvert which is designed to take care of the tidal flow and drainage problem. This part of the road has been open for neighborhood use for some time. Next week will see through traffic using the Laskin Road and bridges for the first time since the beginning of the work in early spring.

Forty A Day Rate In Fingerprinting

When asked yesterday as to the progress being made in completing the final registrations, and fingerprinting of all workers at Virginia Beach required under the law to be fingerprinted, Chief H. L. McClanahan, said, "about 1,700 persons have complied with the law to date, and they are now coming in at the rate of 40 or more a day." He added that most of those required to register had done so, and urged all others to comply with the law as soon as possible.

Last week the Chief of Police published an advertisement to the effect that anyone failing to comply with the requirements of the law by July 15, would be summoned to court.

"THE VOICE of a majority, swaying the course of government does not insure good government except it be the voice of a well-informed, and well-intentioned people."

SURPLUS VS DEFICIT

In its issue of July 1, the Richmond News Leader, said in part editorially that the State of Virginia had a surplus in the public treasury, of "between $5,500,000 and $5,750,000" as of the end of the fiscal year on June 30, and added:

"After nearly nine years of depression, the Commonwealth has a reduced public debt, owes no money to the banks, maintains a general level of combined state and local taxation as low as in 1928—and has a surplus equal to 12 per cent of current annual appropriations from the general fund of the treasury. That record was attained by legislative and executive self-restraint. Virginia is vindicated in her refusal to spend what she did not have. We wonder if her record is equaled by that of any other American state."

Whether or not this record can be equaled we are not prepared to say but even if equalled it still remains a fine record and one Virginians can be proud of. It is a pleasure to note that other states are making an effort to put their financial houses in order. Only last week we learned that New York has balanced its budget for the first time since the depression, and from time to time we have noted news items from several states boasting of improved financial conditions in their treasuries.

All of this is gratifying, and makes a step in the right direction, but as long as the situation in the National Capital remains what it is, the people of the country will find it a hard matter to become enthusiastic about affairs nearer home. After all the debt of the United States Government is a continuing claim in the nature of a first mortgage on the holdings of every citizen, and with the tendency of that debt to grow larger every year, it is but natural for the people to fear the consequences of such a policy.

Until the time the Federal budget is balanced they have little to get excited about. Nevertheless Virginia has a fine record and sooner or later the Nation will have to follow her example. It is to be hoped that it will not be long in beginning the undertaking

THE PRESIDENT'S TOUR

The whole country has been waiting for President Roosevelt's transcontinental tour to materialize. The people had been warned of what to expect when the President disclosed his determination to campaign for the election of "liberal candidates" for the U. S. Senate, and the expectation of the event in some measure has been met. However, the rise of Adolf Hitler in 1933 the nation has hatched with growing concern and deepening disgust the policies of a dictator dedicated to a ruthless program of national glorification that takes no cognizance of international law or of the requirements of human kindness and decency that are supposed to be instinctive in mankind. Citizens of the United States could understand the persecution of the Jewish race in Germany no better than they could the violation of the several treaties signed since the World War. A nation that has been a haven for fiscal, political and religious groups of every description since its founding cannot comprehend the insane Aryanism preached in the land of Hitler. A people with a free press and a constitution setting forth their inalienable rights has not been able to persuade itself that a nation in which those prerequisites of freedom are ridiculed is headed for anything less than another catastrophe like that of 1914-1918, dragging the world with it into another ghastly shambles.

tion, the President is the Executive for all of the people of the Government and not the chief campaign speaker for favored candidates. By his actions in this regard he lowers the dignity of his high office, in our estimation, and establishes a precedent that may be even more dangerously abused if followed by his successors.

In Virginia we have escaped the full effect of his action on our internal political situation because neither of our Senators are up for re-election this fall, and as a consequence we have not been selected for the tour. It is not necessary to go in to what would have happened had either of our Senators been singled out for punishment for their attitude toward administration measures but it is safe to say that thousands of Virginians would have resented the action of the President had he come among us to tell what he had to do to them. We may differ with many things they have done, and doubtless many of us do, but we still feel that it is our privilege to make that decision for ourselves. Feeling that way, it is but natural that others should feel a similar resentment, and we believe that at least in the South his visit will do his favorite candidates no good.

GABLE AND SHEARER

For a year or more, the moving picture fans, and that covers a multitude of people, have been conjecturing on who would be selected to play the leading parts in the film version of "Gone With The Wind". Now that Clark Gable and Norma Shearer have been selected for the rolls of Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara, we hear very little comment on the wisdom of the selection.

The little we have heard leads us to the conclusion that Gable has met with more favorable reaction than has followed from the selection of Miss Shearer. We are perfectly satisfied with Clark Gable as Rhett Butler. There seems to be a fear however, among the amateur critics that Miss Shearer will have some difficulty with the "Southern accent", which may or may not be true, but if we are to have to sit through the film equivalent of the book length, and listen to a stage version of Southern speech, we feel that the merit of the story will be completely ruined. However, only time will tell and we wait with interest the release of the picture.

May be both selections will prove to be satisfactory in all respects. Certainly enough time was consumed in making the announcement of the choice to have given the casting directors opportunity to have studied all available possibilities, and until we have had the pleasure of seeing for ourselves, we will assume they have selected wisely. They will have missed a great chance if it turns out that they have failed in this respect.

RANSOM PAYMENTS FORBIDDEN

Relatively few people are aware of the fact that the last General Assembly of Virginia passed a measure, prohibiting the payment of ransom in kidnap cases occurring in the state. However, such is the case and we are quick to give our approval to such a law. In certain provinces in Canada, if not in the whole Dominion, the law has forbidden ransom payments for a number of years, and the experience of our good neighbor to the north has proven the effectiveness of the measure in curbing that crime.

Obviously it will be very difficult to enforce such a law if the distracted parents and guardians of the unfortunate victims, elect to deal with the kidnappers in spite of law, but in the light of the history and experience of our neighbor country, where there is very little if any kidnapping, and our own distressing record in the United States, it becomes apparent that such an enactment deserves a thorough trial before adverse judgement on it merits.

In our opinion other states will do well to follow the lead of Virginia. It is entirely possible that through the passage of similar measures, by all the other states, we in the United States could break up this basic practice of kidnapping. With the basis of hope, in the experience of Canada, other states should hasten to put laws of like character in effect. The Federal Government could well pass a parallel measure. The plan at least deserves a trial, in the hope of ending one of the most vicious types of crime.

RACE WITH DEATH

I have a race with death before I go.
And much to be achieved precedes the ending
That shatters down the energy of spending
All one has hoped to give. Instead I know
Only one's dreams may live. So let them blow
Over life's Autumn foliage, while lending Sorrow that kills—and joy, somehow, defending
The soul's swift flight. This much is ever so.

Yet, in this race with death, I try to weave Something of loveliness that now expands
Into the pulse of life which I have span.

I fear not death—since as I die—I leave
A tapestry long worked by fevered hands;
And with each stitch my race with death is won.

SUMMER RAIN NOTES

Sweet rain which pats the roses' bed,
You're like kind words which reach the ear,
You're dear as sun when night is fled,
You're sweet as song when sleep is near.
A silver mist, you touch the trees
Which stretch to meet you with a kiss.
Fragrant buds wake and leap to seize
This life-prolonging, liquid bliss.
Soft rain, you turn the leaf to jade,
The canna lily to bright gold.
Old mister red-bird's coat you shade
Until the imp is passing bold.
Your touch as soft as sigh of pine
Is soothing as some ancient wine.

CANDLE THOUGHTS

The day holds only candle-thoughts
When it is done,
Too tragic are the victories
That men have won;
Too heavy is the yoke of death,
Too great the tide
Of striving for the pomp and power
That end in pride.
The day holds only candle-thoughts
When it is through,
The flame of smile or word or song
Against the blue;
These are the brief, eternal things;
And these alone
Light the far way into the dark unknown.

UTOPIA

Somewhere between the sun and my slow feet
There lies the essence of a time-less dream,
A place whose day is endless and whose gleam Transforms the shadows down a darkened street.
A place where wild white winds and waters meet
Where sun and moon dip oars into the stream,
Where cypress whispers and blue herons scream—
Without a dream our life is incomplete.

Why must we build Utopia? We have made A god of discontent, a god to leave
Beside the roadway, mocking all our toil,
A siren whose shrill voice will be obeyed.
Because she dreamed of apples, lovely Eve
Was thrust outside Utopia's golden soil.

CIRCUMSTANCE

Two wore twin shoes of circumstance
And travelled on one road;
But though one came with empty hands,
One stooped to bear his load.

One gathered spears of golden sun
To pour upon a cloud;
One stooped at frequent intervals
To sigh, and stitch her shroud.

X-Cerpts From The News

It is said that while President Roosevelt is offering aid and advice to New Deal favorites, Chairman Farley, of the Democratic National Committee, is trying to restore harmony in the territory where primaries have been held. It appears that Farley has the bigger job on his hands in this instance, and will continue to have the same problem wherever the President takes sides in the contest. The action of the Chief Executive in these contests is bound to leave a feeling of resentment on the part of those he opposes, and their friends. It is only natural to resent unfairness in any form, and we are afraid that Chairman Farley will learn that his chief is stirring up more trouble than he can find time to smooth over.

Speculation over the successor to Supreme Court Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, is life before the Justice has even been laid to rest, and long lists of possible appointees are being mentioned. That of course remains the privilege of the President, who fought so hard to rid himself of the restraint of the "nine old men." It begins to look very much as though natural laws will accomplish his purpose long before the machinery of government can be changed to bring his desire to fruition. It goes without saying that the President will appoint a liberal as successor to Justice Cardozo, but in so doing he merely replaces one liberal with another, and the character of the Supreme Court will remain much the same as heretofore, because the deceased jurist was usually found on the side of liberal interpretation of matters before that high tribunal. Justice Cardozo was appointed by President Hoover, to succeed Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, and nobly carried his high office. He left behind a record of great accomplishment.

Charges of graft are about to be probed against Governor George H. Eade, of Pennsylvania, and 13 of his associates. That is too bad according to our way of thinking, because it disrupts confidence in our leaders when we can ill afford to lose such confidence. But if true (and we do not care to judge in advance of trial) we say that the people of the Pennsylvania, through their proper authorities should kick out the whole bunch of them. The innocence of the Governor must be established beyond doubt, and that without the aid of whitewash, if we are to escape without loss of cast both at home and abroad.

Now comes Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman flier, with an over night flight to Paris in 16 hours and 31 minutes, the time being less than half the time consumed by Lindbergh on his famous flight. A second hop lands him safely in Moscow with the intention of pushing on to a world's record globe circling accomplishment, and before this reaches the press he may be safely back in the United States. That is his hope, and the hope of a multitude of others. The cost is an incidental $300,000, if press dispatches are to be trusted, and the purpose, if accomplished, still remains unknown.

Prohibition Issue Again Before Voters of Arizona. Headline . . . The people of that state will be called upon to vote on the issue in November of this year, but what the authorities in the other states must realize is that the problem remains an issue in every state, and that the officials in charge are burdened with a tremendous responsibility in handling it. Failure on their part will result in other voters, in other states, being given the privilege of voting on the same question. If not this November, then at a later time. Such things as the action of the ABC Board in raising the prices to the extent they did, may hasten the return of the bootlegger to the field, and if that results the people of Virginia may take a hand before long.

When the government of Great Britain was given a mandate over Palestine, following the World War, it was given a job that turned out to be just as troublesome as the history and background of the situation, foretold it would turn out. In accepting the mandate England fell heir to the problem of policing a territory which has been the scene of strife between the same racial and religious groups since time in memorial. Such being the case, the British must expect periodic outbreaks such as are now going on the Holy Land, as part of history and a natural consequence of a situation. Urged on by the propaganda of certain European countries the disgruntled Arabs are likely to create a police job for the British Lion to contend with, that will test the patience of that long suffering people to the utmost.

Dr. Hugo Eckner, veteran German dirigible commander, in commenting on the refusal of Secretary Harold L. Ickes, to supply Germany with non-explosive helium gas for use in their lighter than air ships, condemned the Secretary of Interior's actions as "a joke", and told his audience that the President of the United States told him, "the last word has not been spoken." Dr. Eckner added, "peculiar maneuvers are common in America during election years." If what the good Doctor quotes is the truth of what went on when he visited Washington, we are inclined to agree with him, but we might add that the fact that he told it all in Germany over radio broadcast, has not done him any good, in that it found its way back to America by way of the press. The peculiarity of maneuvers do not seem to be limited to America during election years.

Picturesque Senator James Hamilton Lewis, commenting on the activities of foreign spies and agents in America, warned that "we will drive them from our shores, or, if they be our citizens, we will unloose them from their citizenship and imprison them as traitors." . . . Just what every good American would like to see come to pass, but we fear that it will be a long time in the doing.

Officials of the German-American Settlement League—an affiliate of the German-American Bund which claims 400,000 members—were convicted of violation of the State civil liberties law in New York State court Tuesday, and fined and sentenced to jail . . . Considering the attitude of the defendants in the case, in saluting the American flag with the Nazi salute in open court, and their statement to the presiding judge in the court room to the effect that it would "be the American salute" some day, and the further fact that members "swear their allegiance to Adolf Hitler", they are fortunate indeed to get off with a mere fine and a short term of imprisonment. Brazen disloyalty of this character deserves stern treatment, and may soon result in more severe punishment for the guilty parties.

THE ATTACK ON LEVIATHAN

By Donald Davidson
University of North Carolina Press
368pp. $3.00
A Review by Hon. Francis Pickens Miller, Member of Virginia House of Delegates

Leviathan is the Uniform Society.

The particular Uniform Society which Mr. Davidson is attacking has its capital in New York. Its governors are the industrialists and financiers who won the War Between the States and have since then ruled America. They have developed a certain type of civilization in their own commercial Northeast and because of their economic power have been able to impose the patterns of this civilization upon other sections of the country, thus threatening the existence of indigenous regional cultures. The trend toward New York imposed uniformity can be observed in every department of life. Even education is not authentic unless it bears a label "Made in Teacher's College."

The current revolt against New York's cultural imperialism, of which "The Attack on Leviathan" is but one example, is in my judgment one of the most heartening phenomena in contemporary America. Donald Davidson has played a particularly honorable part in fomenting this revolt. The ablest sections of "The Attack on Leviathan" are those which expose the decadence of the smart young literati of the Nineteen Twenties who, under the guise of (Continued on Page Six)

As Others See It

NO. 1 ECONOMIC PROBLEM

"It is my conviction that the South presents right now the nation's No. 1 economic problem." So declares the President, in a message to a conference of Southern spokesmen called by the director of the Administration's National Emergency Council. If by this the President means that the South is the country's poorest region, where most of the "ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-nourished" are to be found, he is entirely right. His concern with this problem is simply one more evidence of his deep, humanitarian sympathies.

But the first step toward the cure of such a problem is correct diagnosis, and in parts of the tentative report placed before the conference there are signs of confusion. The report tells us, for example, that the South must "sit by and watch its plenty enjoyed by other sections not so abundantly blessed by nature, but in control of the man-made machinery of finance." This seems to be merely a sinister way of saying that Northern capital has flowed into the South. This capital inflow has made the South much richer—or much less poor—than it would otherwise have been. It has greatly increased Southern production, increased the productivity of Southern labor and increased Southern wages. Northern capital invested in the South can hasten its industrial development just as British capital invested in American railroads and manufacturing industries hastened our industrial development as a nation.

Apart from this point, it is important to remember that some of the chief New Deal policies have been such as greatly to increase the impoverishment of the South rather than to relieve it. The chief single source of the South's living is cotton. Yet the net effect of the crop-restriction policy has been to purchase a small temporary gain at the cost of a great and permanent loss. For our policy encouraged a great increase in planting of cotton by other nations, particularly Brazil; the foreign supply has risen to a hitherto unprecedented level, and the price of cotton within the last few weeks has been down to the lowest levels in history in terms of the old gold dollar. To compensate for this there should have been a special encouragement to Southern industry. But instead, the Administration insisted on the Federal Wage-Hour Bill, which fixes a uniform minimum wage for the whole country for the first two years and allows a maximum differential of 10 cents an hour for a few years thereafter. The result will certainly be to handicap Southern industry and relatively to retard Southern industrial employment. One incidental result may be to drive more workers into Southern agriculture, where wages are already the most miserably paid in the country and for which no minimum wage is fixed.

The poverty of the South is a condition that calls for cure for its own sake. But it is clearly mistaken to attribute the current low state of the nation's business to the low purchasing power of the South, for this relatively low purchasing power has existed for generations. It may make a more equal distribution of wealth, but it does not increase the net purchasing power of the country to transfer funds from the North to the South in the form of farm benefit payments and relief checks. Our primary aim should not be to develop one section of the country at the expense of other sections. The quickest and most effective way to help the South now would be through measures designed to bring economic recovery to the country as a whole.

—THE NEW YORK TIMES

NO ACCENT ON YOUTH

With the aid of hotel and restaurant proprietors, the New York State Liquor Authority has taken a sort of census of drinkers and has discovered, among other things, that most of the liquor consumed in public places nowadays goes down the throats of persons between the ages of 25 and 40. In up-State New York the upper bracket is somewhat higher than 40, but all over the State it seems to be agreed that the very young drinker, whose potations were so conspicuous in speakeasies and night clubs in the Volsteadian era, is now more or less out of the picture.

This is interesting evidence. True it concern only one State and it represents the impressions of a group of proprietors rather than the findings of a group of social investigators. Moreover, it may be that young men and women in New York State are simply unable to afford to drink at the prices which hotels and restaurants charge and that they are drinking as much as ever in homes, clubs and automobiles rather than in restaurants and hotels. But cost was not a particular deterrent in the old speakeasy times, for in those days the young seemed to be able to buy drinks with the best of them.

If they are not so much in the public picture now it is at least reasonable to infer that they are more temperate than they were in the years when with drinking under the ban youth got a kick not only out of the alcohol but out of defying the law. Such a change would be one more gain to the credit of repeal.

A WIDENING BREACH

The dissatisfaction of the United States over Germany's refusal thus far to absorb the Austrian debt may be the most recent cause of disaffection between the two countries, but it is only one among many. M. o'clock at the office of the Clerk of said Board at Princess Anne, Virginia. The proposed ordinance to be adopted is as follows:

AN ORDINANCE TO REGULATE AND RESTRICT IN THE INTEREST OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH, SAFETY, MORALS, COMFORT, PROSPERITY, AND GENERAL WELFARE, THE LOCATION OF BUILDINGS AND OTHER STRUCTURES AND PREMISES WITHIN THAT AREA OF PRINCESS ANNE COUNTY, VIRGINIA, LYING NORTH OF THE TOWN OF VIRGINIA BEACH, AND TO IMPOSE REGULATIONS DESIGNATING THE KINDS OR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Virginia has authorized the Board of Supervisors of Princess Anne County, Virginia, within the limits of said County, to establish zones, and to classify, regulate and restrict the use of property within such zones, and the Planning Commission appointed for that purpose has made a report to the Board of Supervisors, recommending the establishment of a zone in that area lying north of Virginia Beach, Virginia, bounded and described as follows:

This Ordinance shall be enforced by The Commissioner of the Revenue, his agents, employees, and the violation thereof shall be punishable by a fine of not less than Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00), nor more than Fifty Dollars ($50.00) or by confinement in jail for a period not exceeding thirty (30) days either or both. Each day of continuous violation shall be considered a separate offense. All applications for building

One copy of such plans shall be returned to the owner when such plans have been approved.

The Circuit Court of Princess Anne County shall be requested to immediately establish a Board of Zoning Appeals as authorized by the Legislature of the State of Virginia; such Board shall keep to the statute requirements as to personnel and term of office of the various members. The Board of Zoning Appeals shall be authorized to issue permits where required for the conduct of hotels, apartments, or clubs within said district.

cabinet ministers, no less than the tit of the man in the street have borne out this widespread American antipathy to the whole Hitler ideology. Secretary of State Hull sent a reminder to Germany that she was a signer of the Kellogg-Briand Pact when Czechoslovakia seemed about to share the fate of Austria. Under-Secretary of State Welles has denounced aerial bombing in Spain, a thrust home at German participation in the war. Germany has not been silent in the face of these statements. As the supreme expression of contempt for democratic American institutions she publicly dubbed Mayor Hague of Jersey City a "hero". The question of the Austrian debt owed to the American government and to American citizens is whether Germany, according to international precedent of long standing, will assume those obligations now that she has annexed Austria. So far she has not answered any of the three notes on the subject dispatched from our State Department. The belligerence of Germany's silence is typical. If the debts are totally ignored, that too, will be according to established German formula. Meanwhile hatred of the Hitler regime will reach new levels in America, and the Nazi spy trials will keep it boiling.

AWNING COVERS

When not in use awnings mar the appearance of a building and also they are in constant danger of destruction from carelessly thrown cigarettes. A recently designed device eliminates both. It is a hinged metal cover that blends with the design of the building front and serves to protect the awnings from weather and other hazards.

This installation can be financed with funds obtained under the FHA Property Improvement Credit Plan.

Ex-Train Robber Given New Start

Former Bandit Met at Prison Gate With Offer of Work By Man Who Captured Him

On June 17, 1938, Roy Gardner, notorious train robber and prison-escape artist, was released from Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary a free man, after having served a seventeen-year term. At the prison gate stood a former patrolman, Louis Sonney, who had captured the outlaw single-handed at Centralia, Wash., on June 16, 1921. His purpose was not to re-arrest Gardner on another warrant and again place him behind prison bars, but rather to take the newly-liberated man back home with him and give him a position, and thereby a chance to redeem himself to society.

Said the benefactor: "Catching Roy got me away from pounding the streets as a policeman. It got me to a place where I own a company distributing film out in Los Angeles. He helped me, so I am going to help him."

Here is a fine, Christian spirit which betokens a humanitarian all too lacking in these days. Seventeen years' experience behind grim stone walls and steel bars has convinced the former train robber that crime is ever a losing game. It was a severe but not too great toll that society exacted for his wrongdoing. It is hoped that, with the aid of the former police officer who returned him to Leavenworth, he will rehabilitate himself and become a useful, upstanding citizen.

clation, 357 of these teaching units have been supplied junior and senior high schools in 40 counties and nine cities of Virginia, and in addition they are being used in the public health courses, schools of nursing, at the Medical College of Virginia and the Extension Division, College of William and Mary.

When classes are resumed this fall the units will be in use in the schools of 40 counties including Princess Anne.

Miss Foster explained, and added, that these teaching units are being distributed by the association in response to a demand by local tuberculosis organizations for material for use in the schools to prepare pupils psychologically for the tuberculin test. She added that the plan was devised to increase parents' cooperation and at the time to give pupils a sound educational background to prevent fear of tuberculosis.

"Health instruction generally is given in two ways in junior and senior high schools," said Miss Foster. "Where there is a definite time in the regular schedule for health instruction, our units may be taught as a part of the regular course. In other instances health is integrated with subjects which contribute to health. The tuberculosis unit definitely relates itself to a larger study of communicable diseases in general science or biology."

Let's Clear the Tracks

MOST people know that the American Railroads today are giving the finest railroad service in the world.

There are in this country now 781 passenger runs, totaling 46,242 miles, made at 60 miles per hour or over, with an unparalleled safety record.

Freight moves faster than ever before. Car shortages have become almost unknown. Freight schedules are the most dependable in history.

Yet the railroads today are confronted with a serious problem. What's the reason?

Is it "high rates"? Most emphatically not. The average revenue for hauling a ton of freight a mile has been less than a cent for the past six years—the lowest rates in the world for comparable service. And average revenues per passenger mile in 1937 were the lowest in history.

Is it "watered stock"? No—the amount of railroad stocks and bonds outstanding is less by billions of dollars than the investment in railroad property; and is less, in relation to investment, than it was thirty years ago, when railroads were at the peak of their prosperity.

Is it an increasing burden of debt? No—the total debt, in relation to investment, is also far less than it was thirty years ago.

Is it an increasing burden of interest charges? No—in relation to what they collect for their services, interest on bonded indebtedness is less than it was three decades ago, when the railroads were making money.

All right, then, what is the difficulty?

Simply this: Like any individual, the railroads must keep expenses lower than income. But when their income is down—as it is now because of general business conditions—the railroads cannot trim sail in the way an individual or other businesses do.

They cannot shut down like a factory—because they are delivering a service vital to America.

They cannot adjust their rates or "prices" except by permission of public regulatory authorities.

They cannot adjust rates of pay and hours of work—the major element of their expense—except under the provisions of the Railway Labor Act.

Their earnings are limited, their expenses increased by local, state and federal laws—ranging from reduced rates on government traffic, in return for land grants to railroads whose pioneering opened up a wilderness, to the cost of rebuilding bridges when streams are "improved" to assist competing transportation.

So the net of the "problem" is this—the railroads are trying to do business under a half-century accumulation of laws, rulings and regulations which limit earnings and increase costs.

What they most need is a chance to go ahead under regulation and legislation modernized to meet conditions today, applied fairly and equally to all forms of transportation.

Employers' quarterly tax reports, which are submitted to the Bureau of Internal Revenue, are due on or before August 1. The Social Security Board is interested in this return, because from it they get the information which they post to the individual wage-earner's account.

Ordinarily, the deadline for the report is the last day of the month following the quarter for which it is filed. However, since July 31 falls on Sunday, Bureau of Internal Revenue regulations provide that the report may be filed on the next following business day, August 1.

The return covers employees' wages during April, May, and June. It is the second quarterly report to be made on the new Form SS-8. Taxes are payable at the time of filing the quarterly return. This new procedure for wage reports which was put into use early in 1938 helps to simplify the work required of employers.

Horace K. Dickson, Manager, Norfolk Office, Social Security Board, emphasized the fact that employers' wage returns must show each employee's name and his social security account number, and the amount of taxable wages paid to him during the quarter. He also said that each employee's benefits are based on his total wages from employment covered by the old-age insurance plan, and for this reason employers should see that the names shown in their pay rolls conform exactly with the names on their employee's cards.

Accurate Report Necessary

Since the amount of old-age insurance which any insured worker will receive depends on the amount of his wages, an accurate record must be kept of those wages, he added.

Wage reports are submitted at regular intervals by the employer to the Bureau of Internal Revenue. After these reports are checked, they are used by the Social Security Board to enter the wages as reported thereon in the worker's social security account.

Mr. Dickson declared that businessmen can save themselves unnecessary work and also help their employees get full benefits due them, by making sure that wages paid each employee during the quarter are correctly reported. Making corrections in erroneous wage reports results in double work for the employer and also delays the posting of the wages to employee's social security accounts. Tax returns must be sent by employers to the Bureau of Internal Revenue on or before August 1.

In order that each employee's social security account number may be given in the wage report, employers should keep a permanent record of these numbers. If an employee fails to apply for a number, the employer is required to file an application for him. Applications may be made at Norfolk office of the Social Security Board, 222 Post Office Building.

THE LAST LATE DINNER

or The Plight of the Hurried Housewife

My goodness! I should never have stayed for that newsreel!

'Why not?' 'Fraid you won't have dinner ready on time?

I know I won't! And James has a meeting at 8!

Well, let him stew, Marge—and maybe he'll buy you an electric range like mine, one of these days!

Will you have your dinner ready on time?

With time to spare. Electric cooking is FAST, m'dear. ALL the heat goes into the cooking... not into the kitchen.

Well, that sounds sensible. But we can't buy a new range right now!

Why not? You can buy an electric range on easy terms, that are really easy. And they cost less than you'd think.

If I bring James over—will you help me persuade him?

Bring him for dinner, Marge—my electric cooking will persuade him... and I'll show him my low electric bills!

SHORT CUTS TO QUICK COOKERY

You can build many a tasty meal in a matter of minutes by merging a canful of creamy Macaroni, or a tin of Spaghetti, ready-to-serve in a spicy tomato sauce, with a few refrigerator remnants or some of the staples from your pantry shelf. Have you ever tried scrambling several eggs, for instance, and mixing them with some left-over meat and a can of Spaghetti? Makes a succulent main course dish that any hostess would be proud to serve. Or, how about a swift and simple macaroni ring contrived quickly with four eggs and two canfuls of tender, tasty Macaroni, rich with a creamy cheese sauce? Try them so:

INDIVIDUAL SPAGHETTI AND EGG SCRAMBLE CASSEROLE

Serve together just as it is!
1 egg
1 cup dried left-over meat.
Season with—
Salt and pepper.
Place in individual casserole, alternate layers of egg and meat mixture and—
1 large (24½-oz.) can Cooked Spaghetti in Tomato Sauce.
Top each casserole with tiny cubes of—Cheese.
Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 10 minutes or just until heated through. (Serves 4.)

Note: Canned Cooked Macaroni in Cream Sauce with Cheese may be substituted for the Spaghetti.

MACARONI RING

Combine well—
2 medium (17-oz.) cans Cooked Macaroni in Cream Sauce with Cheese.
Pour into a well buttered ring mold and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a slow oven (325° F.) 1 hour. Loosen edges, then turn upside down onto a flat platter. Fill with creamed chicken or sautéed fish. Garnish platter with sprigs of parsley and sprinkle finely chopped parsley over top. (Serves 6.)

noys me is when he allows the "dissenter" in him to become master of ceremonies. When he is in that mood he misunderstands even his own beloved South. Think of confusing Virginia Dabney (Model 1938) with the Grady-Pauley (Model 1938) and as for the predatory story somebody told him about the imminence of a "purge" of agrarians at the 1938 Chattanooga Conference of the Southern Policy Committee, that just isn't so. I was in charge of a meeting, and I know.

There is one question that always haunts me when I reflect with furious indignation upon our Colonial status in the South. Why have so many of the ablest Southerners gone North during the past 75 years? And why have no many of these emigres had more than their share of responsibility for helping to maintain the Colonial status of the South, and for producing the literature against which we fulminate? The only answer I can think of is that there are Southerners and Southerners. I agree with Donald Davidson that the good ones will want to stay home. But Cothran, that also means that there are good ones in the Northeast with whom we ought to make common cause against Leviathan.

VIRGINIA CROPS OFF IN ACREAGE

or four weeks. Throughout the United States the acreage planted in corn is estimated to be 1.8 percent less than the acreage harvested last year.

Large Hay Crop
The total acreage of hay is estimated at 1,163,000 acres, which is an increase of 4 percent over the acreage harvested last year. The principal increases are in soybeans, clover, and alfalfa. The yield of early hay crops was below average due to the dry weather in the early part of May, but the yield of clover and timothy, with the exception of the northern counties, is expected to be up to the average. Weather conditions during June were unfavorable for harvest and considerable hay was lost. Prospects for late hay crops, such as soybeans, cowpeas and lespedeza were very favorable. The average for the State was 92 percent of normal, which was the same as last year and considerably above the ten year average of 77 percent.

The acreage of soybeans planted for all purposes is estimated at 125,000 acres, which is an increase of 20 percent over the acreage harvested last year. Acreage of cowpeas is estimated at only 85,000 acres, a decrease of 20 percent from last year. The shift from cowpeas to soybeans is largely due to the relatively high price of cowpea seed. Throughout the United States the acreage of soybeans is estimated to be about 10 percent above the 1937 acreage, and is slightly above the record acreage of 1935. In Illinois, which leads in production of commercial soybeans, a slight decrease in the acreage was reported. The total acreage of cowpeas is about 3 percent less than last year, but is the second largest acreage on record, and is about 50 percent above the average for the previous ten years.

Fewer Potatoes
The acreage of potatoes, including the early commercial crop, is estimated at 79,400 acres, which is 13 percent less than the acreage harvested last year. The early commercial acreage was reduced 18 percent and the farm acreage only 5 percent. The early commercial crop, although damaged somewhat by the excessive rains, has been better than average and prospects for the late potatoes are very good. The total production of potatoes is estimated at 10,401,000 bushels, which is about 5 percent less than last year's crop of 10,920,000 bushels. Throughout the United States the total acreage planted to potatoes this year is about 4 percent smaller than last year and about 9 percent below the ten year average. Conditions on July 1 indicated a total crop of 386,400,000 bushels, or about 2 percent less than the 1937 crop but 5 percent larger than the ten year average production.

Weather conditions this season were very favorable for planting sweetpotatoes and the commercial acreage is estimated to be about 5 percent larger than last year, but the farm crop is reported to be slightly smaller. Cool nights during June have retarded growth so that the July 1 condition indicated a slightly smaller yield than average. However, the weather during July and August usually determines the yield of sweetpotatoes, so the actual production would be larger or smaller, depending upon weather conditions during the next two months. Total production of 4,560,000 bushels is indicated, which is about 10 percent less than last year's crop. Throughout the United States the acreage of sweetpotatoes is estimated to be 6 percent above the acreage harvested last year and about 8 percent above the ten year average. Total production based upon July 1 condition is estimated at 82,417,700 bushels, which is 9 percent larger than the 1937 crop. Milk production increased during June as a result of the unusually good pastures, and the aver-

Poultry Discussed At Rural Institute

Canadian Authority on Program of "World's Poultry Congress" to be Held at Blacksburg

Fred C. Elford, of the Dominion of Canada, will speak on the final evening program of the 1938 Institute of Rural Affairs in behalf of the coming "World's Poultry Congress." Thursday afternoon he will speak to the poultry section of the Farmer's Institute on exhibits at the congress. The Institute meets at Blacksburg July 28.

A discussion and clinic on common poultry diseases, under the leadership of Dr. E. P. Johnson of V. P. I., and a visit to the poultry plant are also on the afternoon poultry program.

At the same time, farm men and women interested in dairying and fruit growing will have opportunity to attend sections discussing problems in these fields. The dairy section will see a demonstration on handling dairy animals, by a 4-H club team, one on dairy herd sires, and one on results of feeding clover-molasses silage, by members of the dairy staff. A study trip to see supplemental pastures ends the program.

The horticultural section has scheduled six 20-minute talks: Apple and peach outlook, by Henry M. Taylor, state statistician; apple marketing problems of the future, Porter R. Taylor, bureau of agricultural economics; the apple container situation, W. S. Campfield, secretary, state horticultural society; experiences in building and operating apple storages, E. B. Bonham, Chilhowie; the place of byproducts in the apple marketing program, D. A. Tucker, extension service; our horticultural research program, Dr. A. W. Drinkard, director, Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station; and a visit to apple fertilizer and fruit breeding experiments, Dr. Fred W. Hofmann in charge.

All afternoon sessions of the Farmers Institute and the home demonstration sections will be held from 2:00 to 5:00 Wednesday and Thursday.

"LIVE AT HOME" CAMPAIGN

Whether farmers should give their first attention to producing an adequate food supply for use on their own farms and reduce to a secondary consideration specializing in large scale production of selected crops, is a chief topic of thought among them this summer.

The topic has been stirred up by the Federal Department of Agriculture which in an effort to help farmers make a living out of agriculture is conducting a publicity campaign for promotion of diversified farming in the country.

Meanwhile the department's extension service officials reported satisfactory progress in "Live-at-Home" campaigns in various states.

Officials of the agricultural department have expressed the view that if farmers throughout the nation will produce the milk, livestock, vegetables, feed for livestock, and other various farm products that can be consumed at home, and secondarily specialize in large scale production of wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco, or the like, a considerable part of the nation's relief problem will be solved and surpluses in some crops will be reduced with a consequent rise in prices of farm products.

Reports indicate that a great number of farmers throughout the country are cooperating in the suggested program, and an even greater number will do so next year, though other reports indicate that many farmers, too, prefer to continue to favor specialization with a resultant greater efficiency of production, and gamble on the prices they will get.

FARMERS WARNED
The government has issued a warning to chicken raisers contending that remedies advertised for treatment of coccidiosis, one of the most widespread diseases of young chickens, are not effective. Use of sanitation is the best way to fight it, the report said, urging rigid measures of cleanliness and disinfection for the brooder house and poultry yards.

age of all cows in herds of correspondents was 14.0 compared with 13.6 on June 1. Production a year ago, however, was 14.1 pounds. 72 percent of all cows on farms were being milked this year, compared with 71 percent last year. Milk production in the United States turned downward sharply during June, but the production per cow on July 1 was still higher than a year ago. Total milk production on July 1 was still higher than a year ago. Total milk production on July 1 was about 3 percent higher than at the same time last year.

Egg production showed the seasonal decline during June, but the average reported by correspondents on July 1 of 41.9 eggs per 100 hens was about 4 percent greater than a year ago. The number of hens per farm, however, was slightly less, being 63 compared with 64.

Summer Hog Killing On Southern Farm

One of life's fascinating mysteries is why other people spend their money the way they do, but it's mighty easy to understand the point of view of the farm family that made the choice indicated in the following letter on "My Most Satisfying Purchase Last Year," which we find in the current Progressive Farmer:

"The most satisfying purchase I made in 1937 was my mechanical refrigerator. It has been very satisfactory in several ways. All the summer we had all the ice we wanted, with refreshing cold milk, or tea, or cream at any time.

"When we are expecting company or getting ready for a meeting or for a holiday, we dress five or six chickens at a time, place in refrigerator, and they are better that way. We can make a supply of boiled custard for cream, ice box cookies, and refrigerator rolls. And how easy to have a good meal on short notice! There is no end to the many uses we find for keeping foods. And last but not least, we can kill a hog any kind of weather, place the meat in refrigerator, and it keeps fine. Thus it saves bushels of corn that would be fed to hogs while waiting for cold weather."—Mrs. M. J. Rinehart, Alcorn County, Miss.

FARM PRODUCT PRICES

Farm economists at various universities throughout the country are predicting no further drop in general farm product prices. Though opinions vary, most products are expected to maintain the present low level for a time, but it will not be long before prices begin increasing.

FAVORITE AT DUNES CLUB

Charles and Celeste, popular dance stars are one of the feature attractions of the nightly floor show at the new Dunes, fashionable Virginia Beach night club. Sammy Walsh, Broadway comedian heads the program which includes such well known entertainers as Catherine Smith, billed as "the girl with the magic feet" and Jean Vickers, vivacious songstress. The floor show is presented twice nightly. Al Apollon's society orchestra provide music for the show and dancing. Fred Chiaventone, former Maitre de Hotel at the French Casino in New York and Miami, is in personal charge of cuisine at the club.

BAYNE THEATRE PREVUES

Co-starring two of the screen's leading favorites, Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, "Vivacious Lady" offers a brilliant and up-to-date romance to film-goers. It will be shown here today and tomorrow, July 15 and 16. The stormy love affair of a night-club entertainer and a studious young professor is the theme of this story, the action of which takes place in a sleepy little college town.

The most dramatic situation of the present day—the Spanish civil war—forms the background of the tempestuous love story which is told in "Blockade." Walter Wanger's thrilling romantic drama which stars Madeleine Carroll and Henry Fonda at the Bayne Theatre on Sunday and Monday, July 17 and 18. This is the romance of a man and a girl drawn into the conflict almost against their will—lovers who were at the same time bitter enemies.

They're together again—a new type of romantic team which made such a hit in "Alcatraz Island"—John Littel and Ann Sheridan. Littel and Miss Sheridan play opposite each other in "Little Miss Thoroughbred," the Warner Bros. comedy drama coming to this theatre on Tuesday, July 19. Featured in the cast in the title role is tiny six-year-old Janet Chapman, who makes her screen debut in this picture.

"Three Blind Mice," a gay, romantic story co-starring Loretta

Young and Joel McCrea, is scheduled to be shown on the local screen Wednesday and Thursday, July 20 and 21. "Three Blind Mice" is a farce about three Kansas girls who trek to Santa Barbara in search of millionaire husbands. Featured in the cast are David Niven, Stuart Erwin, Marjorie Weaver, Pauline Moore, Binnie Barnes and Jane Darwell.

STATE REPORTS LESS COTTON

Smallest Crop in Seventeen Years Shown by July 1st. Report on Acreage Planted in State

The acreage of cotton in cultivation on July 1 is estimated at 44,000 acres, compared with 67,000 acres last year and 71,000 the ten year (1927-36) average, according to the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. This year's acreage is only 65 percent of last year's acreage and is the smallest cotton acreage since 1921, when there about 36,000 acres. The largest acreage on record was 113,000 acres in 1924. The principal causes for the large reduction in this year's acreage are the Agricultural Adjustment Program, relatively low cotton prices received for the 1937 crop, and unfavorable weather conditions, which made it difficult to secure a stand.

The eastern counties, Isle of Wight, Nansemond and Southampton, where the soils are lighter, were able to secure a better stand than in the western counties, such as Mecklenburg, Charlotte, Lunenburg and Brunswick, and the former report a smaller decrease than the latter. Many growers even after replanting secured such a poor stand that the cotton was plowed up and the land planted to other crops.

Throughout the United States the acreage for cotton in cultivation on July 1 was estimated at 28,904,000 acres, which is 22 percent less than the acreage a year ago, and 28 percent less than the ten year average. Decreases were shown in all states, with the greatest reduction in California, where this year's acreage is only 57 percent of the 1937 acreage.

No report on probable production of lint will be made until August 8th.

POTATO PRICES FIRM

Marketings of the early and second-early commercial potato crops are about completed, with market prices remaining firm. It was reported by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Shipments have started from the intermediate states, where the crop is indicated to be only 4 percent smaller than that of last year, despite a 12 percent reduction of the acreage planted.

Truck crops in general made less progress during the first half of June than during May. Some producing areas reported weather too cool and others too rainy. Most of the western vegetable areas, however, reported favorable growing conditions.

HAVE HAMILTON FORCES GIVEN PRINCESS ANNE COUNTY A WAY?

"Off The Record" Talk by Hamilton Aids, Concede County to Colgate W. Darden, Jr. by Wide Margin.

Several friends and aids of Norman R. Hamilton have already conceded Princess Anne County to Colgate W. Darden, Jr. even at this early date before election the news learns from reliable sources. Rumors leaking out from "those in the know" say that Mr. Hamilton's closest advisors are none too confident about the outcome of the Democratic Primary on August Second. Unbiased political observers in this County base their predictions of Mr. Darden's victory on the results of the former contest between the two, and to the fact that Mr. Darden's strength in Princess Anne County is much greater than before, and point out that the Hamilton forces have done little work in the County with the exception of several liberal distributions of Mr. Hamilton's Portsmouth Star.

Afternoon Fire In Cavalier Quarters

A fire of unknown origin took place in the servants quarters of the Cavalier Hotel about four o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The Virginia Beach Fire department responded, and with the aid of about twenty members of the voluntary firemen, played two streams of water on the blaze for a matter of the better part of an hour.

It is supposed that the fire was started from some faulty electric equipment in the building, and at the time of the arrival of the firemen it looked as though the entire building might be consumed by the flames. It was said after the fire was extinguished that the loss was in the neighborhood of two thousand dollars.

Baptist Youth Encampment Likely To Move From Beach

Gee Whiz! It Was Hot Here Sunday

But It Was Not as Hot as It Seemed in One of the Local Hotels Where Things were Popping

There have been hot afternoons in Montana, and Virginia Beach too, but the hottest ever recorded occurred late last Sunday afternoon at the Hotel Chalfonte. As the hundred or so guests filled into the dining room they noticed the heat seemed worse than ever, and as the sun set and the outside air cooled, strange to say, the temperature in the dining room steadily rose. As one person remarked the guests were beginning to fry along with the chicken.

Back in the kitchen, sweating over the coal stove, James the chef exclaimed, "Mah soul but dat ole sun sho aht hot fo seben o'clock."

Down stairs in the usually cool coffee shop it was beginning to grow hotter and hotter. Employees even thought they smelled something burning, and examined all electric fan and refrigerator motors, but found nothing wrong.

Then the wine steward, Philip Hanel, thought sure he felt heat radiating from the ceiling. Was the hotel on fire? No, the ceiling felt as cool as did the electric devices. But surely that smell of something burning was coming from the ceiling. Yes, just over the steam pipe it was actually scorched. That pipe! Red hot! Great Scott! The oil furnace was going full blast.

Quickly the furnace was switched off and soon the Chalfonte was back to its usual comfortable coolness, but Manager William H. Noel is still wondering, rather grimly, who pushed up that thermostat.

Grocers Establish Information Office

Tidewater Association Agree to Furnish Aid to Members in Effort to Enforce Fair Trade Law

A committee named by the Tidewater Wholesale Grocery and Wholesalers Association, representing the entire area, held a meeting at the Hotel Elliott, Suffolk, Virginia, last Saturday night with every member of the committee present. The Norfolk office of the association, 200 Bankers Trust Building, Norfolk, Virginia, was designated headquarters to receive complaints and request for information regarding the Fair Trade Law, which became effective June 21, 1933.

Mr. Smithwick, secretary of the association, said he had found a willingness to cooperate and comply with the law from every source, and so far very few violations have occurred, all of which have been the result of misunderstanding or not being informed on the law, and request all who do not understand or desire information on any phase of the law to communicate with his office.

The State Association, of which Mr. Smithwick is also secretary, will, he said, if it is found necessary, establish a central office for legal advice in order to bring about proper adjustment of any matter that can not be satisfactorily corrected through the local set-up. It should be clearly understood, he said, that the Fair Trade Law is one of the laws of the commonwealth with ample provision for the prosecution of violators.

OFFICERS OF REGIMENTS ATTEND DANCE JOINTLY

Friday night the officers of the 116th Infantry will join with the officers of the 246th Coast Artillery in a joint dance at the Terrace Beach Club. This is in the nature of a last get together for the citizen soldiers before their departure for their homes Saturday and Sunday.

Officials Point out That Conditions are Not What would be Desired at Present Location

Marion Contemplated Free Sites Offered as an Inducement to Move to Community Where Surroundings are More Desirable

Virginia Beach is in a fair way to lose the Baptist Woman's Missionary Union activities if stories now being circulated are to be credited. This regular camp which has been an annual affair at the Beach since the summer of 1916, now finds that conditions at the resort, and particularly in the immediate vicinity of the camp property near 14th Street, are not what the guiding members feel they should be for the more than 500 young people who attend during the five weeks of summer program of the encampment.

Stressing the proximity of objectionable forms of entertainment to be found on every hand, and particularly in the vicinity of the camp property, Mrs. George E. Martin, President of the Baptist Women's Missionary Union, pointed out that an increasing number of parents, were arriving at the conclusion that the location of their property was no longer fit for the use to which it is being put, and feel that the influence of the situation on the youth who attend the gatherings is detrimental to their well being. Mrs. Martin, said that the camp officials selected the present site long before the objectionable features put in their appearance at the Beach and unless something can be done it will be necessary for the Union to move the camp to some other community.

Others Bid For Camp

Two tentative proposals have been received by those in charge. One comes from interested citizens of Roanoke, Virginia, and the other from The Chamber of Commerce of Marion. It is understood that in each instance suitable sites have been offered for the incampment free of charge, and that a committee of the State Organization will meet this morning to decide whether or not to remain at the Beach. Unless something can be worked out of the present dilemma at this meeting a decision will be reached to leave.

At the present time another site in the vicinity is being considered, and may be decided upon. Continued use of the camp property as at present located seems to be out of the question. Mrs. Martin, added, that it is obvious that some things which attract one group are distasteful to another group, and under the circumstances the Women's Missionary Union feels that the property is badly located for its purposes, but what will be done will be decided at the meeting this morning.

Capacity Crowds Here Last Sunday

Local Observers Claim last Sunday's Crowd was One of Largest in History of Resort

Many local residents and business men are enthusiastically claiming that last Sunday's throngs of visitors was the largest number to ever visit this resort. Ideal weather conditions and the recent heat wave over this section of the country, prompted thousands of people to grab their bathing suits and head this way. However no one attempted anything near an accurate check on the number of visitors here, so the matter of numbers will still remain in dispute. Many business men have ventured the statement, that the crowds looked much larger than on the Fourth of July. Hotel, Cottage and boarding house operators report that they were filled to capacity last weekend and that many of them have had to turn away guests for the past several days.

Battleship Will Be Allocated To Norfolk Navy Yard Regardless Of Congressional Campaign Outcome

Interesting Letter from Navy Department to Publisher of Tidewater News Belies Present Representatives Claims

And interesting bit of news coming to hand recently and telling it's own story more effectively than other words can express it, is the letter quoted below, from Admiral William D. Leahy, acting Secretary of Navy in the absence of Secretary of Navy, Claude Swanson. The letter follows:

NAVY DEPARTMENT
WASHINGTON

11 July 1933

My dear Mr. King:

The receipt is acknowledged of your letter of July 7th requesting information in regard to the assignment of construction work to the Norfolk Navy Yard.

In the temporary absence of Mr. Swanson I am very pleased to be able to make a categorical reply to your question as follows: The outcome of your Congressional campaign in the Second District of Virginia will have no effect whatever on the allocation of a battleship to the Norfolk Navy Yard.

Very truly,
WILLIAM D. LEAHY,
Admiral, U. S. Navy.

Soldier In Double Batten Convicted Cape Henry Rescue In County Court

Member of Battery E, 246th Coast Artillery Brings Mother and Son to Safety; First Aid Rendered

A double rescue of mother and young son was accomplished about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon through the heroic effort of two soldiers, members of the 246th Coast Artillery, Virginia National Guard. From what could be learned from witnesses of the incident both of the victims of the near tragedy owe their rescue to the efforts of the two enlisted men one of whom was an expert swimmer.

Mrs. Robert H. Sellow of 108 West 37th Street, Norfolk, whose husband is a member of the police force of that city, was on the beach at the time of the experience, while her young son Robert, Pugh Sellow, was swimming in the water near by. In some manner the child stepped in a hole which rendered him beyond his depth. Mrs. Sellow said to have noticed the plight of her son and made her way to him, but this child, thoroughly frightened by the thing so tightly to her that she became exhausted by her efforts to reach the shore and called for help. Fortunately the soldiers who were on the beach at the time heard her screams.

Powerful Swimmer

Proctor Harvey, of Lynchburg, a member of Battery E, rushed into the water in answer to the call, and according to witnesses, it is due to the fact that he is a powerful swimmer that a tragedy was avoided. He was assisted in bringing the victims to shore by Robert Goolsby, also of Lynchburg, a member of the same outfit, who, unable to swim, pushed a boat to those in distress. Miss Anne Nichols made up effort to assist the mother and son before the arrival of Harvey but found herself unable to accomplish the rescue due to the fact that there were two people in distress at the same time.

First aid was rendered by the two soldiers and members of the Cape Henry Coast Guard from the nearby station. Mrs. Sellow and (Continued on Page Eight)

California Couple Cycle From Coast

James P. Young and his wife were visitors at the Beach last Thursday and Friday, but it was the tandem bicycle on which they made the trip from far-off Salinas, California, in 88 days that made their visit of unusual interest to people who saw them ride into town. They were an interesting sight on their "bicycle built for two."

HUNTING SEASON TO BE EXTENDED

More and Better Ducks Promised for Fall Open Season by Head of Biological Survey

FIFTEEN DAYS ADDED

Bag Limit and Other Restrictions to Remain in Force; Canvasback Again Legitimate Game

Announcing an extension of the 15 days to the regular hunting season this fall, the Biological Survey, seems to foresee an increase in the number of ducks, as a result of improved conditions in the breeding grounds this spring and summer. This will be welcome news to Tidewater duck hunters coming as it does on the heels of several lean years.

Opening date for ducks and geese has been fixed as November 15, and closing date will fall on the 29th of December, according to information given out by the Biological Survey. This will mean that the coming season will extend over a period of 45 days instead of 30 days as formerly.

The bag limit will remain unchanged except for a limited allowance of canvasbacks, redheads, ruddy and buffhead ducks, up to three in all, but in no case is a hunter allowed to kill more than 10 ducks in a single day.

Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson, chief of the Biological Survey, saw an increase in the number of migratory birds, and based his opinion on the reports coming to his office from the field agents based on first hand investigation. Dr. Gabrielson, pointed out that restrictions as to three shells in automatic guns, and the baiting of birds would remain in force.

Gayety And Sports Summer Features

Social Affairs and Sports Events Fill Mid Summer Week's Program of Visitors to Resort

Mid Summer gayety dominates the scene at this Tidewater resort. Various social affairs fill the calendar of the cottage colonists, many of whom will entertain in their homes today (July 23) preceding joining in the revelry at the dinner dance at night (July 23) at the Cavalier Beach Club. Bourbons and Bayne, smart Broadway dance team, head the floor show. Novelties will be introduced by Johnny Lane and his radio orchestra, who furnish the dance music at this Club during the summer season. Paddle tennis in the cabana courts is a favorite daytime pastime here between dashes into the surf and sun bathing.

Fisherman in this resort are making record catches these days from the surrounding waters of the Atlantic. Catches of the famous Virginia "spot", unusually large in size, are being made daily. Surf casting for flying fish and roundheads is a phase of this sport now chosen by many fishing enthusiasts at the Beach.

The Equestrian Gymkhana on Sunday afternoon (July 24) in the showring at the Cavalier Hotel will have feature classes, in addition to the jumping jamboree by thoroughbred horses and riders. There also will be a circus class, in which will appear handomely costumed riders on selected horses, and clowns, and also, all to participate in various circus acts.

The weekend sports calendar includes mixed doubles tennis exhibition matches on Sunday on the courts at the Cavalier Hotel which have been arranged by Mr. Pat Hearst. A large group of colonists is carded to play in a golf sweepstake tournament, at the Cavalier Country Club, details of which are in charge of Mr. Walter Beckett.

Two Regiments to Pass in Review before Regular Army Inspecting Officers at State Reservation

Governor May Attend

Firing of Big Guns and Regimental Cross Country Hike Part of Past Week's Program for State Soldiers

This morning at 9 o'clock the Virginia National Guard units training in this area will pass in review on the parade grounds at the State Military Reservation. The officers and men of the 116th Infantry and the 246th Coast Artillery will be brigaded together for purposes of the parade and review. Colonel George M. Alexander, commanding the 116th Infantry will be in command, and Colonel Alonzo E. Wood, commanding the 246th Coast Artillery will receive the review.

Heading the reviewing party, and composing the Regular Army group for whom the review will be held, is Colonel Clifford E. Early, Inspecting Officer of the Third Corps Area, who is completing his tour of service with the Virginia National Guard, and who will go to Atlanta, Georgia, for duty in September of this year, and Lieutenant Colonel Jesse L. Sinclair, Instructor of the 246th Coast Artillery, who is likewise completing a six year tour of duty and will soon report at his new post in New Jersey.

With some 1,700 men in line and the probability that the Governor of Virginia will be present to review the troops, the spectacle promises to be a military display seldom seen at the Virginia Beach Reservation. The 600 men of the 246th Coast Artillery will be transported that the ceremony of review and inspection can be in one maneuver. The limited facilities as to parade grounds at Fort Story made it necessary that the review be held on the parade grounds at the State Reservation.

Rain Hails Hike

On Tuesday of this week what was planned as an overnight hike was interrupted by rain, but the officers and men of the 116th Infantry carried out the cross-country hike in spite of the weather. At the termination of the march camp was pitched and shelter tents were erected. The regular inspection of men and equipment was conducted to the satisfaction of those in authority. The field kitchens were ready for the feeding of the men in a matter of 45 minutes, and the Regiment concluded the seven miles of the march in time for the return to the permanent camp to spend a night in restful slumber.

Yesterday two batteries of the 246th Coast Artillery were engaged in firing the eight-inch railway rifles at Fort Story. The big guns were being fired at targets at sea. Battery E, of Lynchburg, under the command of Captain W. A. Garbee, and Battery D of Covington under the command of Captain Randolph M. Cabell, conducted the firing for the day.

Saturday afternoon will witness the beginning of the departure of the troops for their homes, after completing two weeks of training (Continued on Page Eight)

P. D. Halstead to Build the New Ice Storage Plant

Construction to Start in Near Future

P. D. Halstead, one of our new ice men, announced this week that his company will build a new ice storage plant at Virginia Beach in the near future and that this new facility will enable his organization to give even better service in this area than before, and that patrons will be able to obtain ice at their convenience direct from the platform. Mr. Halstead pointed out that his company was glad to be operating at the Beach and that they were appreciative and gratified at the response local ice consumers had given them.

"THE VOICE of a majority, swaying the course of government does not insure good government except it be the voice of a well-informed and well-intentioned people."

THE SUFFOLK NEWS ON JOE DEAL

In an editorial on July 11, Mr. Deal's old friend of the Suffolk Herald, takes him to task because of his support of Colgate Darden for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. House of Representatives and in a labored effort charges him with inconsistency. The Editor ought to know that Mr. Deal has not been inconsistent. Possibly he may have been too much so, but we are not going to quarrel with our old friend because we chance to differ in one political contest. Mr. Deal's appreciation of the many laudations and consistent support by the Herald during his own campaigns is too profound and his gratitude therefore is too consistently lasting to be forgotten under any circumstances. He can never forget that time and time again the Herald has paid to him the highest compliment that one man could pay to another in his characterization of him as honest Joe Deal. This to him was worth more than a seat in Congress without, to say nothing of other commendable things written not the least among which was the splendid obituary written for him by the Herald seven years ago. He has often wondered if when the time comes to pass in his checks whether he would then have so many flowers dedicated to his memory. Let he should forget, all the Herald's praises have been carefully preserved and will be passed on to his posterity as among his greatest achievement in life. The Herald's last word detracts but little and he loves it and his Editor just as much as ever.

A LOSS TO THE BEACH

Contemplating the significance of an article appearing in today's issue of the News to the effect that the Baptist Women's Missionary Union plans to leave the Beach, one becomes appalled. Here we have an organization which has brought 500 or more young people to this resort, and those necessary to look out for the welfare of that number, in addition, every year since 1916. First and last the largest single group, to come here for so many years. Today the officers of the Missionary Union are deciding whether or not they will leave Virginia Beach, at least that part within the corporate limits.

This state of affairs has not been brought about, by any desire on their part to go elsewhere, nor has it been urged by other communities until it became known that the Union was dissatisfied with conditions here. The fact remains that a wholesome group of substantial citizens feel that they are unwilling to bring young people to live, and enjoy life, in the very heart of our resort. It is the same place and the same buildings, in which they have spent 22 happy years among us. The fact that it is no longer satisfactory can be charged to an increasing laxity along certain lines where young people constantly go. We feel that the Beach will be the loser if it turns out that the committee meeting today decides to leave the resort. We will continue to feel that something could have been done to avoid the loss, and the doing of that one thing would have left the Beach a better place in which to rear young children, whether they be visitors, or the children of the local residents. The exercise of the authority which permits this condition to exist is one of tremendous responsibility and carries with it its own penalties, one of which bids fair to be the loss of Baptist Woman's Missionary Union.

THE PHASES OF ACCIDENT PREVENTION

The mid-summer week-ends again focus public attention on America's ghastly highway problem. Every holiday, vast numbers of people lose their lives—the majority from automobile accidents.

As highway experts point out, there are three definite primary phases that must be considered and covered in any accident campaign that is to produce results. These are: Standardization of traffic laws and devices in the various states; elimination of accident-prone roads and intersections; education of the individual driver.

At the present time, driving practices that are legal in one state are illegal across the border. Dozens of types of warning signals, lights and signs are in use, and constitute a constant bewildering to the motorist who drives any distance away from his home town. Some state motor patrols are known to be strict in enforcing the law; others are lax. The result is a legislative and administrative chaos, that breeds accidents.

Eliminating the accident-prone location is strictly an engineering problem. A wide, smooth-surfaced road is not necessarily make for safety either. Safety engineers have designed highways and intersections which make it impossible for cars to cross each other's path, which obviate the chance of head-on collisions by the use of lane separators of one kind or another, and which eliminate other hazards. Practice has proven that this work will cut the accident rate astonishingly. Here is where government, federal, state and local, can do an invaluable work which will benefit all the people.

As for education, the thing to be kept in mind is that sporadic campaigns are useless, and that continuity of effort is all-important. The great responsibility that falls upon anyone when he takes the wheel of a car must be constantly drummed into the public. Engineers, law enforcement authorities, educators and the general public must work together. Only then will the growing toll of highway deaths and injuries be lessened.

INSULIN'S PASSING

Sunday morning the story of the death of Samuel Insull, former head of the $40,000,000 utilities empire befitting his name was published, and told of his sudden passing as a result of a heart attack in a Paris subway. The 78 years old genius of finance and organization, who rose to a position of eminence, as a result of manipulation of the affairs of the vast properties, will be remembered by the thousands who suffered ruin in the crash as just another manipulator who failed in the questionable practice of speculation with the funds of others.

However, to argue that the man was that and nothing more, is to be blind to the facts. True it is that the accomplishments of the man were possible only in a time like the wild days of speculation in twenty-nine. But none can deny that for sheer organizing ability he was in a class by himself. Had it been possible for things to continue as they were during the late twenties, the man would have been remembered as successful giant of finance, instead of as a man who failed, and by his failure carried down thousands of others with him to failure. He was unquestionably the top-ranking figure among many who built on a grand scale only to see the product of their work crumble before their eyes for lack of foundation.

Bankrupt, and with the memory of the criminal charge of fraud, for which he was indicted and acquitted, on his mind he died a broken old man. In his last days he was a pensioner of the surviving companies he formerly headed. Never the less, he remains a giant figure of his time, and a failure because the times in which he lived, not because he was in any respect wanting in ability.

TO DOUGLAS CORRIGAN

Douglas Corrigan, we salute you. From the bottom of our hearts. And we hail your old "Jalopy". With its cheap spare parts.

Of course, we look not lightly, Upon Hughes's glaring feat. But, "Doug", you're really thrilled us. From our derbies to our feet.

You didn't have a fancy ship, With rudders one and two, And you didn't have a compass. That was altogether true?

You didn't have a passport, But you had an Irish name, And you headed out for Ireland. For the Irish play the game.

You didn't trust to science, To play the leading part, Instead the lead was given, To a fighting Irish heart.

To fight against tremendous odds; At times almost in vain; To fight out there all alone, In an antiquated plane.

And, furthermore, we're grateful. If the news is not just rumor; Someone at last has done the job. Who has a sense of humor.

If I may sneak a word or two, For a friend of mine, please pardon, Anyway, the word or two, IS VOTE FOR COLGATE DARDEN.

COURAGE

Now, there must be some reason I am maimed

And left to face and live my life alone—

Some purpose for the mellowness of tone

That sings within my heart, I am not blamed.

Nor do I blame, nor is there one I've named

Who caused this hurt that made me once become

The fate that struck me down. For I have gone

Beyond the pain; thus I am truly tamed.

Vindictive thoughts I toss off to the winds

Since there's some object for my taking hold

Of great responsibilities to come. My heart needs strength; instead

It surely finds

That it must beat with courage; and be bold

Enough to help another soul find some.

CAROLINE PARKER SMITH.

(The following two poems were written about 1,000 years ago. As far as their freshness is concerned, they might have been written yesterday. Translation from the Chinese is by Witter Bynner and Kiang Kang-hu for The Nation):

Drum-Beats

Far off in the clouds, walls of Han-yang

Lie a day's journey for my single sail.

Though a river-merchant ought to be sleeping in calm weather,

He hears the tide at night and voices of the boatmen . . .

My thin hair grows windy, like the three Hsiang streams,

Homesick, for ten thousand li my heart follows the moon;

But the war has left me nothing of my heritage—

And O this pang of drum-beats on the river!

—LU LUN.

AN OLD FISHERMAN

An old fisherman spent the night there, under the western cliff.

Dipped up water from the pure Hsiang, kindled the Chu bamboos;

And then, at sunrise, he vanished, ed, through cloven mist.

With only the creak of his paddle left, in the greenness of mountain and river . . .

I turn and see the waves moving as from heaven

And clouds above the cliffs coming idly, one by one.

—LIU TSUNG YUAN.

SAND DUNES

The grizzled mendicants are moving by.

The old men of the beach. They do not come

With quickened step; they are so slow the eye

Can only guess that they are edging home.

And now they pull the silence like

X-Cerpts From The News

This business of flying the Atlantic Ocean is getting to be a common occurrence. It was done twice in successive weeks, but the second trip caught the imagination as a daring venture more than the previous Globe circling experience of Howard Hughes. Unheralded Douglas P. Corrigan, took off from New York, ostensibly for a return hop to California, but headed his plane toward the Atlantic and kept on going. Twenty-eight hours later he landed safely in Baldonnel, Ireland. Considering that his plane was 1929 model and his navigation instruments extremely limited in scope, it was a daring feat and a notable success. Technically he is subject to punishment at the hands of the Bureau of Air Commerce, but when it is realized that Bureau Chief Mulligan must act to punish aviator Corrigan, it remains as the chief said, "a great day for the Irish."

Death came to Dowager Queen Marie, of Rumania, Monday after an extended illness. She had long been a world figure, and is associated in the minds of this generation with the period preceding and during the World War. America remembers her as the Queen who visited our country and toured from coast to coast with regal splendor and theatrical publicity, culminating in a royal banquet at the Whitehouse in 1926, when President Coolidge, entertained in her honor. History will place her as a tragic figure. Transplanted as she was from her native England, to a strange country, by the circumstance of her marriage to King Ferdinand of Rumania, she lived to see tragedy enter into the lives of nearly every member of her immediate household. Withal, she was esteemed in the minds of her adopted people and in spite of idle rumors (which must have been ugly gossip) touching on her personal life, she died with a great love in her heart for Rumania, and in turn beloved by the Rumanian people.

With the temperature officially recording 95 degrees, and the heat in the particular spot we call our office seemingly hotter than that, those who profit, because of the inrush of people to the Beach to escape the heat in inland places, are in a fair way to be pressed for accommodations for all the guests they can put away this weekend. Judging from the crowds on the beach last Sunday the resort seemed to enjoy the biggest day of the year except for the Fourth of July. In that there is nothing to be done to change the weather, we will have to learn to take the heat as it comes and think of those who profit because there is a crowd. Bring on the heat. It will bring on the visitors to the Beach.

We note that stocks hit a new high for the year 1938, and in so doing have recovered about 40 per-cent of the loss incurred since early last spring. This of itself may not be of great interest to many of our readers, but we have observed that there is unquestionably a better feeling in the country as a whole when the market is on the up grade than when it is slipping. Further than that, resorts have a way of getting bigger and better crowds under these circumstances, and if a healthy increase can be maintained throughout the remainder of the season, the Beach should record it in larger arrivals for August, than has been the case during the early part of the summer. Unless we are wrong it was just the reverse of that situation which made the latter part of last year, less successful for the people here as a whole.

The CIO's Non-Partisan League, of which John L. Lewis, is chairman, blackballed a number of Congressmen and singled them out for defeat in the coming elections. It is refreshing to see that most of them reflected complete satisfaction upon learning of the designation as "unsatisfactory to the league." In fact most of those listed welcomed the opposition. It would appear that they feel that their chances of re-election have been advanced by being singled out by the Lewis group for punishment. Recalling the experience of the Lewis candidates in the recent Pennsylvania primaries, we are inclined to feel that the country, having had certain experiences with the CIO, will think twice before listening to what Lewis thinks about the actions of any particular candidate.

President Sails Aboard The Houston On Fishing Trip. Headline. All true sportsmen will wish him luck in his fishing efforts. Certain it is that the time and effort expended, and the style in which he does the fishing waters of both the Atlantic and the Pacific, serve to qualify the President as the "number-one fisherman of the United States." It would be more interesting to the fisherman if we could learn something of the catch instead of so much about the going and coming. We believe he could tell the story of the "big one that got away" about as well as any fisherman we ever heard tell that age old tale.

One of the oddest things to come to light as a result of the Congressional investigation of TVA now being conducted in Washington, is the statement before the committee yesterday by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, deposed chairman of the board, that he learned of the rates fixed for power from the public press. Another Director, David E. Lilienthal, announced the rates (variously) without consulting with the chairman. Coming as this does on the heels of rumors and charges of failure to cooperate, and being made under oath by the former chairman, it is indication of a very bad situation in the internal affairs of the TVA. Little wonder that Dr. Morgan felt compelled to bring the matter to the attention of the President, and failing to get action on his complaints, brought about a situation that made it necessary for the President to oust him. The country seems in a fair way to learn just what has been going on behind the scenes with the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., are receiving congratulations on the birth of their first born. A boy of seven pounds who was described by the proud father "as a very beautiful baby", in his pre-judged eyes. All are doing well at this writing, and every thing seems to have been arranged except a name for the little one. How it can be other than Franklin D. Roosevelt, the third, is more than we can see, but of course time will clear up that little matter.

Along the battle fronts in and of the major wars being fought today, we learn that Great Britain has had another ship bombed in the Spanish harbor. This makes more than sixty such instances since the beginning of the practice. In that the last case came as negotiations were being conducted between the British Government, and the insurgent leader, General Franco, looking to the discontinuance of the bombings, it may very easily bring those negotiations to an end, with prospects for further trouble for Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's foreign policy.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, is quoted as stating that it will not be long before "Manchuria and Korea will become battlefields." This is because of the recent border trouble in Manchukuo in which the Japanese claim that the Russians have occupied disputed territory in that country. The Generalissimo's statement may be no more than the wish being father to the thought, but, if as he says, it will lead to war on that front then the world is in for a phase of the far eastern situation that may lead to grave consequences.

It seems to us that the awarding of the 1940 Olympic Games to Finland must in some way be a good omen of peace. Promoted in the interest of international goodwill these games have been considered a splendid medium for the spread of fellowship and friendly rivalry among the competing nations, but as was planned, there would have been small chance for this in Japan. Now that peacefully Finland is bombing, it may be that the whole atmosphere of the games changes, and unless we wrong in our deductions the change will be universally acclaimed by those who are interested and incidentally Finland will put up keen competition for all comers.

VOODOO GOLD

A story written by the early Mark Twain told of the theft of a bank's gold from a midwestern township. The thieves filled the vaults with feathers. They did the job undetected, took the loot to the hills, and there waited for the expected hullabaloo. To their amazement, nothing happened. The substitution was never found out, and the economic life of the community went on undisturbed. One is reminded of the story by the report that a party of bankers has been allowed to take a peep at the immense stock of the nation's gold out at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Suppose they had found feathers instead of gold? Would it have made any difference to the nation's economic life, presuming the guards had pledged them to secrecy, "or else"? Not at all. No longer is gold Humpty Dumpty, sitting on its pedestal in solitary glory. Mark Twain's story is a lesson in the present. The nation's money is regulated, not by the amount of gold, but by the needs of the people as determined by the monetary authorities in Washington.

Mark Twain would have chuckled to read of the bankers' visit to Fort Knox. His story was an economic parable showing that money is credit. If, as Tom Paine once said, credit is "suspension asleep," then there is all the more reason to preserve confidence in it, now that its golden prop has been removed.

Christian Science Monitor

THAT "GENERAL FEELING" AGAIN

The recent improvement in security values, after many months of disheartening declines, has been received with mixed sentiment. Under normal conditions, the gains would be regarded as the start of an upward cycle. But under the abnormal conditions prevailing today, there is a strong and well-grounded fear that the gains will be merely temporary, and that they constitute only a flurry of no real significance.

In other words, what the country lacks today is confidence. That "general feeling" of uncertainty and worry is as strong as it ever was, and perhaps stronger. Millions of people feel much as if they were living above a volcano that might erupt at any moment. There is no stability. And to say that this sentiment is unjustified, as some of the politicians do, is Captrap.

The tax problem has barely been touched. The national debt, in spite of past promises to reduce it, soars to new record after new record. More labor troubles are imminent. The government, instead of encouraging productive private business, has continued with its inimical policies, and it threatens to go further into business on its own hook at the expense of existing private investments. The chaotic political situation is a thorn in the side of industry and investment.

No one expects such problems as these to be solved at once. But if an honest start were made to deal with them, there would be an amazing restoration of confidence. If government actually cooperated with business—if government put into effect a plan for gradually reducing the debt—if government gave the investor assurance his savings would not be destroyed by government itself—we would be on the way to stability.

And then improvement in security values or in industrial production or in other economic matters, would be greeted with faith and optimism, investment of capital and "real" jobs.

IT'S THE MOTORIST OWN FAULT

One of the more recently advanced theories for the reduction of fatal automobile accidents on the highways of the nation is highway lighting, but we are of the firm opinion that the only real solution of the death dealing problem lies in the hands of the motorist. The consistent and willful failure to observe ordinary courtesies, not to say laws, keeps the National toll in the neighborhood of 40,000.

The advocates of the highway lighting systems contend that they prove their contention by citing the small number of accidents on brilliantly lighted streets of cities. This is no argument. The average motorist on the brilliantly lighted city street is almost constantly under the surveillance of an officer's eye. That is to say, the laws that he would scoff at on the country road or highway when he felt that no officer would be likely to apprehend him.

No doubt the lighting system would be some help and it is said to be inexpensive. There are two of these systems offered. One, which is useful only for hard paved roads, is based upon in-bedding a reflecting material in the road surface so that the headlights pick out the roadway and show clearly whether there are any obstructions ahead. The other is an ingenious device placed on posts or telegraph poles along the roadside, which catches the beam of the headlight and projects it ahead, lighting up the road for half a mile or so, its advocates claim. Two or three of these to the mile are said to light the highway almost as well as daylight.

Improved highways, better lighted roads, non-glare headlights, safety glass, more frequent police patrol, all will tend to a reduction of the ghastly death toll. Virginia's new Motor Vehicle Code, designed to protect motorists in this State, if they be local or tourist, would go far in its designed purpose of protection, but motorists will not observe the law. We have been traveling at the fifty-five mile rate only to be almost swept from the road by a machine passing at a speed estimated by us to be in excess of seventy-five miles per hour. We drove ten miles on Friday night of last week testing compliance with the new compulsory headlight-dimming provision of the law. Meeting nearly one hundred motor driven vehicles we dimmed our lights as each approached; NOT ONE VEHICLE WE MET DIMMED ITS LIGHTS!

Nine out of ten drivers coming out of side roads into the Highway don't even lessen their speed unless they see a vehicle on the Highway nearing the intersection. A limited number of State patrolling officers cannot hope to cope with such widespread violations; they catch all they see, but they can't see all of the law breakers.

It's not the fault of the police; it's not the fault of the safety devices on the vehicles; there's only one cause for the ever-mounting (Continued on Page Five)

THE PRE-PRIMARY TOUR

President Roosevelt has now been out a week on his national pre-primary tour, a national stump campaign that qualifies as unusual even in an era of unorthodox political techniques. While the nation is familiar with and expects candidates for national office to take the stump in their own behalf, the situation this summer, as a president elected two years ago urges the nomination or re-nomination of favored candidates within party primaries, is just a little different. Only the existence of party scism, perhaps, is responsible. President Roosevelt took his greatest chance in Kentucky, where the incumbent, Senator Barkley, will be opposed by Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler in the primary. Since Senator Barkley is the floor leader, the party whip of the upper chamber, the White House naturally has the keenest interest in his political success in his native State. However, the popularity of Governor Chandler made the outright endorsement of Senator Barkley a feat of political daring of the first order. The President ventured greatly: only the primary results can tell whether he lost or gained greatly.

In Ohio, where the President endorsed Senator Buckley, it is felt that the favored contender has comparatively easy sledding for re-nomination. Correspondents from Oklahoma give Senator Thomas, who has the President's blessings in that State, an even chance in a three-cornered race. Senator McAdoo of California is regarded the victory in his primary race. The President's letter of previous weeks, having clarified the administration position unmistakably. In Colorado both Senator Adams and his opponent, Benjamin C. Hilliard, Colorado Supreme Court Justice, claim themselves to be Roosevelt men, although Hilliard calls himself a 100 per cent, Adams declaring he will "not be a rubber stamp for Roosevelt or any one else." Both incumbent and new candidates in all of these contests pose as New Dealers, with the exception of Senator Adams. It remains to be seen whether the President will take the stump against Senators Smith of South Carolina, George of Georgia or Tydings of Maryland. It is rumored that he has been advised against public statements in the two Southern States, prospects of victory for both George and Smith being held good. In Maryland, where Tydings is getting fairly stiff opposition from Representative Lewis, a word might be said in favor of the latter. Tydings' nay-voting on most New Deal issues has marked him as perhaps the Number 1 Congressional purge victim. The most important result of the primaries in the States visited on the Presidential visited on the Presidential tour will be public reaction to the idea of active participation by the President in intra-party affairs.

If over-whelming majorities are returned for Bulkeley, Barkley, Thomas, and the others marked with Presidential tokens of goodwill, it will mean that the people do not resent direct White House influence at their intra-party polls; if, on the other hand, Presidentially-favored candidates lose or receive but slight majorities, the people will have signified their distaste of Presidential influence extended in that direction.

DIGGING UP THE PAST
By Sir Leonard Woolley
Pelican Books (Penguin Books Ltd.) 12 cents
A Review by J. N. G. Finley, Extension Division,
University of Virginia

People who are forever digging up the past for no reason at all except to be unpleasant ought to have some especially disconcerting mode of torture designed for their hereafter. But those few who give themselves to digging it up as Sir Leonard Woolley has done it should be crowned with laurel. The belief that men who spend much of their lives kneeling in the sand, letting the grains run through their fingers as they look for shattered remnants of old pottery, must inevitably write books as dry as Egypt will probably persist for a long time. We can expect to have with us all ways enough sufficiently dry archaeological—as there are arid individuals in every profession—to sustain the belief. Yet there will always be, too, let us hope, a Blegan to keep an audience on the edge of his chairs as he talks of the work at Troy, or a Woolley to write of excavating in Mesopotamia as though it were a real "romance."

The contents of his books were originally given by Sir Leonard as a series of talks to radio audiences in Great Britain. For that reason they are aimed at answering questions of the sort which naturally arise in the minds of those of us who, while interested, have no knowledge of the archaeologist's technique. Obviously "the past" had to be dug out, but how, in the first place, did it all get covered up? How was it that all the towns and villages we hear of as being piled up one on top of the other came to be so? And how does an archaeologist make a beginning? Often he will dig down in some seemingly unpromising spot and make a real find. Is it foresight or plain luck? Things of that sort a writer like Sir Leonard takes up in his first chapter. It seems that archaeologists don't go just anywhere, close their eyes, toss a rock over their shoulder and then go to digging wherever the rock lands. They are more scientific than that, but they do have luck.

The second chapter—from a brief glance at the table of contents—would seem to have very boring possibilities. "The start of an excavation—The staff of an expedition—The size of a gang—Division of labour" and so on, does not sound promising. Yet it is really amusing. And the graft that has to be paid, and the scheme worked out to discourage the stealing of "finds"—well, it only proves that archaeologists are very clever people after all. In his third chapter, "Work On A Town Site," Sir Leonard tells not only of his own excavating but of that of Sir Arthur Evans about whom every one who has been to high school must certainly have heard. The painstaking labor of reconstructing a house or temple of years ago, while written of modestly enough, must appeal anybody whose patience often wears thin over very little matters.

Grave digging—as a phase of archaeology—is also an art. But there is more to the pages on this subject than merely information on how to go about finding a mummy. The customs of early peoples are discussed and what their beliefs were which led them to practice their various burial rites.

And just as Sir Leonard discusses in his introductory chapter what moves and guides an excavating, or field archaeologist in all his work, so at the end he tells what, besides putting them in museums, is done with the finds. This is not a new book, but it is just as fresh as when it first came from the press. And it is a great deal cheaper now in its role as a Pelican book than it was then.

If your local library is unable to lend you this book the Extension Division, University, Virginia, will be glad to do so.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS TO BUILDING PROBLEMS

Q. Air from the vent pipe of my gas heater blows the flame out whenever there is a north or east wind. How can this be stopped?
A. Most likely the vent pipe above the roof is too short. It should extend 2 feet above the highest point of the roof.

Q. Without going to the expense of extensive insulation how can I make the upper part of my one-and-one-half-story home cool in summer?

A. Provide large louvers in each gable end of the roof to circulate the air in the space between ceiling and roof. On hip roofs provide louver dormers. The louvers should be built as high as possible.

Q. Despite the fact that my house is not yet 15 years old I have had to replace much of the original mechanical equipment. Why is this so?

A. Any equipment containing movable parts will sooner or later need replacements. When selecting it this should be considered, and the probable length of service before replacement is necessary should be taken into consideration.

Q. The basement is inclined to be damp. I do not wish to go to any great expense but would like to cover it with linoleum if that will do away with the dampness.

A. By all means do not lay linoleum over a damp cellar floor. It would not correct the dampness and would be most unsatisfactory. It is suggested that you find the cause of this damp condition and correct it. Keep your basement windows open on warm dry days in order to provide proper ventilation.

Q. In the plans of my house there is a closet shown for a gas furnace. Should it have an outside vent?

A. Such a vent is required in most communities and should be installed in any event. It doesn't have to be a large vent, perhaps a 6-inch pipe would be sufficient, depending upon the size of the heater.

Q. I have pine flooring in my home, and it stains whenever water gets on it. Can I do anything to check this?

A. Stains can be taken out and unfinished wood whitened by bleaching with oxalic acid. Dissolve 1 pound of crystals in 1½ gallons of hot water. Brush on floor and allow to remain all night. Go over floor with clear

WHEN you are planning your house, no matter how inexpensive it may be, keep in mind how you will furnish it. The position of the windows in a bedroom often determines the location of the bed. This is only a detail in house planning but it is important when the structure is completed. Sizes of the various pieces of furniture should be remembered at all times. Large pieces of furniture should never be placed against a window. Another matter that should be considered is the stock sizes of rugs and carpets. It is aggravating to find that a room is a few inches too short to take a suitable stock-size floor covering.

Light in Closet—It always is desirable to have light and plenty of it in a closet. The door should be arranged to open in such a manner as to permit daylight to shine directly into the closet. When cost does not forbid, an electric light should be placed in every closet. This light should be operated by means of a door switch that will turn on the light when the door is opened and turn off when the door is closed.

Dining nooks, alcoves and breakfast nooks are some of the names applied to small spaces just large enough to accommodate a table and two or four seats. A dining nook should be placed in the kitchen or adjacent to the kitchen so that steps will be saved in serving the meal. These spaces should be well lighted and arranged so that they will receive an abundance of sunshine in the morning hours. They should boast a cheerful and inviting atmosphere.

World-Wide Moderation Growth Shown By Brewing Statistics

International reports show that 25 nations have increased production of beer and ale in 1932, in the wake of world-wide developments favoring beer as the beverage of moderation.

WORLD-WIDE increase in beer and ale consumption has kept pace with temperance education advocating use of the beverage of moderation and sobriety, according to the latest international production figures obtained from European sources by the United Brewers Industrial Foundation. The official figures, after a final checkup, will be published by the League of Nations. The greatest increases have been recorded in these countries where the promotion of beer's temperate qualities has been most widespread and effective. This is particularly true in the United States and European countries, especially the British Isles, where a rise of more than $600,000,000 barrels was reported for 1932 over 1931. Soviet Russia, which has fought for temperance on a broad scale in recent years, increased its beer production by 72 per cent in four years and Mexico, engaging in similar fight, added 128 per cent to beer production in the years

Two countries—Palestine and Mexico—increased production over 100 per cent since 1931. Countries that increased production over 50 per cent included the United States (since 1931), Finland, Canada, Soviet Russia, Brazil, Lithuania, Latvia, Greece, Guatemala, Chile and Peru.

Countries with over 25 per cent increase were Argentina, Australia, New Zealand, Italy, Hungary, Estonia, Poland, Union of South Africa and Belgium Congo countries that increased output by 25 per cent were United Kingdom, Germany, Denmark, Ireland, Norway, Sweden, Japan, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Luxembourg, France, Egypt and Czechoslovakia.

The figures published by the Brewers Foundation show that the United States, re-established as the world's largest producer and consumer of beer following a realization in 1932, is steadily expanding its position, producing $8,748,087 barrels for the reporting period 1932. The next largest producers were (in order) Germany, United Kingdom, Belgium and France.

They require good workmanship. When well built they offer good resistance to the penetration of water through the wall.

If You're Planning To Build

By W. S. Lowndes
Director, Schools of Architecture and Building
International Correspondence Schools

NO matter what size house you are planning to build, or how much you intend to spend, the living room for general family use is very important. It should have plenty of sunlight, a good outlook and should be finished so as to produce a comfortable and homelike effect. In obtaining this effect, a fireplace is often desirable, as is a sun parlor or a porch placed adjacent to the living room. In large and pretentious houses other rooms are arranged that perform some of the functions of the living room in more modest structures.

A sun room or sun parlor is a common feature in even the most inexpensive homes. It may consist of a porch enclosed in glass, or it may be a special room having an abundance of windows. When the windows are hung wide open this room in reality becomes a porch. The exposure should be toward the south so as to obtain an abundance of sunlight in the winter months. Sun rooms are usually fitted with special furniture and decorated with plants. Individuality of the builder can be cleverly displayed in developing plans for the sun room.

Houses With Garages Attached. The problem of attaching a garage to a house is one that is rather difficult to solve. The large doors of the garage, which are open frequently, are generally too conspicuous and do not harmonize with the rest of the exterior. It is very desirable to locate the garage so that the doors will not be in front of the building, but to the side or rear.

Australia has ruled that no iron ore shall leave the country.

ON THE CORNER

By Post-Leaner

(Yes... I Heard)

Memo: Standing on the corner (The unofficial City Hall) One can hear every local, state, and national problem solved without much trouble. During the past years, it has occurred to us... that if these gems of wisdom could be jotted down as they are spoken, it would be very easy to write a column. As time (and my wife) has not permitted me to linger around very much of late... we will confine this week's efforts to purely personal reflections.

We'd Like To Ask Why?

There are so many Virginia Beach folks that suddenly remember Doug Corrigan since his nothing short of marvelous hop to Ireland in a nine year-old, nine hundred dollar plane. (He flew around here nearly two years without getting any attention)

Why conversation stops so quickly on the corner when that delicious eye-fil in the white bathing suit meanders by.

Why slot machines will only work on the East side of Atlantic Avenue.

Many young kids rush into the various soda shops... bawl the devil out of some tired waitress because their five cent soda isn't on the table before they rest on the chair bottom... and then sit there for an hour and talk about nothing.

A few Beach business folks soak their guest, and then fuss because they don't come back again.

So many young drivers did their damndest to break their necks (and everyone else's) on the Beach Boulevard last week-end.

Why the trash and paper that makes the sand along the boardwalk look so untidy isn't cleaned up more often.

Why Mr. Hamilton's campaign committee insist on insulting our intelligence by distributing some of the shurring political claptrap that they do.

We Wonder If...

The owners and operators of slot machines swell with pride when they see the little boys and girls under twelve put their ice cream nickles in the Frankenstein's of chance.

If the bathers on the beach appreciate the fine work done in behalf of their safety by this year's good crop of life guards.

If the residents and visitors around the Beach do their part in helping the Infant Sanitorium to carry on their great work for the little children.

If more cooperation on the part of certain individuals on the Beach to make this a better town and a better resort... and less effort to hog things for themselves... wouldn't be lots better for everybody... including themselves.

If something couldn't be done about the bicycle riders who take up the entire boardwalk and make the folks who like to stroll along and enjoy it (After all it was originally built to walk on) jump every time they ride by.

Things We Like...

A certain Beach physicians quick response when called to the bedside of our sick little girl recently. And his personal interest in her welfare afterward. The medical profess could stand lots more members like him.

The human kindness of that motorist driving a New York Car... who stopped and picked up a little dog that was injured on the highway. We go Mr. Winchell one better and say a whole florist shop full of orchids to him.

The soft dance music of Al Apollon and his crew at the Dunes.

The comfortable chairs on Pat Murray's front porch.

The nerve and pioneer spirit of Douglas Corrigan who flew his old plane across the Atlantic without ballyhoo... backing or a lot of conversation. That boy certainly takes the mystery and baloney out of flying across the sea.

The fast repartee of that young lad who sells newspapers and magazines on the corner. He is really quick on the draw.

The distinguished looking, premature gray hair of our barber. We wonder what kind of tonic he uses.

The frank admission of the recently elected councilman Les Shelly that he is not a second Roy Barky at the piano.

If we could have more boosters for this town like Joe Dunn.

The gracious personality of Jimmy Christ.

That free airplane ride with a dollar purchase sign in front of a local gas station.

The interest a certain Beach minister takes in our local Boy Scout movement.

The delicious spaghetti at the Normandie.

Breakfast-Time... Lunch-Time... Dinner-Time.

This Week's Question: Do men UNDERSTAND WOMEN as well as women understand men? Our answer is NAW!

Ten Years Ago With The Virginia Beach News

The town of Virginia Beach, beginning with this issue of the weekly, advertises a special election to be held Tuesday, August 21. The purpose of the election is to secure authority from the voters for the issuance of $25,000 of water bonds and $25,000 of general improvement bonds.

The National Association of Investigators has let a contract for the construction of a thirty bed-room hospital at Virginia Beach. The new building will be known as the Cayce Hospital For Research and Enlightenment and is of concrete and shingle construction. Four stories in height, besides the thirty bedrooms, it will contain a large lobby and dining room, a lecture hall, library, doctors' quarters and spacious porches.

Announcement has been made that Congressman Joseph Deal will speak to the voters of Princess Anne County at the Court-house on Saturday, July 21 at 8 p. m. This talk will be the first of three which will be made in Princess Anne County before the Democratic Primary on August 7.

Q. What are the main differences between old-age insurance and old-age assistance?

A. Old-age insurance is a system under which the Federal Government pays benefits to workers at age 65 based on the worker's past wages from employment covered by the system; or upon the death of the worker benefits are paid to his family or estate. Old-age assistance is a program under which the States, with the help of Federal funds, make cash payments to needy persons already 65 or over.

Q. What is the purpose of the Federal Old-Age Insurance system?

A. Its major purpose is to provide an assured retirement income to workers in employments covered by the system when they reach the age of 65. The retirement of these older workers from regular employment will also increase opportunities for employment and advancement of younger workers.

Q. What are employments covered by the system?

A. Broadly speaking, all commercial and industrial employments. The law lists the employments which are not covered, these are chiefly farm labor, domestic service, work for Governmental offices and agencies, and for religious, charitable, and educational non-profit organizations.

Laundry Tubs Serve Several Capacities

Stationary wash tub can be made to work every day in the week by the installation of several handy adjuncts.

The wash tub can be enclosed on sides and at the bottom in a cabinet which will afford a storage space for little-used utensils, vases, and those patent kitchen appliances that the husband will bring home from time to time. A plain wooden top, which can be used for cutting, chopping, and preparing vegetables and meats, is also a worth-while addition.

Across their faces as they near the shore:

They are remembering youth's wild escape
From parent-waves that now they hunger for.

They are remembering bleak trails afar.

That knew no healing water; and the strife

With wind and sun. They do not know they are Part of a great adventure that is theirs.

They only know the tide comes in to meet

With them; and they are tired; and dreams are sweet.

CULINARY "BASTING" TAKES NO NEEDLE; HELPS YOU "SEW UP" MENUS IN STYLE!

Sewing Terms Enter Kitchen
Sewing up the cooking situation may sometimes involve basting, and embroidery, and piping—but never, never any hemming (or basting, we hope)! These sewing terms may mislead the beginner-bird but they're honest cookery instructions too!

Basting, in a cookery sense, means to pour or drip some succulent or savory liquid over the food you are cooking, and involves no thread whatever! Embroidery in the kitchen refers to those fancy little touches we give our meals—from the putmeat atop the cookie to the puff of whipped cream on that glass of iced coffee. Piping, to the cook, means the things you shoot with a pastry gun! So—be a seamstress in the kitchen, to your own success!

Basting is a good thing to know about. The liquid used in this way impregnates the food being cooked, and gives it a fine being flavored, hard to achieve in any other way. You have basted your bird and steaks; have you tried basting your fruits and puddings? Then do—and don't pass up the embroidery either!

"SEWING UP" RECIPES

Rosy Bananas

1 cup cranberry sauce or jelly
1 tablespoon cold water
3 large firm bananas
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Beat cranberry sauce or jelly until smooth. Stir in 1 tablespoon cold water. Cut peeled bananas lengthwise into halves and sprinkle with lemon juice. Place into baking dish. Pour cranberry juice over bananas. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 10 minutes until bananas are tender. Serve hot with meats or thoroughly chilled as a dessert. Serves 6.

Baked Peaches

Peel ripe, fresh peaches, and cut in halves; remove pits and place in a shallow baking dish. Dot with butter, few grations of nutmeg and a few drops of lemon juice. Pour in a small amount of dark karo, to fill the cavity of each peach. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 15 to 20 minutes, basting occasionally with juice. Serve hot.

Cafe Cream Glace

1/2 cup sugar
3 cups hot strong coffee, freshly brewed
3 cups milk, scalded
Whipped cream

Melt the sugar in a saucepan over low heat and allow to heat until light brown in color. Add to hot coffee, stir until dissolved, add scalded milk and chill. Pour into tall glasses and "embroider" with sweetened whipped cream, to which a little vanilla has been added. Serves 6.

Cool Cucumber Salad

1 package lime gelatin
1 cup hot water
1/2 cup canned Florida grapefruit
1 teaspoon vinegar
1/2 cup grated cucumber
1/2 cup diced cucumber
Dash of salt

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add grapefruit juice (drained from segments) vinegar, salt, and grated cucumber. Strain; chill until slightly thickened. Season diced cucumber with dash of salt and fold into slightly thickened lime gelatin. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce and garnish with "piping" of creamy mayonnaise. Serves 4 to 6.

Brazil Nut Sauce

(To Embroider Your Ice Cream)
2 egg yolks
1 cup confectioner's sugar
1/2 cup Brazil nuts, ground
1 teaspoon vanilla
Beat the egg yolks, stir in the sifted sugar, ground Brazil nuts and vanilla. Serve on vanilla or chocolate ice cream.

EMBROIDERY TIPS

Stir sliced pasteurized dates into hard sauce, and serve on rice or bread puddings.
Sprinkle all-bran on hot cereal, or combine with other prepared cereals to give that "nutty flavor" and serve with sliced fresh fruits or breakfast special.

Mix chopped Brazil nuts with cream cheese, stuff celery with the mixture and dip each stalk in additional finely chopped Brazil nuts.

Flute bananas, and cut crosswise in slices to dress up fruit salads! To flute bananas run the prongs of a fork lengthwise down a peeled banana, then slice crosswise.

Add crisp raw cauliflower florets to canned Florida orange and grapefruit segments, and serve with tart dressing for a "quick salad!"

Use the canned Florida orange-grapefruit. Juice combination to thin mayonnaise or mix with French dressing.

Saute finely minced mushrooms and green peppers in mazola; thicken slightly with flour and cream. Spread on bread slices and toast quickly.

Split tiny finger rolls, take out inside and spread with highly seasoned mayonnaise. Place smoked Norwegian sardines in roll shells and decorate with strips of pickle or olive. Serve very cold.

Mix 2 tablespoons freshly grated horseradish with 1 egg yolk; add 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, salt and paprika, and serve on fish salad for a "new one!"

instances judgment and common-sense are forgotten in the enthusiasm for sea, lake or river bathing, or for the other sun-exposure diversions, popular with the holiday excursionist.

"Each year, during the vacation period a number of persons suffer from acute sunburn and become ill as a price for their folly. Countless others in varying degrees are victims of the sun's action and acquire blisters and burns which neither add to their appearance, to their peace of mind, nor to their physical comfort.

"There are a comparatively few persons who never tan, no matter how carefully guarded their exposure to the sun may be. Consequently, they must be extremely careful to avoid burning painfully. On the other hand, the majority of persons can acquire a healthy tan, provided they go about it cautiously.

"To the average individual, ten to fifteen minutes exposure the first day for arms, legs and back, should be the limit; and this, no matter how much fun is associated with the exposure. Provided no ill effects result, the exposure may be lengthened gradually until thorough pigmentation (tanning) occurs, when the time limit, so far as sunburn is concerned, may be removed.

"In short, to be the victim of painful sunburn is an automatic confession of thoughtlessness. The penalty for such indiscretion, as indicated, can be severe, and invariably is painful. Less wholesale sun-dosage will mean more health and pleasure on the vacation."

HEALTH NOTES

"At this season of the year over-affectation for the sun becomes more or less general among vacationists. While the benefits of sunlight directly applied to the body are well recognized, the average person either thoughtlessly or ignorantly fails to realize that the sun's rays cannot be employed on a wholesale basis without running the risk of physical harm," states Dr. I. C. Rignin, State Health Commissioner.

"However, it is emphasized that exposure to the sun, viewed from any or all of its advantages to the individual seeking it, must be tempered with judgment and commonsense. In a large number of

Before, After Modernization

The first scene depicted above shows an unfinished basement room that is serving as a storage room for discarded odds and ends of furniture, magazines, and assorted bits of unwanted glass and china.

The second illustrates what can be done to salvage this space by the expenditure of a slight amount of money for modernization. The walls have been treated with plaster board, as has been the ceiling, a new flooring laid, and a pleasant, serviceable game room created. Funds for this type of modernization may be obtained under the FHA Property Improvement Credit Plan.

Visitors Housed at College
Copies of the program have been widely distributed and given much space in the press of the state. Anyone who has not received a copy may get one by writing to the Director of the Extension Division, Blacksburg, Virginia.

Men and women who have given a lifetime of study to certain problems connected with agriculture and homemaking have been secured to take part on the program. The usual arrangements have been made for all those attending the meeting to live in the dormitories and have their meals at the college dining hall at a nominal cost. Accommodations can also be secured at hotels and private boarding houses in town. The launching is out for the tenth annual Farmers' Week, July 26-28, at V. P. I., Blacksburg.

Poultry Expert At State Institute

Visiting Farmers to Hear Canadian Authority July 28, at V. P. I., on Poultry Day

The poultry people of Virginia who attend the State Farmers' Institute have a real treat in store. Thursday, July 28, has been proclaimed POULTRY DAY in Virginia and many other states. The reason for this proclamation is that it is just one year prior to the opening of the World's Poultry Congress and Exposition. Every person attending the Institute of Rural Affairs and State Farmers' Institute will have an opportunity Thursday night, July 28, to hear about this World's Poultry Congress and Exposition from Fred C. Elford, Mr. Elford is special poultry commissioner for the Dominion of Canada. He is past president of the World's Poultry Association and general director of the Third World's Poultry Congress held at Ottawa, Canada in 1927.

The Canadian Government has lent Mr. Elford to the United States to help with the publicity and the general management of the Seventh World's Poultry Congress and Exposition to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, July 28 to August 7, 1938. In addition to Mr. Elford's talk at the night meeting, he will meet with the State Committee and others interested in the Congress Thursday morning. He will address the poultry section Thursday afternoon.

Seventy Nations Attend

Many people, on first thought, will say that they are not interested in the World's Poultry Congress because they do not like poultry shows anyway. However, this is not a mere poultry show. It is that, but it is also a gathering of delegates from many nations throughout the world. It will be a surprise to some, especially those who have not followed the history of the Congresses, to know that they have been instrumental in bringing together more countries of the world than any other organization. The largest one to date was the one held in 1930 in the Crystal Palace in London, England, where 64 countries were represented. As a comparison, it is of interest to know that the League of Nations at its best had 52 countries. It is expected that the 7th World's Poultry Congress will have from 65 to 70 countries represented. The largest attendance in the past was at the one held in Barcelona, Spain, in 1924 when 175,000 people were present.

Experts Protect Inexperienced Under FHA Plan

An accepted truism that no longer need apply to home buying is "you can't buy experience."

This hitherto unpurchasable commodity is an important feature on the list of benefits that a borrower receives under the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration.

When an application is accepted for appraisal the would-be borrower begins to receive the benefits of experience. The mortgage is examined from very aspect by trained technicians. The physical property is inspected, appraised, and the neighborhood character determined. In the case of a home that is to be built the owner receives architectural assistance in the form of inspections to see that the house is built according to plans and specifications.

The inexperienced home builder or home buyer is no longer exposed to the dangers of costly errors in judgment that go with inexperience if he resorts to the Insured Mortgage System for financing his home.

Two Tile Surfaces Predominate Field

There is a peculiar fascination about building a house for the first time. It opens new avenues of information, and the home builder revels in a welter of new terms and usually ends up by feeling quite a fellow as a result of having mastered some of the terminology of the building trades.

In the course of planning and in construction of a home tiling will inevitably come in for consideration and discussion. Commonly encountered types of tile are the glazed and unglazed surfaced, with body types of vitreous, semivitreous, nonvitreous, and impervious. Tiling is also referred to as being wall tile, ceramic mosaic, floor tile, faience, and quarry tile.

Even when a woman loses her beauty she can make up for it.

Luncheon... Krupa... Hall... Coming To New Ocean Casino

Cool-Aire Gardens Very Popular Afternoon Rendezvous

The next few weeks will be happy ones for all lovers of dancing and fine dance music. The management has just announced that a series of outstanding name bands will visit the New Ocean Casino in the coming month of August, starting Wednesday, August 3rd, when Jimmie Lunceford and his sixteen master musicians will return to the Beach for the fifth time in the same number of seasons. Jimmie Lunceford and his boys have built up a large following in this vicinity and no doubt a record crowd will be on hand to welcome him back this year. Friday evening, August 19, will bring Gene Krupa, the world's greatest drummer, who was featured with Benny Goodman and his band for a number of years, to give swing fans a taste of the Krupa style. And then on Thursday evening, August 25, that old favorite of many years on radio and stage, George Hall, his orchestra, and his sensational vocalist, Dolly Dawn will hold forth in the open air ballroom.

Right now the crowds are enjoying dancing under the stars every evening to the music of Dick Ballou and his popular CBS orchestra. In the New Ocean Casino Cool-Aire Gardens, cocktail music is played every afternoon from four to six by the Four Esquires, and Tay Vore at the Vibraphone. The new policy of no cover charge during this hour is meeting with popular approval from the patrons.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PICTURES ON THE FARM

Everywhere on a farm there are pictures—simple, pleasing snapshots that will give your albums new appeal.

THE man who says "nothing ever happens on a farm" certainly isn't talking about pictures. On almost any farm, if you keep your eyes open, you will find enough snapshot material to keep the camera busy from early morning to late at night—and still not exhaust the supply.

Farm animals offer scores of picture chances—woolly lambs in the sun, a hen fussing over her brood of chicks, cows being driven in for milking, pigs at the trough (or their owner summoning them with a lusty shout), horses drinking, ducks waddling in a line about the yard or taking an afternoon "cruise" in the pond.

Work scenes in the field make excellent pictures, and fresh-plowed land with long deep furrows is good for pattern snapshots. The orchard in bloom is a scene of beauty, and all around the house and barn lot there are details which make pictures.

Get a snap of Grandfather whittling, mending a single-tree, or busy at a whirling grindstone. Picture shady fence corners, old-time zigzag fences of laid rails, the battered wooden bucket at the well and the worn saw-horse or chopping block in the woodlot. Look for snaps down by the shady spring-house and brook. And watch the special seasons—such as hog-killing time later on—when there is some unusual activity to picture.

Yes, there are plenty of farm snapshots—everything from a calf being fed from a bottle to corn-husking shots at harvest time and foot-prints in the snow in winter. You can point your camera in almost any direction, and find something. Try it, every chance you get, and watch your picture albums grow!

Owens And Parco Star At Dunes Club

George Owens and Tony Parco, whose dizzy ditties have wowed audiences in noted night clubs from Miami to Montreal are a feature of the all star floor show presented twice nightly at the fashionable new Dunes Club. Owens and Parco, old favorites at Virginia Beach, were the hit of the 1937 entertainment season at the Crystal Club. The show is headed by Sammy Walsh, famous Broadway musical comedy and night club comedian and includes those delightful dance stars, Charles and Celeste. Al Apollon and his famous society orchestra, plays for nightly dancing and the two floor shows.

Breakfast Nook Soldier In Double Aids Housewife Cape Henry Rescue

In houses that have full-sized dining rooms it is frequently desirable to dedicate a corner for a breakfast nook, especially when there are junior members in the family.

The nook should have a built-in cabinet for the breakfast dishes and the children's silverware and dishes. Here also can be kept the electric cooking equipment such as grill, percolator, and waffle iron.

A folding table hinged to the wall may be built in. By having a breakfast nook, housework can be lessened and wear and tear on the dining-room furniture lessened.

The use of gypsum for flooring and roofing in commercial and industrial buildings is largely prompted by its complete resistance to fire. Tests have shown gypsum will not support combustion at any temperature.

BAYNE THEATRE PREVUES

The drama of the British Merchant Marine serves to team Freddie Bartholomew and Mickey Rooney in a gripping story in "Lord Jeff," the story of England's future sailors, now playing at this theatre. "Lord Jeff" is the unusual story of the lives of two boys at the Bernardo Homes, famous English institution for the reclamation of youth. Bartholomew is seen as the tool of a pair of crooks who pass him off as a nobleman, while Rooney plays the chief student petty officer at the training home. Also in the cast are Charles Cohn, Herbert Mundin and Gale Sondergaard.

Joan Blondell and Melvyn Douglas have been joined together in the romantic comedy, "There's Always a Woman," which opens on Sunday at the Bayne Theatre for a two-day showing. The plot concerns the mad antics of a bewildering young blonde wife who starts out to prove to her detective-husband that she, too, can be a Sherlockian sleuth. Mary Astor and Frances Drake are prominently featured in the supporting cast. "International Settlement," the picture of the hour . . . and a hundred big moments, will be shown on the local screen Tuesday, July 26. The film deals with the adventures of a free-lance American pilot who finds himself in China's great metropolis as the city is engulfed in the maelstrom of conflict. Chief roles in the picture are taken by Dolores Del Rio, George Sanders, June Lang and Dick Baldwin.

Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant tell the world to go jump into a lake in their latest co-starring effort, "Holiday," a brave gay story of two young people in love with life—and each other. The film, based on Philip Barry's sensational Broadway success, comes to the Bayne Theatre for a two-day engagement on Wednesday, July 27.

Extension Service Offers Art Prints

One of our better known magazines—You may remember which—used to follow the work of clubs and forums up and down the land. Literary, historical, musical, or whatever, it watched them avidly. Yet it was hardly a deep or kindly interest which motivated this close attention. Almost one might have said that a note of cynicism pervaded the magazine for it only reported, and delighted in reporting, such club proceedings as seemed to it somewhat quaint.

Our own taste for what is quaint runs to other things, and we are interested in civic forums and clubs. Already requests are coming in for suggestions about subjects to be pursued this fall, for aid in securing speakers, for bibliographies and books and materials which can be used in exhibits. Among the latter is a very fine and varied collection of mounted pictures of different periods and countries given to the Extension Division of the University of Virginia by the Carnegie Foundation, which at the same time donated a carefully selected art library. In addition to these two collections, the Extension Division has had for some time eighteen different exhibits of the work of various national or other schools of painting, and for these reading lists are also available. A "Catalogue of Art Prints and Books" which may be borrowed can be had upon request.

Labor Replies To Hamilton Claims. Condemnation Reso- lutions Passed July 25th

Norfolk Central Labor Union
Urges Labor to Defeat
Hamilton

Of interest to every working man and woman in the second district are the resolutions passed by the Norfolk Central Labor Union urging labor to defeat Norman R. Hamilton, because of his negligible attitude towards labor and labor's welfare during his present term of office. The resolutions passed by the Central Labor Union of Norfolk are quoted below:

As Norman R. Hamilton was elected to Congress on a platform of one-hundred per cent support of President Roosevelt; and as, Norman R. Hamilton violated his promise to support the President, and at a very critical time, joined with the enemies of Mr. Roosevelt, and voted against him on every important measure; and as,

Norman R. Hamilton has been giving to different classes of people different reasons for breaking his pledges to support the President; and as,

The Norfolk Central Labor Union believes that the one and only reason that moved Norman R. Hamilton to violate his promises, was that he cared more for the influence and support of the manufacturers and financiers of the Second Virginia District, than for the wishes of the supporters of President Roosevelt; and as,

Norman R. Hamilton is even now going around the District pretending that he has been and is now a wholehearted supporter of our President, and is through the newspaper, the Portsmouth Star, constantly claiming that he was and is loyal to the President; and as,

The Virginia State Federation at its last Convention, passed a resolution condemning Senator Byrd for his opposition to the policies of the President; and as,

The Votes of Congressmen Hamilton in the House have been exactly the same as the votes of Mr. Byrd in the Senate; and as,

Norman R. Hamilton, through three of his backsliders, tried to get the support of Senator Byrd, under promise of supporting Senator Byrd in 1940; and as,

Norman R. Hamilton is now pretending that he has been and is an enemy of the Byrd machine; and as,

The Norfolk Central Labor Union most earnestly feels that hypocrisy and double-dealing in public life are especially at this time most harmful to the people. Now, therefore, the Norfolk Central Labor Union condemns Nor-

DULL SESSION OF BODY

Virginia League of Municipalities Invited to Hold
1939 Convention at Beach

Voting unanimously on a motion to declare the office of Electrical Inspector at Virginia Beach vacant, and immediately voting with equal unanimity to appoint Joseph M. Osborn, to fill the vacancy, the Town Council disposed of the question which had previously passed that body only to be declared void because of want of proper action. No discussion was had of the matter; the members merely putting themselves on record without dissent regarding both measures.

The action regarding the Electrical Inspector was the high spot of an otherwise dull meeting of the Town Council. The body went on record as recommending to W. P. A. authorities a 60 day extension of time for completion of certain sewage work on the suggestion of the Town Engineer. Likewise they passed a resolution to invite the Virginia League of Municipalities to meet at the Beach for their 1939 convention. Mayor Roy Smith was directed to extend the invitation in behalf of the Town.

In Short Session

Completing a scanty evening of work the members addressed a request to the Virginia Electric and Power Company asking them to move two electric lights to more advantageous points. The new locations of the lights in question are placed at the intersection of Twenty-Second Street and Arctic Avenue, and at Twenty-Four and a Half Street and Arctic Avenue.

Action was taken granting a permit to Rudolph Cooke and Van Leeuwen, to build a gasoline filling station at the intersection of Seventeen Street and Baltic Avenue. The Virginia Beach Zoning Board of Appeals had previously recommended that the permit be granted.

Those Who Served Second District

Being a List of Representatives Who Have Served the Second District in the United States Congress

Following the War, Virginia was the first Southern state re-admitted to the Union in 1869.

On the 26th of January, 1870, John H. Platt, a Republican, was elected from the Second District and served in the forty-first, forty-second and forty-third Congresses. His term expired March 4, 1875. He was succeeded by John Goode, Jr., on March 4, 1875 to serve in the forty-fourth, forty-fifth and forty-sixth Congresses. His service was ended March 4, 1881.

John Goode, Jr., was succeeded by John Deane, Jr. on March 4, 1881 who served during the forty-seventh Congress. His service expired March 4, 1883. Deane was succeeded by Harry Libby, March 4, 1883, and served in two Congresses—the forty-eighth and forty-ninth. Libby was succeeded by George E. Bowden on the 4th of March, 1887 and he served during the forty-ninth and fiftieth Congresses. His service expired in 1891.

John W. Lawson succeeded George Bowden on the 4th of March, 1891 and served one term, to March 4, 1893. Lawson was succeeded by D. Gardner Tyler, who served in the fifty-second and fifty-third Congresses, his service expiring in 1897. He was succeeded by W. A. Young, March 4, 1897.

Young's seat, however, was contested by Richard A. Wise, who was seated by a Republican Congress. Young was again elected from the Second District in 1898 and his seat was again contested by Richard A. Wise, an Ahe was again unseated by a Republican Congress.

R. A. Wise died December 21, 1900, and Harry Maynard of Portsmouth was elected to Congress. Maynard served for ten years, from 1900 to 1911. He was defeated by Colonel E. E. Holland, who likewise served for ten years, until March 4, 1921.

Holland was succeeded by J. T. Deal on the 4th of March, 1921. Mr. Deal served until the 4th of March, 1929 and was succeeded by Menalcus Lankford, who served for four years. Lankford was succeeded by Colgate W. Darden, Jr., who also served for four years and was defeated in 1936 by Norman R. Hamilton.

Colgate W. Darden, Jr., is again an aspirant for Congress and is contesting the seat now held by Norman R. Hamilton. The probabilities are that Mr. Darden will be elected.

MEETING SATURDAY

Remaining Time to be Taken Up in Radio Talks and Precinct Organization
Meetings; Heavy Vote Expected

Information obtained from Princess Anne Court House this week, disclosed that a greater number of voters had qualified for the coming Democratic Primary August 2, than were eligible for the same political contest in August, 1936, when two of the present candidates were opposed to one another in a spirited contest.

Whereas nothing like an accurate independent survey of the political mind of the county as a whole has been made, it is the unanimous opinion of those interviewed that Colgate W. Darden will receive a substantial majority of the votes to be cast in Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach, next Tuesday. Many of the Hamilton supporters questioned, readily admitting that it looks like a Darden victory as far as the county is concerned.

A number of political speeches and campaign rallies have been held recently, and much silent work and individual solicitation has been going on for several weeks. Tomorrow night Mr. Darden will speak at Pungo at 8 o'clock and later in the same evening will be heard at Greeds. The latter meeting is scheduled for 9:30 P. M. These meetings will be the last to be held in the county so far as could be learned. Preparations are being made for a large crowd at both places.

Appeal By Radio

Last Friday night Colonel Charles B. Borland, Director of Public Safety of Norfolk, addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting at the Cavalier Hotel, in behalf of the Darden candidacy. Those who were present said that the rally was a thorough success.

From now on the balance of the time will be taken up in radio talks and precinct organizing meetings, these latter will be held throughout the district until the last night before he political contest. Radio station W. T. R. has announced that the time available for campaign speeches has been taken by all factions and divided so that ample time will be had for the public to hear the last minute claims of the three candidates.

Judging from the extreme interest in the out come of the election a record vote will be cast in Tuesday's balloting in the Second District. Both sides are making claims as a result of information gathered by supporters, but persons claiming to be on the inside are of the opinion that the result will be close elsewhere in the District.

Batten Sent On To State Penitentiary

Wednesday morning Leban Lindsay Batten, who was convicted in the Circuit Court of Princess Anne County two weeks ago, was sent to the State Penitentiary in Richmond to serve a life sentence imposed on him in that court for the murder of William Sherwood, a county farmer.

Prior to leaving the county jail Batten reiterated his previously denied confession of the murder to Sheriff Guy Salmons and others, and signified a wish that he had received the death penalty instead of the conviction and sentence to life imprisonment.

With his departure Wednesday a chapter seldom equaled annals of the county seldom equaled for cold blooded brutality is marked closed.

Labor conditions are improving in Malta.

County Board In Regular Session

Routine Reports and Recommendations Hold Attention of Supervisors in Dull Session

Meeting in a short session devoted to hearing reports of a routine nature the County Board of Supervisors held their regular monthly session at the Court House Monday. Adjournment was had considerably earlier than usual due to the lack of pressing business.

Among the few items of general interest coming before the Supervisors was a resolution to request the State Highway Commission to include the Old Hogard Road, from Thomas Corner to Glenrock, the County secondary road system. The action was taken without dissent.

The Board also instructed W. P. A. Engineer E. G. Burden to consult with District Engineer W. S. Smith of the State Highway Department, with a view to establishing drainage purposes under W. P. A. supervision. A drainage project in the Little Creek area was accepted by the Board, the work to be done by W. P. A. at no expense to the county.

A report of the annual audit of accounts of the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, William F. Huggins, was presented to the board Monday. A letter accompanying the report the auditor of public accounts, J. McCarthy Downs, complimented Mr. Huggins for installing a system of recording delinquent taxes. In the letter Mr. Downs said, "It will make available in your office a record which will not generally be found in the Commonwealth in the offices of the clerks of courts."

Members Of Life Guard Unit To Remain On Duty

Guards will be on Beach to Insure Safety of Bathers
Throughout Day

The local Life Guard Unit last Monday adopted a new schedule of hours so that each member of the unit might have one half hour for lunch each day. Arrangements have been made so that at all times throughout the day members of the Guard are on duty to look after the safety of bathers on the beach. The Life Guard Unit is to be commended on their excellent work this season in aiding bathers and preventing any serious accidents so up to the time of this writing. A record of which the whole Beach can be proud of.

Visit to See Friends and Margaret (Peggy) Sullivan, who is one of Tidewater's most distinguished contributions to the world of playing act on both stage and screen, surprised many of her friends and Virginia Beach folk by dropping out of the sky last Monday at the Pennsylvania Central Lines airport, after an absence of three years to visit family and friends, while here on a short vacation. Miss Sullivan, who attended Norfolk schools and earned quite a reputation for Little Theatre work before deserting this section for Broadway, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sullivan, who still reside in Norfolk at 728 Westover Avenue.

In private life Miss Sullivan is the wife of Leland Hayward, Hollywood producer and the mother of a one-year old daughter. Miss Sullivan is spending a portion of her time with Mrs. David Pennington, Jr., of the Bay Colony here at the Beach, before returning to the Coast to begin work on her next production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, where her last two pictures were "Showdown Angel" and "Three Comrades."

J. T. Deal Comments On Norman Hamilton's Exposures

Failure To Comply With Fingerprint Law Brings Fine

Local Youths Convicted under Ordinance Given Three Days to Appeal

In the long delayed hearing of the controversial fingerprint question on the Beach, Justice E. V. Gresham decided that six young men employed at two local drug stores must either present themselves for fingerprinting immediately or else pay a twenty-five dollar fine.

Attorney Arthur Jett, appearing in behalf of Otto Stroud, Donnie Clark, W. C. Barr, G. G. Horne, K. M. Dennis and Hugh Meredith, contended that ordinance was discriminatory in character. However, he did not immediately note an appeal, but was given until Thursday of this week to do so. In the meantime, it is understood that further legal advice is being sought as to the wisdom of making the fight on the issue in higher court circles.

Town Attorney Willard R. Ashburn appeared for the prosecution in Tuesday night's hearing, and cited authority to support the legality of the local ordinance, and the decision was handed down by Justice Gresham following his argument that the Town Council had full authority to pass such an ordinance.

Tuesday's proceedings were in the nature of a test case in the matter and is likely to be followed by many additional summons to appear before the Justice.

At this writing, it is still unknown whether the matter will be taken to a higher court, otherwise there will be a rush to be fingerprinted or else to "tell it to the Judge."

Since May 1, about 2,000 workers have paid $1.30 each to have fingerprints taken and registrations made under the terms of the measure as passed by the Town Council.

Hamilton Accused Of Voting Against Radio Investigation

Facts Distorted in Recent Issue of Mr. Hamilton's
Portsmouth Star

Mr. Hamilton in the Portsmouth Star of Sunday, July 24th, makes capital of a confusion of terms in a Radio address of July 18th, and goes to much pains to get official refutation of certain statements. Mr. Borland then made as to his attitude and vote on the Resolution to Create a Commission to Investigate Radio Rates Monopoly. He reproduces four telegrams from Congressmen to show that his vote against the Resolution to Investigate the COMMUNICATION COMMISSION (a separate resolution) which he (Norman Hamilton) voted against was not an administration measure. In this Mr. Hamilton is correct. But Mr. Hamilton knew—or he ought to know—that Mr. Borland referred specifically to his opposition vote to investigate Radio Monopoly.

In his reply Mr. Hamilton seizes with great show of assurance upon the similarity of two separate House resolutions, namely, one to investigate the Federal Communications or Radio Monopolies, and poses the one that serves his purpose. THIS IS, OF COURSE, A DISTORTION OF THE FACTS AND A DELIBERATE CONFUSSION OF THE ISSUE TO BEFUDDLE THE ELECTORATE. The real fact and truth of the matter is, that Mr. Hamilton DID VOTE AGAINST the resolution to investigate Radio Monopoly.

The statement stands in spite of Mr. Hamilton and his Portsmouth Star and the telegrams from four Congressmen which refer to an entirely different matter. It may be pertinent to ask why Mr. Hamilton did not desire investigation of Radio Rates and Monopoly? Was it protective of the interest of his friend Col. S. L. Slover and Norfolk Newspapers,

Isn't Worried about Efforts of Suffolk News-Herald to Read Him out of Demo- cratic Party

As we go to press on this issue, a last minute fight has reached us from Mr. J. T. Deal, who has been working in behalf of Colgate W. Darden Jr., during the present campaign, clarifying his position in the matter of several so called exposures directed to him by numerous friends and supporters of Norman R. Hamilton.

We quote Mr. Deal's letter below:

Mr. Hamilton's friends have taken occasion to inform me, that if I should make speeches in the interest of Colgate W. Darden, Jr., during the pending campaign, that he, Norman R. Hamilton, would expose matters very damaging to my character. Not only regarding this as a threat to intimidate me, I at my own expense, went on the air and have made a number of speeches from the hustings in the interest of Mr. Darden. The only exposure that he, Norman R. Hamilton, has attempted, has been to say in his Portsmouth Star that "Deal Hates Roosevelt" and through the News-Herald, to read me out of the Democratic party because I did not vote for him in 1936, nor for Roosevelt. I did not vote at all.

Eliminating the word hate, which he had no justification for using, I am not disturbed as to the injury to my character. I have not approved of certain Roosevelt and Hamilton policies and have not, and will not, hesitate to say so. In the words of Henry Watterson, "Things have come to a hell of a pass when a Democrat can't wallop his own jacksass."

Norman R. Hamilton is telling the voters of the Second District that he is opposed by the Byrd Machine, but Norman R. Hamilton will not deny the support of Colonel Samuel Slover and B. Gray Tunstall, the backbone of the Byrd Machine in the Second District.

Benefit Dance For Infant Sanitarium

Society Expected to Turn Out in Large Numbers for Annual Affair at Cavalier Beach Club

Society in this resort and environs will turn out en masse on Tuesday night next, August 2, to attend the annual dance and entertainment for the benefit of the Infants' Sanitarium of Virginia Beach. This affair, which will be held at the Cavalier Beach Club, is the largest charitable event held annually in this resort. This Sanitarium, centrally located on Atlantic Avenue, has provided shelter and treatment for sick and undernourished babies for a period of more than 50 years. Mrs. Louis H. Windholz, who is chairman of this affair, is being assisted by Mrs. Arthur P. Jones, Mrs. Abner Pope and Mrs. Walter Richmond.

This dance has proven time and again that the people of the Tidewater area will turn out for the occasion in large numbers. In addition to the excellent entertainment arranged for the occasion it will be election night and returns from the voting will be announced to the audience as they are received over the radio from time to time. Two years ago this service was much appreciated feature of the program for those who supported the winner on that occasion. Dancers will be among the first to be informed of the results when the music is not being played. Held at the Infant Sanitarium Dance Tuesday night.

South Africa's safety drive has resulted in the hospitals being nearly deserted on holidays.

The turn of affairs in the Palestine Arab-Jewish warfare is decidedly for the worse. The latest phase of this unholy situation is a bombing in which sixty-five victims met their death. In that, of the number sixty-one were Arabs and four were Jews, it seems to be fatal to assume that the bomb was set in the market by Jewish sympathizers, or else (and I would appear more likely) by the emissaries of the Hitler-Mussolini alliance known to be stirring up racial animosities in the Near East, for the purpose of keeping the hands of John Bull occupied while they turn on his Arab populations. On the other hand, it is equally possible that the Arab fanatics, who have been so busy with the matter thus far, and it further, the foundation of a state which is a holy war in the making. If so, the world is in for a long and bloody struggle.

Times [The Middle Church] then received the check, of the 1000,- and 2000,- German Marks, which he announced. In his speech of peace on the Reichstag days, and at the same time, in his speech of the 10th, in a Völkisch German as prospective investigation, he made a note in the days between the Czechoslovak government and the German minorities in that country. From this it would appear that the Czechs had made a first step toward peaceably settling with one another, in referring to the fact that the Sudeten Germans were 20% of the population. They have not been heard from, and in that they say taken as the request, of the Czech government, we only have the half of what is necessary to make a bargain. Hitler has not been heard from, and unless we are mistaken, he will not be party, to anything that can so readily be used to his advantage to keep the minds of the German people off their own plight. He has committed, at this is a much better situation, or than a settler, so we look for this effort to fall of its own weight.

Amid scenes reminiscent of Hugh Loom, Governor George E. Earle, of Pennsylvania, addressed the opening of the special session of the Legislature, called for the purpose of making a last minute effort to elect a successor to a charges against himself and one of his associates. A grand jury is expected to hear evidence of fact on August 13, involving the Governor. Plans, such as "pistol diplomacy," he has had advanced in the Legislature, previously proposed measures declined to take away from the people of Pennsylvania, the right to decide into the affair a grand jury. From the news coming to light "hook-ups" of the lawmakers are being done his bludge. "Herald" is said to will furnish two separate signatures to make the necessary but will not, as it is said to have. "We frankly have no objection to the Governor's getting the final place, but we do not think a grand jury" would demand that an opportunity be given to the Legislature to decide on the whole matter, rather than let the Legislature be the legislative body of officials who are not given a chance to be given a chance to get out from under the Governor's charge.

Expressing a wish that he personally knew the country, that there are always things to be done for you and your work here, the Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, as he is the son of the United States. He and Crown Prince Carl, his brother, Prince Bertil, all expressed appreciation of the kindness and high hospitality, and such a warm reception, that they wished they could stay longer. In the United States we seldom have the opportunity of entertaining royalty and it took the three hundred thirty anniversary of the founding of a Swedish colony on the shores of New Jersey and Delaware, to bring the Crown Prince and his fine family to this country. From what we can learn Mr. Average American approved of these visitors thoroughly. There was little or no pomp and ceremony attached to the visit except where convention made it necessary. This family seems to know how to capture the affection of the multitude as well as they know how to rule their home country. Every one in Sweden loves the aged King Gustaf V, father of our visitors. In that country little is heard about depressions, and nothing of discord and dissatisfaction emanates from that well ordered land.

As usual, if one searches far enough they can find something to be cheerful about. We felt that way when we ran across the news of the signing of the treaty in which it was agreed to submit the century-old Chaco border dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay, to a board of arbitration composed of the Presidents of six North and South American Republics; The United States, Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay, Chile and Peru. Lost in the news of wars and rumors of wars, it was refreshing. By their action the former enemy nations, Bolivia and Paraguay, have set a striking example for certain European nations to follow and seem to furnish the complete answer to the oft repeated cry emanating from that source that Democracies are not efficient. The only thing efficiency consists of making the best of a situation, and by agreeing to a truce in this vexing problem of international boundaries, these South American Republics are showing a fine degree of practical efficiency.

The question of the appointment of Justice Hugo Black to the Supreme Court made its inevitable appearance before the American Bar Association this week at their annual meeting, when a resolution asking the United States Supreme Court for information on the Justice Black's eligibility was introduced before that body amid stormy scenes. Just how the Bar Association will handle this matter remains to be seen. The Court has conclusively shown that they would prefer to avoid it. However the American Bar Association is quite a different body and may at least go as far as the asking for the information, but we suppose they will wait a long time for their answer. We fancy that the Black issue is pretty dead in Supreme Court circles.

A political cartoon by 'ATLANTA'. In the background, the U.S. Capitol dome is visible. A large dinosaur roars, with a speech bubble saying 'AW, IT'S A PAKYEN!'. In the foreground, a man in a suit carries a large box labeled 'BLAMING BUSINESS FOR THE DEPRESSION!'. A sign on the ground says 'PUBLIC'. The cartoon is signed 'ATLANTA' in the bottom left corner.

"NO SORRY"
 Governor John W. Edwards' appreciation of the market value of his own "Tulsi" tree has been a subject of conversation in the State Capitol as well as to ordinary folk. But he is known in the news—first, as the man who was charged by the Federal Wildlife Administration with an excellent reputation for giving the owner of a tree that had a national system of relief payments to the State of New York the right to abuse as Tennessee's old control of New York expenditure would be embarrassing even to Governor's wife.

...for the Federal Government to go into the business of state and local government, out of the 'red' or 'black' of the 'red.' It is fair to say that it would have taken a long time for the Federal Government to resist the demands of 'pressure groups' in Washington.

...to insist upon a larger measure of local responsibility in the matter of raising funds and to redeem its oft-repeated promise to bring the national budget into balance.

SPLITTING THE PARTY

Expressing the opinion that what President Roosevelt really desires is to split the Democratic party, Heywood Brown concedes that Mr. Roosevelt has no personal claim to ownership of the Democratic party. "But neither has Carter Glass," Mr. Brown admits, "and obviously the two men do not belong on the same team."

We think Mr. Roosevelt and Senator Glass will both admit that Mr. Brown is right about that. But if Mr. Roosevelt privately entertains any idea of trying to drive Carter Glass out of the Democratic party, we would advise him to give it up in favor of the less risky amusement of playing with a buzz saw.

THE SANTA CLAUS THEORY

President wants to split the Democratic party, we feel free to state that in our opinion he has made a beautiful beginning and is making steady progress. All he has to do is to keep on as he is going. The result will be inevitable.

Readers Write

DEAR EDITOR:—In the hope that a generous public may read and understand our reason for failing to comply with the ordinance for which we were summoned to police court on Tuesday evening, I herewith submit same.

"An ordinance of the Town of Virginia Beach, Virginia, providing for the registration, photographing and fingerprinting of all employees employed in said town at any night club, any place handling liquor, beer or wine in any form, places of amusement, hotels, rooming-houses, apartment houses, delivery services, restaurants, bath-clubs, bathhouses, solariums; and all caddies, newspaper delivery boys over the age of seventeen, special police officers, domestic servants taxi-cab driver, vending machine operators, and charter boat operators, providing for the issuance of identification cards to said persons; establishing a fee of $1.30 for each such identification card or renewal thereof, and providing penalties for the violation thereof.

Any one failing to comply by July 15th will be summoned to court."

This ordinance must not be confused with the Health Ordinance. They are two separate and distinct ordinances. The Health Ordinance requiring a health certificate for all domestic servants and persons handling food and, designed for the betterment and protection of everyone we recognize as good, and have complied with the same.

The purpose of the ordinance in question may in part be good. Fingerprinting for the purpose of identification has its merits. Fingerprinting for the purpose of detecting criminals, robbers, etc., is likewise good. If citizens of a community are required to be fingerprinted for the purpose of obtaining revenue then it is wrong. An ordinance requiring part of the citizens of a community to be photographed and finger printed for police records, and which does not apply to all citizens is an unjust discrimination and is a direct violation of the Constitution of the United States.

Why, we ask you should employ of a drug store or a soda fountain be regarded as potential thieves or criminals any more than employees of laundries, ten cent stores, dry good stores, hardware stores, boot blacks, milk men or anyone of the other occupation which I might mention that are not included in this ordinance. It is our contention that such discrimination, or class legislation should not be allowed to exist.

It is because of this discrimination that we failed to comply with the ordinance and we feel that we have been treated unjustly. Some of us were born at Virginia Beach and most of us have lived here from early childhood. We ask you as citizens "are we within our rights?"

SODA BOY.

EDITOR'S NOTE:—The letter below was addressed to the Editor of the Suffolk News-Herald, for publication but may never be printed. The Virginia Beach News herewith prints same to throw some light on a much discussed question.

July 25th, 1938.

Suffolk News-Herald, Suffolk, Virginia.

Attention Editor: I would like to ask the learned Editor of the Suffolk News-Herald the question as to what or who is a party bolter? Is the man who remains away from the polls and refuses to cast his ballot for one who has repudiated every plank in his party's platform, and thereby betrayed those who made him the party nominee a bolter, or is the nominee a party bolter? According to all canons of logic, I would say that the nominee who repudiated his party's platform was the bolter, and not the man who "went fishing."

According to Mr. Editor in his editorial of July 18th, entitled "Honest Joe still Honest" anyone who had a fishing engagement on election day November, 1936, has no right to vote in the Democratic Primary 1938. Did Mr. Editor say that in 1929 when the Party invited, begged, and welcomed the so called "Hoover Democrats" back into the fold, many of whom have since offered themselves as candidates in Democratic Primaries?

Some of whom have been elected to office and are now acting in advisory capacity in the Party. I write this not in defense of Mr. J. T. Deal, for he needs no one to defend him, but in defense of honest and many, many others who refrained from voting in

The Story of Sweepstakes, Lotteries and Contests

By Eric Bender

Modern Age Books, Inc.

Thirty-five Cents

A Review by J. N. G. Finley, University of Virginia Extension Division

Are you among the twelve million Americans who are definitely "contest-conscious" and go into as many as they unwittingly think they have time and ideas for? Are you, perhaps, among the twenty-five million who enter at least two contests every year? If so, don't complain to Mr. Bender about having to yield the Government a larger portion of your income, or shriek in mortal agony when your property tax goes up. He is rather caustic about people who grumble over the rising cost of anything from milk to government and yet buy packages or tubes of things they do not want in order to qualify for competitions in which they will spend untold hours writing adds, perhaps, for companies whose own advertising men are really quite good at that sort of thing. And don't—of course you won't by now—think that this "Story of Sweepstakes, Lotteries and Contests" will help you to win any more money. It only tells why you—and the millions of others—have not won those contests you thought you couldn't lose, and why you may have no better luck next time.

Ten years ago Big Business used to turn up its nose at prize contests on the grand scale. It thought them cheap, or tasteless, and looked askance at those who sponsored such things in much the same manner that we are inclined to look at confirmed gamblers.

But the post-depression, or should one just say the depression-years altered all that very quickly. Sales had fallen off and the public was hardly in a mood for buying anything except under pressure. So, overnight, Big Business changed its point of view, for, in Mr. Bender's own words: "As a shot in the arm for lagging sales, the contest idea can be phenomenally successful. Its success lies in its sure-fire appeal to the something-for-nothing spirit so deeply rooted in the American mind. The sponsor gets an immediate buying response from the public. He doesn't have to wait until the people are convinced that his product is worthwhile."

Yes, you may say, but what is spending several dollars on necessary packages or tubes of something or other one doesn't want compared with winning ten thousand dollars one does? Let me warn you not to ask Mr. Bender naive questions like that. He has replies for all the queries you can think of, and the answer to this one is that you do not stand a chance. That is not because most contests are conducted dishonestly. As a matter of fact, with Federal land other supervision as close as it is, no more one in a hundred is questionable. But—nine to nineteen per cent of all entries in such competitions are thrown out because of things you would not be guilty of, to be sure: demands, threats, offers to split with the judges; eighty to ninety per cent may be eliminated because of their infraction of some stupid rule. And if you are lucky enough to be among the one or two per cent whose entries go before the final judges, what chance have you against the fifty thousand people in this country who are professional or quasi-professional contestants?

Contests, sweepstakes, lotteries are all of a kind as far as Mr. Bender is concerned. He likes none of them, not even the lottery, which has a long history and used to be respectable. The British Museum, you know, was built with the proceeds from one. Harvard College employed the same device for a time, we are told. And there is a church not many miles from me now the funds for which were partially raised in a similar fashion. Yet our author is unmoved. What was once good enough for the British Government, for Harvard and the Continental Congress is not necessarily good enough for us now, he thinks. And he is afraid that we must expect a flood of lottery propaganda from now on. "The public and its legislators in all parts of the country will soon be called upon to decide whether or not they want legalized government lotteries." What the outcome is likely to be may be gauged from a magazine poll taken two years ago. That poll showed our Southwest to be the only section in which the majority was definitely opposed to the idea, perhaps because a number of persons in that part of the country still remember the Louisiana Lottery.

HAMILTON NO FRIEND OF LABOR IS AGAINST ROOSEVELT ADMINISTRATION MEASURES, AND LABOR'S INTEREST

WHEN THE LABOR INTERESTS THREATENED THE PRIVATE INTERESTS OF HAMILTON HE THREW LABOR OVERBOARD

HERE IS REP. HAMILTON'S RECORD ON FOUR MAJOR ROOSEVELT MEASURES:

1. WAGE AND HOUR BILL.

One of the major examples of Hamilton duplicity may be traced in his manipulation of the Wage and Hour Bill. Our Representative (supposed labor friend) did everything possible to kill this measure by the side-tracking methods as shown below:

(a) There were two of these bills. The first was locked up in the House Rules Committee until a petition signed by 218 House Members forced it out. Hamilton not only refused to sign this petition to bring the Bill out, but when the Bill was brought out he joined its opponents in a successful effort to send it back to the Committee. THIS KILLED THE FIRST WAGE AND HOUR BILL.

(b) A second Bill known as the Norton Wage and Hour Bill was introduced which the House Rules Committee again refused to report out. Another petition duly signed by the requisite number of House Members forced this bill out of the Committee for a vote. HAMILTON AGAIN TRIED TO KILL THIS IMPORTANT BILL FOR THE SECOND TIME BY HIS REFUSAL TO SIGN THE PETITION. When the bill came up on the floor for a vote and Hamilton realized that it would be adopted by an overwhelmingly large majority, and that his further opposition would be of no avail, he then voted for the Bill.

WHY DID NORMAN R. HAMILTON SEEK TO KILL THE WAGE AND HOUR BILL?

Mr. Hamilton knew as an employer of labor the operation of the Wage and Hour Bill would lessen his business profits in the Portsmouth Star. Can it be that Hamilton actually placed HIS PETTY INTEREST ABOVE THAT OF THE NATION? CAN IT BE THAT WHEN LABOR THREATENED HIS PRIVATE INTERESTS HE TRIED TO THROW LABOR OVERBOARD?

2. RE-ORGANIZATION BILL.

VOTED AGAINST. The President in this Bill sought to bring a larger measure of order and system in the various departments of government; his object was to put the National House in order. The Press of the nation proclaimed this measure—a test of President Roosevelt's strength. The Bill was defeated by five votes in the House and Hamilton joined the opposition by voting to recommit the bill. THIS MEANT THE DEATH OF THE BILL.

3. PETTINGILL BILL.

This was a bill affecting Railroads and Railway Employees, supported by Railroad Unions. Hamilton voted against the bill.

READ WHAT OUR LABOR PAPERS SAY ABOUT REP. HAMILTON.

Labor laments its Defeat of Darden in the last campaign.

"Bitter, indeed it is for us to look back and see that we were responsible for the defeat of a man, (Colgate W. Darden, Jr.) of political honor by a man devoid of it."

—Labor-Journal April 14, 1938

"To-day we realize they were right, and that Norman R. Hamilton is unworthy of public confidence or trust."

—Labor-Journal April 14, 1938

"Norman Hamilton, the present incumbent, rode into office on a campaign based 100% Roosevelt—a champion of labor, and a promise to at all times make himself accessible to the residents of the district. Within a very short time after he fell down on every one of his pre-election promises he made."

—Times-Advocate July 19, 1938

"Defeat Hamilton, because, we elected him to Congress on a platform of one hundred per cent support of the President, and he turned against the President and opposed him on every major administration bill."

—Labor-Journal July 21, 1938

HAMILTON IS NOW POSING AS A FRIEND OF LABOR AND TEARFULLY BEGGING FOR ITS VOTES. IT IS INCONCEIVABLE THAT OUR LABOR CLASSES WILL RESPOND TO THIS APPEAL. HAMILTON IS NOT TO BE TRUSTED BY LABOR AND LABOR SHOULD HELP TO DEFEAT HIM.

As we commence this week's column, the sun is once more friendly to this mecca of vacationists, and we are able to hang our veteran rain coat on its favorite hook once more. After the comments (good and some very bad) that came in on our introductory offer of last week, the Sunshine has given us courage to go into the second week of this thing.

Things Worth Looking At . . .

The cheerful look of the boys who have umbrellas to rent after several days of rain.

The poem about Douglas Corrigan's flight across the deep, by Tony Jordan, in last week's News. The two twins (some charmers) who stopped traffic at the Casino several evenings ago.

All the items in the newspapers that say stocks and business is on the upgrade.

The charmed expression of several ladies looking at Cary Grant's likeness on the Bayne Theatre posters. (Gee I'd like to look like that boy)

That colored boy and girl doing the new low down in front of a local colored restaurant last A. M. (Those folks will never need dancing lessons)

The contented expression of those cows along the highway during a pouring rain.

Things Worth Listening To . . . The Four Esquires. Do their stuff in the Cool-Air Gardens at the New Ocean Casino.

Sammy Walsh's fast answers to the ribbers at the Dunes.

The story of how that well known Beach business man picked the wrong horse. (And if the blonde did place the bet)

Any of Gus Van's singing short subjects at the Bayne.

Any speech of the President. (Salesmanagers could really learn how to sell by listening at the nation's number one salesman.)

The human interest that Edwin C. Hill can inject into any news broadcast.

The local big wig walking all over the boardwalk and singing? The Music Goes Round And Round.

Things That Help To Make Life Tiresome . . .

The strong arm boys who parade up and down the Beach for all the gals to see them. (We wonder if the femmes get as excited as the showoffs think they do)

All the political speeches over the air.

The phoney claims made by candidates for office.

The auto drivers who think that the highways were built for their benefit only.

The so called biscuit in some of the restaurants.

The old boys of the Eighties who try to make all the high school girls. (They should be worrying about their old age pension checks)

Things We Would Like To See . . . Our cash register jingle like the ones at the A. B. C. Stores.

Mark Weber, conductor of that Contented program on NBC, is one artist who really made a sacrifice for a radio career. After success in every important European capital, he decided he wanted to see America. That meant giving up a country estate on the outskirts of Berlin, a 19 room apartment in Zurich, Switzerland, his kennel of eight beloved dogs and his collection of priceless porcelain, all for an apartment in a Chicago hotel. Here he has an entourage which includes a disabled interpreter and two Bavarian housemaids in native dress. "To geese me th' home touch," he explains.

Elvira Rios

Elvira Rios, beautiful young singer from Mexico, is the latest addition to radio's international colony in Hollywood. She sings little known songs of Old Mexico every week over the networks and consoles her homesickness with the thought that her countrymen hear her via short wave. . . . Joan Blaine was hostess last week to her "Valiant Lady" cast at a party in the cool Roof Gardens of New York's Hotel McAlpin. . . . Paid for by fines imposed for late arrivals at rehearsals. . . . Amos 'n' Andy turned in what proved to be a preview of the Louis-Schmeling fight on their program the night before the fight came off.

Johnny Vander Meer, the Cincinnati Reds' wonder pitcher, is a radio holdout. . . . Values his services for guest appearances at $1,000 and is offered $500. . . . Bob Frost, ace Columbia commentator, got his first trans-Atlantic fan call last week after describing Coney Island in a special broadcast to England. . . . The Englishman wanted him to look up a friend at the resort. . . . The Detroit Symphony orchestra is slated to return to the hi-fives September 11, with John Charles Thomas as the first guest artist. . . . Wonder how put out artificial roadheads are going to be when they discover that they will photograph a muddy blonde on the television screen?

Charlie McCarthy, a recent book reveals, was used by Edgar Bergen as a horrible example of a bad boy back in his days on the Chautauqua circuit and another dummy, Laura, as the well behaved child again, this time with their feature of the most popular songs of big stars. . . . Their ideas are good as well as the music.

Walter O'Keefe, master of the flip retort and hero of the stage, screen and radio, returns from Hollywood to New York to finish his original "Lend Me Your Ears," a musical comedy. . . . Bobby Dolan, O'Keefe's former orchestra leader, is writing the music for the piece. . . . Those "Vocal Varieties" have scored in the script. . . . The former Met star, has launched the third year of her programs. . . . Dolores Gillen, pretty network actress, has set a new style for radio by appearing at the mike in culottes.

Walter O'Keefe

Harold Peary, the "Public Hero No. One" actor recently set a new record for being someone else. . . . In fifteen minutes he paid for the privilege of being a different person. . . . Not all of the top radio actors are going out of the country for their vacations, reports to the contrary. . . . Jack Benny and Fibber McGee are the planned first guests. . . . Marion Tait, former Met star, has launched the third year of her programs. . . . Dolores Gillen, pretty network actress, has set a new style for radio by appearing at the mike in culottes.

More lines like this one: Business will show the way to encouraging profits when it shows the way out to discouraging profits. You . . . write eleven thousand eleven hundred and eleven correct the first time. . . .

This Week's Mystery . . .

We wonder how many and what kind of oysters will be taken from the waters of the Atlantic between Cavalier Drive and Avenue C. But it has come to light recently that a group of folks who own water front property in that area have made application to the oyster inspector of this district to set aside one acre of ground there for oyster breeding purposes.

This Week's Favorite Gag . . .

The ragged vagrant was before the judge for the tenth time on the same charge of vagrancy. The judge spoke to the defendant and asked: My man what have you ever done for this fair city of ours? The vagrant replied: Why judge, I voted for you five times in the last election? Case dismissed, shouted the judge.

Maury Home Added To National Park

Gift from Judge Alvin T. Embrey, Increases Size of Battlefield Park and Adds Home of "Pathfinder of the Seas"

Local National Park Service officials notified the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce today of the acceptance by the United States of a valuable addition to the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park, gift of 10.15 acres from Judge Alvin T. Embrey.

This land, adjoining the Jackson Trail on the Chancellorsville battlefield, once a part of the Catharine Furnace tract, contains the birthsite, where remains of the house are still extant, of Matthew Fontaine Maury.

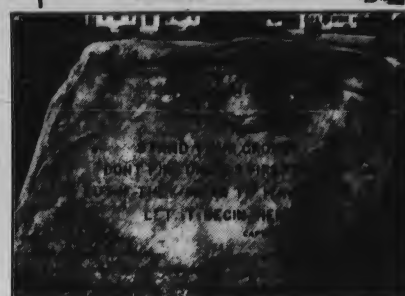

Maury, born there in 1806, became one of the greatest scientists of his age. Popularly known as "the Pathfinder of the Seas," his work in oceanography, charting the winds and the tides, resulted in the cutting down of sailing time to an extent that saved ship owners millions of dollars a year. In 1855, he published the Physical Geography of the Sea, the first textbook on modern oceanography. Among his many other achievements was the research work that helped make possible the laying of the Atlantic cable.

Upon the secession of his native state, Virginia, from the Federal Union in 1861, Maury resigned his commission in the United States Navy and went to Richmond. He was commissioned a commander in the Confederate fore being sent to France. He meets the gold-digging, fast-living showgirl and immediately falls in love with her. On the eve of his departure for France they are married. He just has time to seal the ceremony with a kiss when he has to leave with his company. Walter Pidgeon plays the "other man" of the story.

Telling the Vacation Story

Keep a full record of your vacation tour, including information pictures as well as scenic and "fun" pictures. Use the camera for reminders such as this—it's quicker than a notebook, and much better.

THIS is the season for vacation tours, and every such tour includes many pictures, both of your vacation group and of the scenes you visit.

These four pictures should tell a complete story of your vacation trip. They should outline the route, show the type of road and country, overnight stops, the points of interest and historical spots you visited. Often some of these pictures are neglected, and in consequence the tour story seems incomplete.

One of the important points in making a tour record complete is to picture the historical markers, signs, place names, road markers, and similar "identification points" you pass. These pictures, placed in your vacation album in proper sequence with the other pictures, provide valuable information for the friends who see your album, and help keep your own memory fresh.

On this year's vacation tour, try to keep a comprehensive picture story. Remember that if you miss a picture your record may not be complete. A half-made record is better than none, but a full one, that really tells the vacation story, provides for memories that are far richer and more satisfying.

States Navy, serving both on harbor defense and as a special agent to England.

Later Tought at V. M. I.

After the Civil War, Maury lived for a time in Mexico and England, returning eventually to Virginia, where he was a professor at the Virginia Military Institute in Lexington. Honored by all the world in his lifetime, his name is commemorated today by many memorials, one of which, a bronze plaque, is located on the Jackson Trail, near his birthplace on the Chancellorsville battlefield. His old home on Charlotte Street, in Fredericksburg, where he lived for some time before the War Between the States, is now a warehouse.

Maury's birthplace, on the land donated by Judge Embrey, was still standing during the Battle of Chancellorsville. It is noted on all the old maps as "the Brick House." Jackson passed the property on his flank march that led to the route of the Federal right flank and to his own mortal wounding. It was in that vicinity, in fact, that the Confederate column was spotted by the Federal outlooks at nearby Hazel Grove. The march was mistakenly considered a retreat, however.

The value of the land to the park, therefore, is double. It is an integral part of the battle of Chancellorsville, and it is the birthplace of a great Confederate and world renowned scientist.

COLGATE DARDEN'S COMEBACK BASED ON RECORD AND LOYALTY TO FRIENDS

A man may be judged by the friends he makes, but the sum of the friends he kills, is the best criterion of his worth.

Among friends there may be differences—in opinions, in policies; and in politics; but real friends are not permanently lost because of such.

Honest differences among friends may be adjusted, but broken promises, violated pledges, false pretenses, arrogance, are factors fatal to friendship.

Colgate W. Darden solicits the votes of this District on his official record; on his adherence to principle; on his earnest efforts to advance what he believes to be the best interests of the Nation and of this 2nd Virginia District.

Colgate W. Darden, Jr. presents no irrelevant outside indorsements to the people of his District. He stands on his own merits and the confidence of the electorate, on honest service and loyalty to friends.

In the present campaign Mr. Darden faces no distressing charges of "false pretenses," of "broken promises," of "violated pledges," of "disloyalty and ingratitude." He has not attacked the Courts nor will do so.

Dams Being Built To Save Wildfowl

50,000-Acre Marsh in Manitoba Being Re-flooded; Saskatchewan Traps Eliminated; High Project Planned in Marshes

Simple earthen and rock dams, thrown across abandoned ditches, draining thousands of acres, are eliminating some of the worst drought traps for wild ducks in the prairie provinces this summer.

The dams, constructed by Ducks Unlimited (Canada), with funds distributed by wildfowlers throughout the United States, will be the means of saving uncounted thousands of ducklings this summer should drought again strike with the devastating effect of the past five years.

At Big Grass Marsh, Manitoba, a 50,000-acre tract is gradually re-flooding where, for years, an ancestral nesting ground for legions of wildfowl has been literally kindred by drainage, drought and all-consuming marsh fires. Attracted by temporary water supplies in the spring, however, the waterfowl continued to hatch broods there—only to perish from heat dried up every vestige of water.

Another typical Ducks Unlimited project is underway at the 11,000-acre Watrous Marsh and Lake in Saskatchewan where a dam also has been completed. This dam, a simple earthen affair across a drainage ditch, was erected in a few days by a handful of men working with two pairs of horses and scrapers. Yet it will save legions of hundreds of thousands of ducklings which have suffered lingering deaths here in past summers.

Surveys and work on similar projects are contemplated in progress at Low Water Lake, Alberta; Tatagwa and Cross Lake marshes, the marshes along Moose Mountain Creek, Peikon Lake and other great waterfowl resorts in Saskatchewan.

Manitoba Premier Aldo Soobiesee is the benefactor according to wildfowl and man himself from establishment of these wildfowl areas in drought sections that Premier Jean Bracken, of Manitoba, has offered to personally accompany an inspection trip by the great duck breeding area around The Pas. The trip is planned for early July in response to an offer of fullest co-operation from the Board of Trade of The Pas. Arrangements for the trip are being made by Thomas C. Mann, Manitoba Director of Ducks Unlimited (Canada).

The Big Grass Marsh project is the outstanding waterfowl breeding area restoration project to date. Mr. Mann describes the project as follows: "This area lies between Lake Manitoba and the Riding Mountain, just north of Gladstone, Manitoba. It once consisted of approximately 104,000 acres of lake, marsh and surrounding upland, suitable for waterfowl nesting purposes.

"Between 1909 and 1913, this area was progressively drained to provide more lands on which to grow wheat. Of course, as predicted by the engineer, this land was sour and proved to be entirely unsuitable for agricultural purposes. The land was sold to farmers, who for years vainly struggled to make it pay, but finally were

Built For Beauty—For Comfort—$4,000

Here is a small, inexpensive home of durable construction and unusual arrangement. By the employment of a kitchen addition it has been possible to allow every room of the house to have two exposures. Survey Shows Farm Buildings Well Built

Survey Shows Farm Buildings Well Built

Georgia 67 cents in one Illinois survey, in 1933, buildings on the majority of farms have not been built in stone. A survey by the Bureau of Agricultural Experimentation in 1937 covering the first 100 farms in each county, showed that the average value of buildings on the farms was $1,000. The average value of buildings on the farms was $1,000. The average value of buildings on the farms was $1,000.

The survey in Wisconsin showed that 67 percent of the barns had water, 34 percent had central heating, and 19 percent had electricity. Of the Kansas farms, 32 percent had piped water, 11 percent had heating, and 15.5 percent were lighted by electricity. In Georgia only 9.6 percent had piped water, 19 percent were lighted by electricity, and all were heated with stoves or fireplaces.

These facts are presented in the new Miscellaneous Publication 311 of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, "Farm Building Surveys in Wisconsin, Kansas, Georgia and Illinois," copies of which may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., at 5 cents each. Stamps are not acceptable.

Unused Attics In Home May Be Used

Frequently a home with an attic is adequate for the housing needs of the family without utilizing the attic for living quarters. In such cases the space need not be deemed wasted, as it can be made to play a real role in adding to the livability of the home.

By installing an attic ventilator fan, cutting louvers under the eaves to force out the hot air and installing a grille in the attic floor a cooling and ventilating system that will make close, uncomfortable summer nights less irksome may be had.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. I have an old-fashioned sink with wooden boards on each side, and I want to cover them with something. What material would you suggest?

A. If the boards are not grooved, or if the grooves are not too deep, linoleum can be cemented on top to provide a good surface. The present drainboards should be secured or planed to get an even surface and to remove the portion of the wood that may have become saturated with grease and soap. The linoleum should be cemented to the boards and bordered with a wooden or metal molding on all sides except the top, keeping the sink.

Q. This spring we made our first attempt to landscape the front yard. Shrubs and rose bushes were planted, as well as a small flower garden. The plants had hardly begun to grow when they were blighted by neighborhood dogs. I have placed small wire fences around the trees and a pair of small box hedges, but this doesn't seem to discourage the animals. Is there some preparation I can use to abate this nuisance?

A. Yes. If you will spray the shrubs, trees, and plants with a mixture of nicotine sulphate, dogs will not come near them. This can be obtained from any seed and fertilizer dealer or nursery.

Do I have to be completely finished in detail these Indians have a superstition that any part of the place of work probably would be the weaver's life.

Carry on with the newspapers.

First Unit Formed
The 104th Aviation Unit has the distinction of being the first National Guard Flying unit to be recognized by the United States Government, it having been organized in the year 1921. Since that time the annual training periods have taken the 104th Aviation to various fields throughout the Eastern part of the country. Langley Field, Virginia, has been the scene of the training operations of the unit on more than one occasion. The flying field at Frederick, Maryland, the home camp of the unit likewise has been visited several times during the summer encampments and Indian town Camp, Pennsylvania, and Martinsburg, West Virginia are other places where training periods have been spent.

This summer marks the first visit of the Maryland Guard Unit to Virginia Beach, and Major Mason and his officers and men seemed to be thoroughly satisfied with the facilities of the camp. The Major mentioned the fact that everything is all right, but added "we would like it much better if the sun would come from behind the clouds and let us get to work."

And the Norfolk Central Labor Union urges all members of Labor Organized and Unorganized, and all friends of Labor, to do all within their power to defeat Congressman Hamilton.
